TRUST BILL IN; DEFINES UNIONS

CURBS COURT INJUNCTIONS

JURY TRIALS FOR CONTEMPT

Measure Consolidates Administration's Programme and May Be Reported in Ten Days.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—A more definite idea of the Administration's programme for trust legislation was obtainable to-night when Representative Henry D. Clayton of Alabama, Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, made public the revised Anti-Trust bill. It links the anti-trust question with that of union labor.

The new bill was introduced in the House to-day by Judge Clayton and was referred to the Judiciary Committee, which will begin to consider the measure, section by section, on Thursday. Leaders say it will be reported to the House within ten days. The new bill takes the place of the four measures introduced some time ago, which were the basis of hearings by the Judiciary Committee. Its introduction has been spurred by President Wilson reiterating his desire for the passage of his trust programme at this session of Congress.

The revised bill prohibits interlocking directorates, holding companies, and certain trade practices, suggests some new Sherman law definitions, though not as many as were originally proposed, and contains new provisions fixing the status of labor unions under the law (Section 6) and limiting the power of Federal Courts in the issuance of injunctions and providing for jury trials in cases of indirect contempt of court (Sections 12 to 22). The incorporation of these provisions corroborates the forecast made in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning to the effect that these questions on which labor leaders have been active in seeking legislation would be taken up at once as part of the Administration programme.

These labor features of the bill stand out prominently in the revised measure, and the Administration is anxious to have them passed as part of its trust programme. The injunction provisions follow the lines of the Clayton bill, which passed the House in the Sixty-second Congress. The provision for jury trials in cases of indirect contempt is also based on the Clayton contempt bill, which the House passed in the last Congress.

The holding company bill, as originally introduced, has been somewhat modified and incorporated in the new trust bill. The subcommittee framing the new bill believes the holding company provision has been much strengthened. It is not as sweeping as formerly, and is now aimed mainly at "bad" holding companies.

There has also been a restriction of the original scope of the interlocking directorates bill. The original measure prohibited interlocking directorates between banks regardless of their capitalization. The revised provision now proposes to exempt banks with resources of less than $2,500,000 from the interlocking directorate prohibition.

May Not Satisfy Labor.

The sixth section, dealing with the status of labor unions under the Sherman law, will probably not satisfy the labor leaders and agitators. They were in favor of the Bacon-Bartlett bill exempting unions from the Sherman law. This has been sidetracked in the new trust bill, which, however, does provide that nothing in the anti-trust laws shall be construed as forbidding the existence and operation of labor and similar organizations or forbid or restrain individual members of such orders from carrying out the legitimate objects of such associations.

Samuel Gompers, when heard by the Judiciary Committee, demanded the incorporation of a straight exemption of union labor from the operation of the Sherman law. Mr. Gompers told the committee that union labor now existed only by the sufferance of the Attorney General. The anti-trust laws had been so interpreted by the courts, he said, that unions could be dissolved any time suits were filed by authority.

Instead of granting absolute exemption the framers of the new trust bill have evolved a compromise which proposes to give a legal status to labor unions and other "mutual" organizations "not having capital stock" and "not conducted for profit." But this provision, it is interpreted, would not exempt a labor union from prosecution under the anti-trust laws if it commits any acts violative of those laws.

The new holding company section prohibits any corporation from acquiring control of a competitor where such acquisition might tend to the creation of a monopoly in any line of business. It does not apply to corporations buying stock solely for investment purposes. An important new feature of the revised holding company provision reads:

> Nor shall this prohibition prevent a corporation engaged in commerce from causing the formation of subsidiary corporations for the actual carrying on of their immediate lawful business, or the natural and legitimate branches thereof, or from owning and holding all, or a part of, the stock of such subsidiary corporations, when the effect of such formation is not to eliminate or lessen competition.

Another new provision is that which permits railroads to assist in the building of "feeder" lines and to purchase and control "branch" or "short line" railroads that are not substantially competitors.

The revised provision dealing with interlocking Directorates, (Section 8,) prohibits interlocking Directorates between railroads and corporations engaged in selling railway supplies, and between banks and other financial institutions, but contains a provision limiting the enforcement of the prohibition only against financial institutons with resources in excess of $2,500,000. It also contains a provision affecting private bankers and trust companies in all cities with a population of 100,000 or over. This section reads:

> No bank, banking association, or trust company organized and doing business in any city or town of more than 100,000 in-

May Get Away to Florida in a Few Days, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Secretary Bryan, who expected to start to-night with Mrs. Bryan for their Winter home in Florida to enjoy a vacation for a fortnight, decided to postpone their departure because of the present situation in Mexico.

In announcing the postponement, Mr. Bryan said that he hoped to be able to get away in a few days, but could not speak definitely, and would delay his departure from day to day as circumstances made necessary, hoping eventually to be able to go.

GUARD COLOMBIA TREATY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The treaty between the United States and Colombia for a settlement of the differences growing out of the secession of Panama was to have been made public simultaneously in Bogota and Washington to-day. Announcement was made at the State Department yesterday that copies of the treaty would be furnished to the press.

These copies were made, but at the close of an interview between Secretary Bryan and Senator Shively, acting Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, Mr. Bryan explained that through the observance of customary courtesy to the Senate and on account of a request from members the text of the treaty would not be given out until after it had been sent to the Senate. May 1 was given as the date when the treaty probably would be sent to that body.

In the meantime it will be published at Bogota to-morrow morning. The question whether the text of the treaty shall be made public officially in the United States will rest with the Senate.

Mr. Bryan would not make any statement to-day in regard to the terms of the treaty.

MUSICIAN KILLED BY TRAIN.

Woman Tries to Save L. L. Glover on Third Avenue Elevated.

A woman ran up to Daniel Hartigan, ticket chopper on the platform between the tracks of the Third Avenue elevated railroad station at Grand Street last night, and cried that there was a man on the southbound rails. Hartigan seized the red warning lamp and thrust it out over the rails as quick as he could. A train was just approaching. The motorman, Edward Murray, put on the emergency brakes, but the first truck passed over a man's body, killing him instantly.

Cards in his pockets identified him as Lawrence L. Glover, 25 years old, an orchestral leader, of 77 Fifth Avenue, Manhattan, last employed at the Mardi Gras Theatre, Nostrand Avenues and Clarkson Street, Brooklyn. Glover had on heavy glasses. He was near-sighted and erratic, Manager Ward of the theatre said, and quit several positions after trifling disputes. A brother, W. L. Glover, Mr. Ward said, was connected with the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music and was last heard from at 524 Second Avenue, Troy, N. Y. Glover had a sister, Miss J. A. Glover, a paper box manufacturer, of Roxbury, Mass.

THREATENS GIRL TO WED HER

Handley, Defied at the Last, Takes Poison in City Hall, Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, April 14.—Frank Handley, once a life guard here, drank a mixture of whisky and tincture of opium in the City Hall to-day when May E. Wright, a clerk in the offices of the United Gas Improvement Company of Philadelphia, refused to marry him.

Handley went to Philadelphia this morning and told Miss Wright that he would kill her unless she returned here with him and married him. In fear of her life she returned with him. They went to the City Hall and obtained a license. Then the young woman balked and refused to have the ceremony performed. In fright she ran to the second floor of the City Hall and took refuge in the office of the Water Department. Handley followed and tried to persuade her to go with him, and when she refused he took a bottle from his pocket and swallowed the mixture of whisky and opium.

Handley was taken at once to the hospital, where it was said to-night that he had responded readily to remedies, and would be able to appear in court to-morrow morning to answer to a charge of threatening Miss Wright's life.

COMMISSION PLAN WINS.

Orange, by a Majority of 243, Changes Style of Government.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., April 14.—The city voted by a majority of 243 to-day to adopt the commission form of government. There were 1,855 votes cast in favor of commission government and 1,612 against it. Three out of five wards were carried in favor of commission government, while the Fourth and Fifth Wards returned majorities of 49 and 28, respectively, against it. Three-fourths of the registered voters went to the polls, making it the largest referendum vote in proportion to the population ever held in the State.

As soon as the result of the election was known several men announced that they would like to be elected Commissioners. Mayor Frank J. Murray, the Republican, who advocated the change, however, has not announced whether he will seek nomination as a Commissioner.

It was a quiet election, and it was believed until 6 o'clock this evening that the opposition was in the lead, but the commuter vote turned the tide.

MAIL TRUCK OVERBOARD.

Why Some New Jersey Towns Missed the Morning Newspapers.

An automobile mail truck bound from the New York Post Office to deliver mail to the railway Post Office at the Central Railroad of New Jersey terminal at Communipaw, went overboard from the ferryboat Bound Brook at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The truck stood at the front end of the boat as it entered the slip. Frank Scotz, the driver, started his engine. The brake was not set, and when the boat bumped the big truck skidded and slipped, went through the chain, and the gate, and plunged into the water.

A wrecking derrick raised it later. About three-fourths of the mail was morning newspapers; and the rest first-class and parcel post matter. None of the mail was missing, as the doors of the truck were locked. The mail matter was brought back to the New York office with the truck.

WHITMAN SCOUTS CIROFICI'S STORY

To Investigate Report That "Dago Frank" Was Drugged Before Confession.

CLANCY TO BE QUESTIONED

NO "DOLLAR JOHN" PLOT

Father Cashin and Miss Cirofici Tell How Confession Was Made—To Move for Becker Trial To-day.

Information from Sing Sing Prison reached the office of District Attorney Whitman yesterday which caused him to smile at the whole structure of the "Dago Frank" Rosenthal murder confession made just before the gunmen were to pay the death penalty Monday morning.

While not all the information was made public, enough of it became known in the Criminal Court Building to make those in the confidence of the District Attorney assert that the confession was not prepared in good faith. There was a strong intimation that Mr. Whitman had learned that "Dago Frank" was prepared for the confession by a liberal administration of drugs, and that all that was heard by those who listened to the confession was the ramblings of an irresponsible mind.

The story of the death house which came to Mr. Whitman was narrated in part by Assistant District Attorney Delehanty.

According to Mr. Delehanty, conversation was heard among the gunmen a short time before their execution. This was at a time when they had given up hope of gaining a pardon for "Dago Frank" by making confessions absolving him from blame.

"Dago Frank" opened up what was meant to be a final proposal to the other gunmen. It was that he make a confession taking the whole blame upon himself, and exonerating the others in the hope that thus they would be pardoned and he would die alone.

Lefty Louie" made a reply on behalf of the other gunmen in which he said:

"No, Frank, we are all in it just as bad as you are and if you have to die we will all go with you."

District Attorney Whitman expects to have a conference with Warden Clancy in the very near future in order that he may learn the exact details of how the confession was obtained. Mr. Whitman will ask the Warden as to Cirofici's mental and physical state and as to any possible outside influence that may have been brought into play upon the gunman.

"Horrible Travesties," Says Cashin.

The Rev. Father William E. Cashin, Catholic chaplain of Sing Sing and the spiritual adviser of Cirofici, denounced yesterday as "horrible travesties" some of the accounts which were printed in newspapers of the last hour confession of "Dago Frank." Father Cashin asserted that most of the statements credited to "Dago Frank" in alleged interviews with prison officials had no basis in fact.

He would not have come forward to correct the impressions created by these accounts of "Dago Frank's" confession, Father Cashin said, were it not for the fact that they did injustice to the memory of "Dago Frank" and to the family of the dead man. Father Cashin said that it appeared as if the untrue statements were made with the aim of doing injury to another man. It was inferred that he meant ex-Lieut. Charles Becker, but the chaplain did not name Becker in this connection.

What Father Cashin objected to most were the statements that "Dago Frank" had confessed that the gunmen had also sought the life of "Dollar John" Langer, another gambler, whom the District Attorney was depending on for corroboration of Rosenthal's charges against Becker. According to Father Cashin, the name of "Dollar John" was used twice in "Dago Frank's" confession, but only in casual ways. The impression that there was a plot to kill two "squealers" instead of one, the chaplain pointed out, would naturally strengthen the theory that a man "higher up" was behind the dual murder plot. This was an indirect and unjust attack upon ex-Lieut. Becker, he intimated.

No "Dollar John" Murder Plot.

The persons who heard the gunman's confession were Warden James M. Clancy of Sing Sing, Father Cashin, Principal Keeper Thomas McInerny, Mrs. Mary Cirofici, mother of "Dago Frank," and Miss Cirofici, sister of "Dago Frank." It was suggested that a stenographer be called, but this plan was dropped. Warden Clancy then prepared to take some notes on paper, but failed to make any during the interview. After the interview Warden Clancy called Father Cashin and Principal Keeper McInerny into his office, and there each recalled what had been said. All that was recalled by these three men at the time was incorporated in a statement addressed to Gov. Glynn. It was not signed by any of the men.

"I did not sign that statement, but if it has not been changed I will stand by everything that was in it," said Father Cashin yesterday. "I will also stand for a few things which were forgotten when the statement was made up. I will not, however, sanction some of the alleged interviews which were printed this morning, notably in The World and The Sun. Of all the statements that I saw that printed in THE TIMES was most nearly correct. There were a few things in it which I know nothing about, but in the main it was correct. There was nothing about a plan to murder 'Dollar John' Langer in the statement which was sent to the Governor, and Frank Cirofici said nothing about such a murder plot."

Three Ignorant of Confession.

Father Cashin then asserted that "Gyp the Blood," "Lefty Louie," and "Whitey Lewis" went to the electric chair without knowing that "Dago Frank" had "squealed." They trusted in him to the last, and so certain were they that he had not violated the secrecy pact that they did not even ask

CITY MUST INSURE 100,000 WORKERS

A BROAD INTERPRETATION

Would Bring the Mayor and All Other Officials Within the Law's Provision.

The city officials will soon have to deal with a problem presented by an amendment to the workmen's compensation law inserted by the Legislature at the last moment extending its provisions to include State and municipal employes.

This amendment, if effective, will not only make the city liable for injuries to its employes, but will make it necessary for it to take out insurance against this liability the same as any other employer.

This raises the question whether the city shall insure in the State fund, in a liability company, in a mutual association, or shall carry its own insurance. These four means are open to other employers, but to carry their own insurance they must first obtain the authorization of the Workmen's Compensation Commission.

The next question will be how many and which of the 100,000 city employes are to be covered.

Under an interpretation attributed to the commission, an employer who has any employes falling within the occupations classified as hazardous will be liable for injuries to all his other employes. If this should be true of the city, it would be liable for injuries to the Mayor, the Controller, or any other official.

City Chamberlain Henry Bruere, in his capacity of Vice Chairman of the Pension Commission appointed by Mayor Gaynor, obtained yesterday from Prof. Thomas I. Parkinson of Columbia University, an authority on workmen's compensation laws, an informal discussion of the provisions of the law as affecting city employes. The pension system of the city has been for some time under examination by this commission, and as it is intended to provide for city employes injured or killed in the city service, especially policemen and firemen, the relation between the subjects is intimate.

The amendment to the Workmen's Compensation law also provides that in the case of the State and city employes pensions shall be deducted from death benefits under the act. It is likely that the Pension Commission will be one of the agencies on which the City Government will rely for assistance in working out the problem presented by the new law, which goes into effect on July 1. The problems to be solved in this city will, of course, have their counterparts in the other cities of the State and in the State Government.

Prof. Parkinson, in his letter to Mr. Bruere, said that he would not attempt at this time to go into a comprehensive statement of the specific provisions of the act, but would only indicate the serious general questions involved in applying it to the city as an employer.

"The subject," he said, "is a complex one and it has been made more complex by the attempt to apply to the city service an act originally intended only for commercial employments by the insertion of a few words in the definition of the word 'employer.' What the attitude of the city officials should be and what action you should take under the act depends not only upon a careful interpretation of the act as applied to the city service, but also an appreciation of your general attitude toward the subject of providing compensation for city employes injured in the course of their employment or the dependents of the city employes killed in the course of their employment.

"The act as originally passed did not apply to the State or its cities because the definition of 'employer' in the act expressly omitted the State and cities; and, moreover, the definition of 'employment' expressly limited the act to those employments 'in a trade, business, or occupation carried on by the employer for pecuniary gain.' Even if the definition of employer had not expressly excluded cities, this definition of 'employment' would have done so. At least I do not now have in mind any function or activity of the City of New York which can be said to be carried on by the city 'for pecuniary gain.'

"While it was unquestionably the purpose of the bill to so amend the original compensation act as to bring the city and its employes under the act, there is, unfortunately, grave doubt of the legal effect of the amendments. The Legislature amended the term 'employer' so that it includes the State and its cities, but the Legislature did not change the original definition of 'employment.' It would seem, therefore, that while the city is now within the term 'employer,' as used in the act, it is responsible for compensation under the act only where it can be shown to be carrying on an employment for pecuniary gain.

"No employments are affected by the act unless they are included in the groups described in it, and the only ones that seem to me to include the functions or the activities of the City of New York are the construction, operation, repair, &c., of railways (subways) and possibly telegraph or telephone lines; the operation, repair, &c., of vessels; paving, sewer, and subway construction and similar work; operation of stationary engines and boilers; operation on the street of cars, trucks, other vehicles, &c.

"Assuming that the act applies to the city at all, it may be held that it applies only to the employes engaged in those activities which fall within the groups, or it may be held that because some of the city's activities fall within those groups, therefore all the employes of the city are within the act. I do not believe this interpretation can be sustained."

Another amendment made at the last moment changes the penalty for failure on the part of an employer to comply with the law from $1 a day for every employee to an amount equal to the pro rata premium that would have been payable to the State fund for the period of non-compliance.

VINCENT ASTOR ILL AT FIANCEE'S HOME

WEDDING PLANS HALTED

Stricken on Monday Night, Following Previous Attack of Bronchitis—His Mother at Bedside.

Vincent Astor is seriously ill with acute congestion of the right lung at Hopeland House, Staatsburg, N. Y., the country home of Robert P. Huntington, the father of his bride-to-be. Present indications, Mr. Huntington said last night, are that the marriage of Mr. Astor ad Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington, which was planned to take place on April 30, will have to be postponed. How long a postponement will be necessary Mr. Huntington could not say.

Mr. Astor's illness, which was very grave on Monday night, came after an attack of bronchitis which he had two weeks ago, and from which he never fully recovered. Although still slightly indisposed, Mr. Astor thought he was practically well a week ago, and went to Bristol, R. I., on his yacht, the Noma, to inspect a launch he is having made at the Herreshoff ship yards.

While there he exposed himself, and the congestion of his right lung set in. Feeling the illness coming on, Mr. Astor hurriedly left Bristol in the Noma and started for Mr. Huntington's home in Staatsburg, which is near his own country place at Rhinebeck. He arrived in Staatsburg last Saturday afternoon, but did not then feel seriously ill.

On Monday night, however, he had a very sudden and acute attack. Within a few minutes his fever had risen to 105, and, while he was not delirious, his condition so alarmed Mr. Huntington that he telephoned Dr. Lewis A. Conner of 121 East Sixty-second Street and Dr. James F. McKernon of 62 West Fifty-second Street to come at once. They reached Mr. Astor's bedside early yesterday morning. Mr. Astor's mother, who was in the city, was notified and went directly to Staatsburg, where she now is. Miss Huntington is also with her fiancé.

Mr. Astor sank dangerously low on Monday night, but by yesterday afternoon he had rallied sufficiently to permit Drs. Conner and McKernon to return to New York and leave him in the care of local Staatsburg physicians and two trained nurses. He was reported to be resting comfortably last night, but his condition was acknowledged to be still serious.

Whether the congestion in Mr. Astor's lung will lead to pneumonia his physicians cannot yet say. Dr. Conner said last night that he hoped the crisis had passed, and that Mr. Astor's improvement would continue steadily, but he could express nothing more than hope for this result. It will be several days, he said, before anything like a definite forecast of Mr. Astor's recovery can be made.

Both he and Dr. McKernon held themselves in readiness to return to Staatsburg at any moment last night. Whether they go there to-day, Dr. Conner said, depends upon Mr. Astor's condition.

None of Mr. Astor's friends went to Bristol with him. The trip was purely a business one, and it was only because of the Spring-like weather while he was in Bristol that he ventured to spend too many hours on the deck of the Noma.

Mr. Astor will remain in Mr. Huntington's home until he thoroughly recovers. His mother and Miss Huntington will also stay in Hopeland House and will be at his bedside as much as possible.

Plans for Mr. Astor's wedding fifteen days hence had already progressed, but no further preparations will be made until after it is determined when Mr. Astor can be married. The ceremony will take place in Mr. Huntington's home, as was originally decided, and it may be that Mr. Astor will not leave there until after Miss Huntington has become his wife, for the wedding will not be postponed any longer than is absolutely necessary.

Nicholas Biddle, an executor of the John Jacob Astor estate, said last night that Vincent Astor was doing very well.

"He is doing so much better that he is apparently out of danger," Mr. Biddle asserted.

Vincent Astor had been ill with incipient pneumonia, Mr. Biddle said, and was now suffering from the effects of this ailment.

STEEL WAGE CUT PLANNED.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 14.—Five of the larger independent steel companies, it was learned to-day, at a conference held in Pittsburgh last week decided to reduce wages under certain conditions. The scheduled reductions were not made public. It was announced that foreign competition, which, under the new tariff, enabled manufacturers abroad to compete with manufacturers in the Pittsburgh district for the seaport trade, might not make the reductions necessary, as railroad rates stood, but that, if the requested 5 per cent. advance should be granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the higher rates and the lower tariff together would make it necessary to cut wages in the mills.

The principal competitor of the United States Steel Corporation, Jones & Laughlin, represented by Willis King; the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, the Lackawanna Steel Company, the Cambria Steel Company, and Follansbee Brothers, took part in the conference. All these companies, excepting the Lackawanna, which is located in Western New York, have their plants in Western Pennsylvania. Combined they employ fifty thousand men.

ATLANTIC FLEET ORDERED TO TAMPICO; HUERTA REFUSES TO SALUTE OUR FLAG; SAYS HE WILL UPHOLD MEXICO'S HONOR AND PREPARES MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

HUERTA PREPARES A MESSAGE FOR SUBMISSION TO CONGRESS

Members of That Body Say They will Probably Approve His Patriotic Action.

MEXICO, April 14.—President Huerta has prepared for submission to Congress an important declaration.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, April 14.—Foreign Minister Portillo y Rojas, in his last note to Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American Charge, clearly sets forth the Mexican Government's declination to honor the American flag with a salute at Tampico. He says that President Huerta considers the sovereignty of Mexico would thus be degraded, and is not disposed to yield to the pressure of any nation over his army's actions. He considers that international law and usage were not tampered with by the Dolphin launch incident, and is disposed to uphold the honor and sovereignty of Mexico at any cost.

It is said here to-night that Secretary Daniels has advised the New York and Cuba Mail Company that its boats are now at the disposition of the American Government and may be called upon for service at any moment for removing refugees from Tampico.

VILLA ROUTS 15,000, TAKES SAN PEDRO

11 DAYS OF FIERCE FIGHTING

Both Sides Lose Heavily—One Report Says 5,000 Were Wounded, but This Is Questioned.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN PEDRO DE LAS COLONIAS, Coahuila, April 14.—After eleven days of the hardest kind of fighting, in which it is said about 3,000 men were killed and wounded, this town, where Madero started his revolution against Diaz, is now in the possession of the forces who wear Madero's picture over their crucifixes, with a bit of crêpe pinned to the crude celluloid buttons. Villa's victorious rebels, headed by the captured Federal military band, marched in this afternoon and thus established a base for the Eastern Coahuila and Tamaulipas campaigns against Huerta's forces.

The fighting ended at noon to-day when Villa drove his men into the final struggle which sent Campa's and de Moure's forces scurrying over the desert to the east and south and left 700 Federal prisoners in the hands of the rebels. These men expressed their willingness to join the revolution and were pardoned, even their minor officers being spared from the military execution which invariably follows a Villa victory. Only the Colorados, or Red Flagger followers of Orozco, were executed, as Villa had ordered that not one of these traitors, as he calls them, shall be left alive after he has finished with Mexico.

De Moure was in San Pedro with a portion of his force of regular Federals and a small command from Joaquin Maas's Federals from Monterey. They were ordered to proceed to Torreon, but before they could start Emilio Campa arrived with reinforcements from Saltillo and joined the Federals with his irregulars of the Orozco revolution.

A forced march was then planned to Torreon, 40 miles to the westward, for the relief of Velasco and his men, but Villa's outposts discovered the reinforcements, and on April 2 started to give battle. From that time until the surrender of the town to-day there has been almost continuous fighting.

The Federals were forced to the eastern edge of the town after they had all but defeated the rebels under Ortega and Hernandez, but Benjamin Argumedo arrived with reinforcements from Viezca Friday night, and the rebels were again driven out. Then Villa arrived and finally captured the town and territory, driving the remaining Federals out on the desert with no water within 50 miles of San Pedro.

The united Federals, it was estimated, numbered 15,000 men.

Special to The New York Times.

JUAREZ, Mex., April 14.—Gen. Villa telegraphed from the battlefield at San Pedro to-night that he had just won the greatest victory in Northern Mexico, suffering a loss of 600 killed and 200 wounded, while the Federals lost 3,600 men killed and wounded besides a larger number captured and executed. Villa said that the entire Federal Army, remaining in the north, opposed him at San Pedro and that Velasco, who was thought to be at Parras, commanded the force.

Villa threw his entire force of 16,500 men against the Federal position in San Pedro, the 12,000 Federals opposing every inch of the advance.

By The Associated Press.

JUAREZ, Mexico, April 14.—The rebel wounded during a six days' battle at San Pedras de las Colonias, east of Torreon, is placed at 5,000 in an official report of Gen. Villa to Gen. Carranza, in which the combined forces of the Federals, said to have numbered 12,000 to 15,000, were defeated by 10,000 to 12,000 rebels.

Gen. Carranza forwarded the report to Rafael Zubaran, his Secretary of the Interior, who remained here after Carranza and other officials removed the provisional capital to Chihuahua. Mr. Zubaran is inclined to think the reference to "five thousand wounded" was an exaggeration due to a telegraphic mistake, and he wired for confirmation.

Gen. Villa's report dated yesterday reads:

"I have the honor to communicate to you that after six days of terrific fighting the town of San Pedros de las Colonias was to-day, at 7 P. M., evacuated by the enemy, who were under the command of Gens. Velasco, de Moure, Maas, and others.

"Before the evacuation they set fire to the greater part of the city. In these moments my troops are taking possession of the city. To-morrow I will forward the details of the battle to you. My only regret is that five thousand of my troops were wounded in to-day's assault. I have captured 700 prisoners. I hope that the great sacrifice of human blood will be for the welfare of our country."

Another telegram from Villa asks that 2,000,000 cartridges be shipped south.

Maass, Hidalgo and de Moure were on their way to Torreon with reinforcements, but Velasco retired before their arrival. Since then, until the concentration at San Pedro and environs, the Federal columns, their routes determined by the presence of scattered supplies of water, have been maneuvering in an endeavor to mobilize in force, while rebel detachments have scurried hither and thither between Viesca, Parras and San Pedro to prevent the concentration.

When the general engagement was brought on it is reported that the battle line measured twenty miles in a semicircle about the city.

The Chase After Velasco.

While the battle of Torreon was in progress there were persistent reports that reinforcements were drawing near to the assistance of Gen. Velasco. The latter apparently despaired of their arrival, or feared that they would be cut to pieces in detail, and withdrew in excellent order from the city, although his loss in killed and wounded was considerably less than that of the rebels.

He headed east and south and for a time the rebel pursuers, over whom he had a start of ten or twelve hours, were unable to locate him. He was first definitely observed at Viesca, a station on the southernmost end of the three railway lines running between Torreon and Saltillo and its southern environs.

Meantime, a rebel column had occupied San Pedro, which is near a lake on the northernmost of the railroad lines, about sixty miles north of the southern line. The first detachment sent against the city by Gen. Villa was repulsed after four days of desultory fighting, but when rebel reinforcements arrived the Federals fled eastward a short distance.

Villa left a garrison in the town, but it was unable to withstand the onslaught of a new column of Federal volunteers under Gens. Benjamin Argumedo and Emilio Campa. While these fights were taking place Velasco moved up to Parras, and it is now assumed cut across from that point to San Pedro, where a general engagement is reported to have been brought on last night.

Rebel Version of Conversations with Federals Before Torreon.

JUAREZ, Mexico, April 14.—A detailed "official" narrative of the campaign that gave Torreon to Villa and his rebel army reached here to-day. One interesting feature of it was the story of a long-distance telephone conversation on March 20, between the rebel General, Felipe Angeles, and Gen. Refugio Velesco, the Federal commander at Torreon.

Gen. Angeles took the receiver and was answered by Capt. Eguiluz, an aid to Velasco. After inquiring who was at the other end of the line, the Captain handed the receiver to Gen. Velasco and the following conversation ensued:

Angeles—Good afternoon, my General.

Angeles—From Bermejillo, my General.

Velasco—Then you have already taken Bermejillo?

Angeles—Yes, my General.

Velasco—I wish you joy.

Angeles—Thanks.

Velasco—What did we do to you?

Angeles—Nothing. With the object of evading a useless spilling of blood, and to comply with what we believe is a duty to humanity, I ask for the City of Torreon.

Velasco—Just a moment.

Gen. Angeles, says the narrative, supposed here that Velasco was merely sparring for time, so he added:

"I suppose it is useless to talk with you about this affair?"

Gen. Velasco replied: "Useless, you say?"

"That is what I asked," said Gen. Angeles.

Instead of answering, Velasco handed the receiver to Col. Solorzano, who tried to convince Angeles that the Constitutionalists better lay down their arms. Then the rebel artillery leader hung up the receiver.

In a few moments the bell tinkled in Villa's headquarters and this time Villa himself took up the receiver. Some Federal official, whose name was not learned, was at the other end and asked with whom he was speaking:

Villa—With Francisco Villa.

Officer—Very well; we are going there in a few moments.

Villa—Come right ahead, gentlemen.

Villa—I think there will be no one left to eat it by the time you reach here.

Officer—That's all right, but we are going there.

Villa—Very good. And as we do not care to molest you, we will not go, although we have come many miles just to look at you.

Officer—And are you many?

Villa—Not many, but enough. We are two regiments of cavalry and 10,000 boys, and we will entertain you.

Officer—Fine. So we will go there and rumple you up.

Villa—You ought to be a good soldier, for your words are smoky.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—As a result of the refusal of the Mexican Government to fire a salute to the American flag as reparation for the indignity offered to an officer and men from the gunboat Dolphin at Tampico, President Wilson to-day ordered the entire North Atlantic battleship fleet to that Mexican port. Late to-night the Navy Department received word from Admiral Badger that four battleships were ready to sail from Hampton Roads to-morrow morning.

On the face of it this action means that if the salute is not forthcoming, the United States will use force to back up its demand for reparation. But the Administration steadfastly refuses to give any detailed explanation of the matter.

Rear Admiral Henry T. Mayo, who made the demand which the Government is now supporting, has informed the Navy Department that he can take Tampico with the force under his present command at that place.

"Admiral Fletcher reported to the department at 3 P. M. Tuesday that Admiral Mayo reports from Tampico that no intimation was received by him of the existence of martial law or of objection to boat taking supplies. Stewards, orderlies, &c., were going ashore when necessary. Only part of the whaleboat's crew of the Dolphin were out of the boat to handle stores. The men of the boat's crew were bluejackets, not marines."

Rumor of Three Day Limit.

While official cvonfirmation is lacking, there is a persistent report that the United States has given the Huerta Government three days, expiring Friday, within which to fire a salute to the Stars and Stripes, and that Admiral Mayo has been instructed to land an armed force at Tampico and seize that city if the salute is not fired within that time limit.

The main body of the Atlantic fleet under command of Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger is not expected to reach Tampico until Tuesday, April 21, a week from to-day. April 21 will be the sixteenth anniversary of the outbreak of the war with Spain.

The Administration, according to guarded statements of officials, is hoping that the news that the Atlantic fleet has been ordered to Tampico will bring forth the reparation that is required before the expiration of the time limit.

According to the best information obtainable, the decision to take drastic action was reached after a full discussion of the Tampico incident and the general Mexican question at the meeting of the Cabinet to-day, which lasted two hours. It is known that President Huerta had indicated a willingness to fire a salute as reparation under certain conditions, which this Government declined to accept. To a final message that came from the Mexican Government over night is attributed President Wilson's determination to order the entire available force of battleships and other war vessels on the Atlantic coast to proceed to Tampico post haste.

Daniels' Formal Statement.

Announcement of the orders to the fleet was made by Secretary Daniels after the protracted Cabinet meeting, his statement reading:

> Secretary of the Navy Daniels this afternoon sent orders to Admiral Badger, Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, to proceed at once with all the ships under his command to Tampico. Admiral Badger is at Hampton Roads.
> At the same time orders were issued for the Hancock, now at New Orleans, with 800 marines, to proceed at once to Tampico.
>
> Orders were also issued to the South Carolina, en route from Santo Domingo to join

Orders were also issued to the Nashville at Santo Domingo to proceed to Tampico.

Orders were also issued to the Tacoma, now at Boston, to proceed to Tampico.

The torpedo fleet, now at Pensacola, was notified to stand by for orders to proceed to Tampico.

The main body of the fleet is lying to-night on the southern drill grounds, a strip of water about thirty miles beyond the Virginia Capes, where the big ships have been engaged in their regular semi-annual target practice. Some of these vessels will sail as soon as possible after the arrival of Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, aid to operations in the Navy Department, who left Washington on a passenger vessel this evening for Old Point Comfort with confidential instructions from the Secretary of the Navy for Rear Admiral Badger.

In a dispatch received at the Navy Department to-night, Admiral Badger said that the Arkansas, his flagship, and the Vermont, New Jersey, and New Hampshire would start for Tampico tomorrow forenoon, and that the battleship Louisiana, now at New York, and the battleship Michigan, now at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, would start southward about the same time.

The battleship South Carolina, now on the way from Haiti to Hampton Roads, has been intercepted by wireless and ordered to Tampico.

This force of seven battleships and two cruisers under Rear Admiral Badger, which has been ordered from the Atlantic Coast to Mexican waters, will reinforce a fleet there, which is already of considerable strength. The vessels at or near the scene of threatened action are as follows:

The Tampico, under the command of Rear Admiral H. T. Mayo, the Connecticut, Utah, and Minnesota, battleships, and the Des Moines, Chester, Dolphin, and San Francisco, cruisers, with 600 marines.

A Massing of 15,000 Men.

Rear Admiral Badger's force at Tampico, not including the vessels held in readiness, but not actually ordered to the scene, will comprise eleven battleships with many cruisers and auxiliaries, carrying in all about 15,000 men. A statement, issued by the Navy Department to-night, said:

The complements of the seven battleships of the Atlantic fleet which proceed to Tampico will total about 6,300 men. There will be 2,500 marines available at Tampico as a landing force, fully equipped for field service. There will be eleven battleships in Mexican waters, with a total complement of nearly 10,000 men.

Arkansas, flagship of Rear Admiral Badger.

Florida, flagship of Rear Admiral Fletcher.

Louisiana, flagship of Rear Admiral Boush.

Also Chester, Dolphin, San Francisco, Des Moines, Prairie, and Hancock, with a total landing force of 2,500 marines.

The Tacoma, now at Boston, has been ordered to Tampico, via Newport, to convey a draft of men in Mexican waters.

The gunboat Nashville, now at Monte Christi, Santo Domingo, has been ordered to Guantanamo to coal and thence to proceed to Tampico.

In addition the battleships Rhode Island, Nebraska, Virginia and Georgia are available, if needed, but as these vessels are now docking, it has not yet been decided whether they will join Admiral Badger's force. Also, the battleships Wyoming, Texas, New York, North Dakota, Delaware and Kansas are available if needed.

The Hancock will leave New Orleans for Tampico Wednesday morning with the first regiment of the expeditionary force of marines, fully equipped for field service. The Hancock will also carry a three-inch field battery and equipment.

The torpedo flotilla, Atlantic fleet at Pensacola, with the flagship Birmingham and tender Dixie, have been directed to hold themselves in readiness for service in Mexican waters.

The order for the mobilization of the fleet, including all auxiliaries and the marine regiment at New Orleans, was issued in six minutes after the order was given by the Secretary of the Navy.

The hospital ship Solace is en route to Tampico from New Orleans. The Solace is fully equipped with the most modern hospital equipment.

The colliers Orion and Nereus are ready to proceed to Tampico.

The Ward liner Esperanza has been chartered by the Navy Department and has been placed at the disposal of Rear Admiral Fletcher at Vera Cruz for the accommodation of refugees at Tampico.

Ships That May Go.

The ships available for service in Mexican waters in a few days, which may also receive orders to proceed to Tampico, are located and described as follows:

Rhode Island—Battleship, Capt. Clarence S. Williams commanding, now at the Boston Navy Yard for repairs; displacement, 14,920 tons; main battery, 4½-inch guns; secondary battery, 8 eight-inch guns, 12 six-inch guns, and 12 three-inch guns; complement of officers and men, 905.

Nebraska—Battleship, Capt. George R. Evans commanding, also undergoing repairs at the Boston Navy Yard; displacement, 14,865 tons; main battery, 4 twelve-inch guns; secondary battery, 8 eight-inch guns, 12 six-inch guns, and 12 three-inch guns; complement of officers and men, 906.

Virginia—Battleship, Capt. John C. Leonard commanding, likewise at the Boston Navy Yard for repairs; displacement, 14,980 tons; main battery, 4 twelve-inch guns; secondary battery, 8 eight-inch guns, 12 six-inch guns, and 12 three-inch guns; complement of officers and men, 930.

Georgia—Battleship, Capt. Robert E. Coontz commanding, also at the Boston Navy Yard; displacement, 14,948 tons; main battery, 4 twelve-inch guns; secondary battery, 8 eight-inch guns, 12 six-inch guns, and 12 three-inch guns; complement of officers and men, 940.

Fourth Division—Lieut. Commander Stafford H. R. Doyle, Commander; Paulding, flagboat; Ammen, Lieut. Charles Belknap; Burrows, Lieut. Joseph F. Daniels; Paterson, Lieut. Harold R. Stark; Trippe, Lieut. Commander Frank D. Berrien.

Fifth Division—Lieut. Commander William N. Jeffers, Commander; Fanning, flagboat; Beale, Lieut. Charles T. Hutchinson, Jr.; Jenkins, Lieut. Commander John P. Jackson; Jarvis, Lieut. William F. Halsey; Jouett, Lieut. Rufus F. Zogbaum.

The reticence at the White House today concerning the reasons for the orders to the fleet and the exact character of the policy adopted by the President extended throughout the entire executive government.

One prominent official, however, who was asked if the President's action meant intervention, said that it meant that the United States Government had demanded reparation for the Tampico incident, and was prepared to take all the steps necessary to force the Mexican Government to comply with its demand.

It was gathered from what this official said that if President Huerta construed any forcible action by the United States as an act of war he would find this Government prepared to go to extremes.

Wilson Prepares to Use Force.

There is no reason to doubt that President Wilson intends to back up his demand by the actual use of force and not merely by a naval demonstration off Tampico. He asserted yesterday in positive terms, without qualification, that the salute demanded must be fired. Officers of the Government said tonight that the President had not changed his attitude since then.

It was the receipt early this morning of a dispatch from Mr. O'Shaughnessy stating that President Huerta had finally refused to grant a public and unconditional salute to the flag that the Administration became very active. The President and Secretary Bryan conferred for an hour at the White House with John Lind, personal representative of the President in Mexico. Mr. Lind is known to have held for some time the view that a more drastic policy should be pursued by the United States in dealing with Huerta. He is understood to have told the President and Secreary Bryan that Huerta would evade the issue just so long as the United States seemed disinclined to use force.

Mr. Lind is credited with having returned to Mexico imbued with the belief that while it was essential that Huerta should be out of the Presidency, the Administration's policy of "watchful waiting" had been a failure and more positive steps were necessary in order to bring about the restoration of normal conditions in the perturbed republic.

Immediately after the conference with Mr. Lind the President and Secretary Bryan entered the Cabinet meeting, which lasted two hours, during which the officials discussed the pros and cons and the possible consequences of sending the fleet as a warning to Huerta of the lengths to which the Washington Government was prepared to go to enforce its policy.

Rumors are current of differences of opinion in the Cabient over the action to be taken with regard to the Tampico incident. Three of the President's advisors are said to have opposed the use of force, but found themselves in a hopeless minority.

The prevailing opinion in the Cabinet was said to be that drastic action at this time was justified on the ground that, while the arrest of an American officer and enlisted men by Federal troops might not in itself be sufficient cause for a resort to force, it was the culmination of a series of indignities to which the United States Government and its citizens in Mexico have been subjected since the accession of Huerta to power.

Cabinet officers and others were insistent that no change in the general policy toward Mexico was imminent and that so far as possible the factions would be left to fight their battles, unhampered by American interference. It was stated by more than one official with emphasis that no other phases of the Mexican situation beyond the affront to the flag at Tampico were involved in the dispatch of the fleet, though officials admitted the strategic value of having so big a fighting force in proximity to a country, in which emergencies might arise at any time.

No direct statement of explanation of the developments of to-day was issued by the White House or State Department, the announcements from the Navy Department of naval orders furnishing the sole key to the situation.

"Action, not words," was the way a Cabinet officer described the answer of the United States to Huerta's unwillingness to fire a salute when demanded by the American Government.

Immediately after the Cabinet meeting adjourned Secretary Daniels issued his orders to the Atlantic fleet, and wireless messages flashed up and down the Atlantic Coast to put the fleet under steam for Tampico. It will be the largest fighting force the American Government has assembled for possible action since the Spanish-American war.

A copy of the naval orders issued by Secretary Daniels is understood to have been transmitted to Mr. O'Shaughnessy so that the Huerta Government might be informed of the course which the United States had adopted. It was said that there was no necessity of informing other foreign Governments unless a state of blockade was declared.

The hope was expressed by officials generally that the dispatch of the fleet would not lead to serious consequences and some predicted that Gen. Huerta would see the wisdom of satisfying the American demand and close the incident. All were careful to point out that negotiations with the Huerta Government had not ended, and that the way was still open to Gen. Huerta to make amends.

Huerta May Be Inviting Action.

There is a strong suspicion here, apparently based on hints that have dribbled into Washington from Mexican sources, that Gen. Huerta is glad of the opportunity to force President Wilson to take positive action against him. It has been asserted for several days that Huerta might seize the occasion to retire from the Presidency gracefully under plea that he had been compelled to do so by the hostile attitude of the great Government to the north.

But to-day the opinion was prevalent that Huerta, in compelling this Government to adopt a policy of force, had been actuated by the belief that the landing of American troops on Mexican soil would unite the contending factions in the republic for the purpose of fighting the United States, which would be represented as an invader determined to annex Mexico to this country.

The force of this argument by Huerta is not lost on officials here. There have been strong hints in the past that an American invasion of Mexico would be resented as much by the Constitutionalists under Carranza and Villa as by the Federal troops and the people of Southern Mexico, who are loyal to the Government headed by Huerta.

One suggestion advanced to-night was that, instead of taking measures of force, this Government might blockade Tampico, and possibly other Mexican ports, held by the Federals. Blockade is not necessarily a war measure. There is in diplomacy what is known as a "peaceful blockade," an example of which was afforded in the action of the Governments of Great Britain, Germany, and Italy toward Venezuela in 1902.

This was designated as a "peaceful blockade," and the United States Government was notified in advance that it would not be attended by bombardment or other positive hostile action. Circumstances, however, brought about a bombardment of Puerto Cabello, a Venezuelan town. The Venezuelan Government proclaimed that war had been begun by the three European nations, but none of these nations so characterized their concerted efforts.

Various succeeding steps were being disussed among naval officers to-day, and those familiar with precedents said there was no exact parallel in international law. It was pointed out by some that the United States might land marines and seize Tampico to obtain satisfaction for the incident, but this raised the question of whether an act of war would be involved.

The Washington Administration has pronounced itself on the subject of landing marines or marching armed forces into Mexico as regarding such acts in the nature of war, unless permission is given by the Government in control of the territory invaded. Inasmuch as no Government is recognized in Mexico, but a state of anarchy exists, the American Government may establish its own precedent in the case. It is not thought likely that, if marines were actually landed and the American flag taken ashore in satisfaction for the affront occasioned by the arrest of the marines, any further measure would be insisted upon. Some officials pointed out that the Huerta commander might not resist the landing of American marines. Should he consent to a peaceful landing of the marines it is likely that they would soon be withdrawn.

The American Government has landed marines in Santo Domingo and Nicaragua, but has held that permission was granted in each case. In Nicaragua American marines kept a railroad from falling into the hands of a rebellious force. Actual war or intervention could not be undertaken without authorization by Congress, and even the landing of marines has at times raised a question in the Senate, though it has led to no change in the attitude of the executive branch of the Government in constituting itself the judge of such cases.

Officials do not believe other foreign governments will send ships to Mexico in view of the American demonstration. The affair is regarded as one solely between the United States and the Huerta Government, and not involving any other foreign Government, though serious eventualities might cause European nations to seek further protection for their nationals. Diplomats here took an active interest in the developments and cabled their home governments the news as it appeared during the day.

While the general opinion of those best informed was that so serious a step as military intervention might not be required to force Huerta to yield from his position on the question of a salute, they recognized that to-day's developments carried the situation closer to real hostilities than it ever had been before during the three years of turmoil in Mexico.

President Calm and Serene.

President Wilson and members of the Cabinet went about their official duties as usual. The President was calm and serene. He took a long motor ride in the afternoon and remained in his study to-night. Inquiries for further information were pressed at the White House, but the President took the position that there was nothing further to announce or explain; that the American fleet had been affronted and that a demand for a salute in satisfaction had been made.

Though the President hopes the gravity of the situation will be removed by satisfactory action on the part of the Huerta Government, it is known that he has considered all phases and possibilities of the situation and is prepared to meet them with a firm hand.

Communication with Mr. O'Shaughnessy was practically constant during the day, but no messages were given out. The American Chargé's position in the Mexican capital, in view of the latest developments, was regarded by many here as particularly delicate.

There is considerable expectation that when President Huerta learns of the action of this Government in sending the main body of the Atlantic fleet to Tampico he will promptly hand passports to Mr. O'Shaughnessy.

While this action, which would mean that the agent, receiving the passports, must leave the country in which he was stationed, would not necessarily signify that a state of war exists, it is the usual prelude to a declaration or outbreak of hostilities. Many believe that if President Huerta handed Mr. O'Shaughnessy his passports that act would come close to causing conflict to begin.

While the navy was actively preparing, nothing was being done by the army. Two explanations for this were advanced: The desire that the Constitutionalists, who are in control of Northern Mexico, should not misinterpret the action, and the fact that the United States already had a big fighting force within striking distance of Mexico. Twelve thousand troops are at Texas City, and more thousands are spread along the border where they can be moved quickly.

The orders issued to the fleet created only mild excitement in the national capital outside of official circles. Newspapers ordered their representatives to Hampton Roads, and up to to-night the Navy Department had granted permission to twenty reporters and photographers to accompany the fleet on its cruise.

HOW TAMPICO 'INCIDENT' GREW

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Here is an outline of the various steps that have culminated in the orders to the Atlantic fleet to proceed to Tampico.

Last Thursday afternoon a steam whaleboat from the Dolphin, containing Assistant Paymaster Charles C. Coupp and a squad of bluejackets, all in uniform, was on its way from the Dolphin to another American war vessel, or from another vessel to the Dolphin. Finding that he did not have enough gasoline to enable him to reach his destination the engineer of the whaleboat ran ashore at Tampico, where Copp and some of the marines landed.

Copp and those accompanying him into town were taken into custody by Mexican soldiers and were paraded as prisoners through the town to the Federal garrison. Other Federal soldiers went to the place where the whaleboat was and arrested the enlisted men who had been left in charge of it. These also were escorted through the town as prisoners.

It has been asserted that the American flag of the whaleboat was taken away by the Mexican soldiers, but a high official of the Administration said this afternoon that he had seen no reference to such an ocurrence or any official disrespect.

Copp was told by the Mexican officers that he and his men had been arrested for landing on Mexican soil while in uniform. Statements that Copp and the marines wore side arms and were arrested because they carried weapons are not confirmed by officials here.

Copp and the bluejackets were held in custody several hours, and were then released in response to an emphatic demand from Rear Admiral Mayo.

The same afternoon Admiral Mayo demanded of the Mexican commandant at Tampico that an apology be made for the arrest of Copp and the bluejackets, and that, as repratalon for the indignity offered to the United States Government and its uniform, a national salute of twenty-one guns must be fired to the American flag. Admiral Mayo fixed 6 o'clock the next evening (April 10) as the limit of the time within which the apology and reparation must be made.

In the meantime a report of the incident had been made to the Government at Mexico City. When the news of Admiral Mayo's demand reached there word was sent immediately to Mr. O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé. Mr. O'Shaughnessy hurried to the Foreign Office, but could not find the Minister of Foreign Affairs. He then went to the palace. Whether he acted on his own initiative or because of advices from Admiral Mayo is not known, but Mr. O'Shaughnessy insisted to President Huerta that an apology and a salute must be made. President Huerta expressed regret over the incident, agreed that an apology should be made, and promised that the officer responsible for the arrest should be disciplined. The matter of salute was left for future consideration.

The original ultimatum of Admiral Mayo is said to have been modified so as to give the Mexican Government an additional twenty-four hours, or until 6 P. M. Saturday to salute the American flag. Before the expiration of this time Mr. O'Shaughnessy and Admiral Mayo had gotten into communication with Washington.

Secretary Bryan instructed Mr. O'Shaughnessy to insist on reparation but without reference to a time limit, and Admiral Mayo was informed that as the Tampico incident had become a subject of diplomatic negotiations, the period within which the reparation demanded should be furnished would be extended indefinitely.

While these negotiations were in progress, the United States Government made an urgent request of the Federal Government in Mexico City that the property of foreigners in Tampico should be respected during the fighting that was going on between the Federal troops and the attacking Constitutionalists and that it take every means to that end.

The response of the Mexican Government, sent by direction of President Huerta is said to have been couched in very frank, even rude terms. This Government was informed, in effect, that the Mexican Government would not, even if it could, protect the property of foreigners from the hostile fire that was being directed on the town.

The accusation was contained in this note that the condition of affairs at Tampico was due to the encouragement given by this Government to the Constitutionalists. This note was equivalent to telling the United States that American property at Tampico would not be respected because the Americans, through the action of their Government, had been placed on the same plane with the enemies of the Huerta Administration.

Wanted Exchange of Salutes.

After exchanges on the subject, President Wilson decided to back up Admiral Mayo's demand that a salute to the American Flag must be given by the Mexican Government as reparation for the Tampico indignity.

President Huerta promised that the apology should be forthcoming and also agreed that a salute would be given. But the Mexican executive objected to the firing of a national salute of twenty-one guns to the American Flag and suggested that the terms of the American demand be modified so that there should be an exchange of salutes between the Commander of the Dolphin and such Mexican fort or war vessel as might be designated to do its part in the ceremony. The officer, commanding the Dolphin, has the rank of Commander and would be entitled to a salute of only five guns.

This proposition was entirely unsatisfactory to the United States. Mr. O'Shaugnessy was instructed to insist on compliance with the original demand.

Early this morning the State Department received a communication from him, stating that the Mexican Government declined to give the national salute. This communication was the acute cause of the orders issued to Admiral Badger to proceed to Tampico at once with the fleet under his command.

ACTIVITY AT NAVY YARDS.

The Michigan to Sail from Philadelphia This Morning.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—The battleship Michigan at League Island today received official orders to join Rear Admiral Badger at Newport News immediately. She will leave the navy yard not later than noon to-morrow with a full crew and her regular complement of marines. Four other battleships of the Atlantic fleet, which are now at League Island, are momentarily expecting orders to sail for Tampico.

Official sailing orders were received by the Michigan at 5:30 this afternoon, but earlier in the day a message came from the Navy Department to prepare for sailing. When the order arrived the crew of 850 men, and as many others as could be pressed into service, were already swarming over the decks and in the holds of the giant fighter loading stores and making minor repairs.

Capt. W. S. Benson, commandant of the navy yard, was in communication with the Navy Department at Washington at intervals during the afternoon relative to vessels now at League Island.

NEWPORT, April 14.—Rush orders for all available ordinary seamen and coal passers at the naval training station to report for duty with the Atlantic Fleet came to-night from the Navy Department. These men will be sent on board the cruiser Tacoma, which is expected at any time from the Boston Navy Yard en route to Mexican waters. All the men the Tacoma can carry will be ready when she arrives.

If it had been necessary the transfer could have been made to-night at the station, so quickly was the order carried into effect by Capt. Roger Welles, commanding officer of the station, and his executive officer, Lieut. Commander Harry K. Cage.

PORTSMOUTH, Va., April 14.—The battleship New Hampshire suddenly suspended repair work this afternoon at the navy yard when news of the Mexican movement of the Atlantic battle fleet was received. Activity decidedly suggestive of war time was developed when the vessel received orders to prepare for the trip south.

To-night the crew is engaged in the all-night task of coaling the ship and putting stores aboard preparatory to getting away early in the morning. The New Hampshire came from Mexico only a few weeks ago to be overhauled.

By The Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 14.—The cruiser Tacoma was taking on ammunition at the Charlestown Navy Yard to-day preparatory to sailing for Savannah on Saturday. No later orders for her had been received this afternoon. The cruiser arrived here yesterday from Portsmouth, N. H., where she had been overhauled.

At the local navy yard it was said that nothing beyond the press dispatches bearing on the Mexican situation had been received from Washington.

CARRANZA NON-COMMITTAL

Will Make Known His Views on Flag Incident After Conference.

CHIHUAHUA, Mex., April 14.—Gen. Carranza, head of the Constitutionalist Government, said to-night:

"It would be improper for me to go into the Tampico matter without first consulting my chiefs and advisers, and I am not thoroughly informed as to the incident except as the reports have come from the border. Later I expect to prepare a statement that will set out my position. Until then I can only declare that the friendly relations existing between the United States and my Government continue."

Gen. Villa knows nothing of the Tampico incident yet. He is now rushing from San Pedro back to Torreon in a motor car and will come here for a conference with the first chief of the revolution which was postponed when it became a military necessity for Villa to take command in person at San Pedro against the Federals. A long message has been sent to him at Torreon and he will get the latest details by telegraph as soon as they are received. Villa will be brought to Chihuahua on a special train as soon as he arrives in Torreon and he and Carranza will go into the international phase of the present situation and decide as to their attitude.

BRITISH PRESS VIEWS.

Morning Post Thinks President May Be Glad Trouble Occurred.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, April 15.—The Daily Mail in an editorial says the dispatch of the American fleet to Tampico is a sign that the relations between President Wilson and Gen. Huerta are approaching the inevitable climax, and that the United States is on the very edge of armed intervention with all its incalculable consequences.

The Morning Post thinks it not unlikely that the dispatch of the fleet will create a situation which will render intervention inevitable. It suggests that President Wilson may be glad the incident occurred, since it gives him the opportunity of showing that his patience is not inexhaustible, and that he won't hesitate to act when he holds that action is justified by circumstances. The Post concludes:

"How the President can hope without intervention to secure the establishment of a Government in Mexico which will conform to the standards laid down by him it is difficult to see."

MRS. A. D. WHITE PROTESTS.

She Telegraphs President That the Day of the National Duello Is Past.

By Telegraph to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 14.—I have just sent the following telegram to President Wilson and would be glad to have you publish it. I would urge all truly patriotic Americans to telegraph Washington without delay in the same sense. Surely the day of the National duello is past.

To the President, Washington:

Does an American gentleman shoot the man who insults him? Not usually, in this generation, much less his wife and family. Shall we destroy many innocent Mexicans by bombarding Tampico, because an official bandit insults our flag? Nothing he can do, only what we do, can dishonor the American flag and Nation.

SENATORS APPLAUD SENDING OF FLEET

SOME FOR SEIZING A PORT

Borah Predicts That Our Flag Will Never Come Down in Mexico If It Now Goes Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—News of the mobilization of the fleet at Tampico was received with little less than enthusiasm in the Senate late this afternoon.

No Senator questioned the right of the United States to occupy Tampico or Vera Cruz as a step to enforce respect for the uniform, and all agreed that a firm course must be followed from now on. Many Senators of long experience and conservative judgment expressed the view that the ordering of the fleet to Tampico meant armed intervention, but this belief did not seem to lessen their satisfaction.

Democratic Senators have loyally supported the Administration in its policy of watchful waiting, but, like the Republicans, they have grown restive at the affronts put upon the United States by Federals and rebels alike.

There was little inclination to comment on the fact that stronger measures seemed to be in contemplation to enforce a matter of etiquette than were adopted as a result of the murdering of American and foreign residents in Mexico. One comment to-day was that the course now adopted should have been adopted months ago.

One member of the Committee on Foreign Relations pointed out that a salute was the accepted, if not the only, form of apology for an offense like that of the Mexican Colonel at Tampico. No apology was complete, he said, however profuse the verbal expressions might be, until the salute to the flag had been fired. He added that occupation of Mexican territory was fully within the rights of the United States, and suggested the prompt seizure of Vera Cruz as a port of greater significance than Tampico.

The strongest expression came from Senator Borah of Idaho, a Progressive Republican member of the Committee on Foreign Relations, who is regarded as a Presidential aspirant. Mr. Borah said:

"This looks very much like armed intervention. In that case, I can only say, if the flag of the United States is ever run up in Mexico it will never come down. This is the beginning of the march of the United States to the Panama Canal."

Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, said:

"I am glad to see this step to compel compliance with the Admiral's demand."

Senator Chilton of West Virginia, Chairman of the Committee on the Census, said:

Senator Lewis of Illinois commented:

"I am glad that this step has been taken. It will be good for the Mexicans to know that the demands of the United States are made seriously and must be observed."

Senator Kern of Indiana, the majority leader, remarked:

"The country is behind the President in this. The Administration and the country have been very patient, and their patience has lasted about as long as possible."

Senator Pomerene of Ohio, a member of the Committee on Foreign Relations, said:

"The President is fully advised on this matter, and I have every confidence in the wisdom and justice of his decision."

Senator Martine of New Jersey commented:

"No one thinks the President has ordered these ships to Tampico to start a Presbyterian Sunday school. I am opposed to war, but in this case I feel that the Administration is following a well-thought plan that is fully justified."

Senator Shively of Indiana, Acting Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, said:

"It looks very grave."

Senator Clark of Wyoming, a Republican lawyer, said:

"If the President had recognized Huerta long ago there would never have been any occasion for this demonstration."

Senator McCumber of North Dakota, a Republican member of the Committee on Foreign Relations, remarked:

"The firmness shown now should have been shown long ago."

Senator Overman of North Carolina said:

"I deem it proper that the Mexican commander should be made to understand and respect our demands."

News of the dispatch of the fleet to Mexican waters was received in the House of Representatives with general satisfaction. Representative Murdock of Kansas publicly proclaimed the news of Secretary Daniels's order, and there was a mild demonstration of approval.

The clerks prefer it.

In a certain bank located not more than, say, 100 miles from our factory, are perhaps twenty adding machines and one—only one—Ellis machine.

It is a curious circumstance that while many of the adding machines are idle the greater part of the day, the Ellis is as busy as it can be. The clerks don't seem to know why they prefer the Ellis, but that they use it more than any of the other machines is beyond question.

How long will it be before that bank buys another Ellis?

The Ellis is not an adding machine with a typewriter attachment, or a typewriter with an adding machine attachment. No! It is a fully equipped typewriter and a fully equipped adding machine in one.

Many of New York's biggest banks and department stores are using it. Ask them what they think of it.

"Use Formamint—if You Only Suspect Sore Throat"

YOU owe it to yourself—to those with whom you come in contact—to use Formamint even if you only suspect sore throat. This painful ailment—serious enough in itself—if unchecked very easily develops into something more dangerous.

Science has proven that the use of gargles in infectious germ diseases is of small value. Inasmuch as you "catch" sore throat by involuntary inhaling disease germs which lodge deep in the throat—you must use an agent that can reach and destroy the germs—and this gargles cannot do. But many physicians today know that there is an excellent scientific method of treating sore throat—and that is with

Wulfing's Formamint
THE GERM-KILLING THROAT TABLET

You simply suck the pleasant tasting tablet. It dissolves and mixes its powerful harmless germicide with the saliva—bathing the infected membranes continuously—destroying the germs—healing the inflamed surfaces and opening the way to quick recovery. Take Formamint if you even suspect sore throat—or when infection has already begun.

WARSHIP'S MEN HERE ANSWER HURRY CALL

The Louisiana's Signal Lights Flash Order to Officers and Sailors to Come Aboard.

SHE IS TO SAIL AT 11 O'CLOCK

Theatres, Hotels, and Restaurants Visited at Night in Search of Men on Shore Leave.

The battleship Louisiana, flagship of the Second Division of the Atlantic Fleet, will sail this morning at 11 o'clock from her anchorage in the North River on the first leg of its journey to Mexican waters, in response to the order issued by Secretary Daniels for a mobilization of warships at Tampico. Before the news of the decision by the Navy Department reached this city through press dispatches, the big battleship was the scene of activity, and residents in the neighborhood of West Eighty-sixth Street, near her anchorage, realized that something out of the ordinary was in the wind.

Late in the afternoon a boat was dropped over the side of the battleship and an officer hurried ashore. He carried a request to the police to send out a general alarm for the 300 members of the crew who were on shore leave. According to the police, he said the Louisiana was ordered to Mexico. The alarm went over the wires to Police Headquarters from the West Sixty-eighth Street Station.

Last night the Louisiana was a blaze of light, and a beehive of activity. At 7:50 o'clock the four great electric lights which "sound" the recall to duty were swung aloft. Rear Admiral Clifford J. Boush, commander of the Second Division, was on shore, and the signal for him to return, a single big electric light, was displayed from the foremast. A score of other lights blinked their messages to the men who were preparing the ship for sea. Now and then launches and small boats, the latter propelled by strong-backed sailors, could be seen, some bringing provisions from shore, others carrying the men who had been ashore on leave. That all were anxious to be away was evidenced by the enthusiasm with which they went about their tasks.

Hurry Call to Officers.

Several of the ship's officers were on shore leave and searching parties were sent after them bearing orders to return to their posts immediately. Hotels were paged and visits made to theatres. Ensign L. E. Lindsay was found at the Waldorf as he was about to sit down to dinner. He left his food untouched and hurried to the battleship. Paymaster R. K. Van Meter was traced to a theatre where he was enjoying a musical comedy with his wife. Surgeon C. E. Riggs was in the lobby of the Hotel Astor when the word reached him. Lieut. B. G. Barthalow, navigator, was in Washington. A telegram was sent to him and he replied that he would return by 8 o'clock this morning.

Because many of the sailors failed to put in an appearance well along in the evening an organized search of every police precinct in the city was ordered, restaurants, cafés, theatres being visited, and the announcement made that the men were wanted for instant duty.

With all this going on it didn't take long for the rumor to get about the city that the Mexican affair was about to reach a crisis, and a crowd was attracted to Riverside Drive to watch the preparations on board the battleship. Officers and sailors were questioned, but could give little information except that the call for duty had been sent out and that the ship would sail to-day as soon as she could be provisioned and her crew could be assembled.

Capt. J. H. Gibbons was in command of the ship last night. He has been detached from the ship and ordered to report for duty on board the battleship Utah. Capt. George H. Cooper has been ordered to take command of the Louisiana at Hampton Roads on the way to Tampico.

Only Ship Under Orders Here.

The Louisiana is the only one of the battleships in New York waters to be ordered to report to Rear Admiral Badger, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet. Other battleships at the Brooklyn Navy Yard may go later, but early this morning no order had been received.

The Louisiana is a second-line battleship of 16,000 tons. She has a crew of 40 officers and 900 men and carries 24 guns of over 4-inch bore, and 22 guns under 4-inch. She came to New York about two weeks ago after doing service in Mexican waters for three months. The northern trip was a sort of "recreation tour" for the men.

Among the officers ordered to report for duty last night were Lieut. Commanders R. W. McNeely and A. G. Howe; Lieuts. B. G. Barthalow, F. W. Sterling, R. F. Dillen, A. T. Church, and J. D. Smith; Ensigns A. T. Clay, Lorain Anderson, R. K. Awtrey, L. S. L. Pamperin, G. B. Ashe, A. H. Guthrie, J. C. Monfort, R. D. Moore, R. E. Schuirmann, L. H. Lewis, T. M. Searles, T. M. Shock, L. Wild, and J. L. Hill. W. G. Moore is chief gunner.

BIGGEST BATTLESHIP READY.

The New York Goes Into Commission in Brooklyn This Morning.

There was no disguising the fact that the New York Navy Yard was deeply stirred yesterday by the news of the order for the Atlantic Fleet to proceed to Tampico. At the office of the Commandant, Capt. Albert Gleaves, it was said that no official notification of the order had been received, but the press dispatches were read with the liveliest interest.

There are four big battleships, two of them attached to the Atlantic Fleet, docked at the navy yard, along with several smaller ships. When the order comes it will take only a few hours to get them ready for sailing. One of these is the superdreadnough New York, the biggest ship in the navy, which has been building at the navy yard in record time, and goes into commission this morning at 10:30 o'clock. Officers, builders, and crew all agreed that she was the finest piece of fighting mechanism afloat.

Outwardly, at least, the sailors were more deeply stirred yesterday than those in command when they heard that there was a chance for action. Among the questions they asked was whether the Louisiana, anchored in the North River off Seventy-ninth Street, had received orders, and they wanted to know what chance there was of the ships at the navy yard being called upon for service.

Here is a list of the vessels at the navy yard available for quick service:

Submarine G1; Lieut. Kenneth Whiting in command; third division.

Submarine G-2; Lieut. Ralph C. Needham in command; third division.

The Celtic, supply ship; Lieut. Commander John V. Kleemann in command; due to sail for Vera Cruz or Tampico on April 20; fleet auxiliary.

The New York Ready.

The Wyoming came to the Brooklyn Navy Yard recently for her annual overhauling and the time set for the completion of the work was July 1. Her tonnage is 26,000 and she carries thirty-seven guns. She was the flagship of Rear Admiral Badger until she came north for repairs.

The North Dakota, also undergoing repairs, was scheduled to be ready for service on April 18. Her tonnage is 20,000 tons and she carries twenty-four guns over 4-inch and four under 4-inch.

The New York has a tonnage of 27,000 tons. The original appropriation for her hull and machinery was $6,400,000, but completed she will have cost about $12,000,000. She carries ten 14-inch guns, twenty-one 5-inch guns, and five turret guns. It was intended to have her ready for service on May 1 just three years from the time the contract for her construction was made. The keel was laid on Sept. 1, 1911.

THE MEXICAN NAVY.

Cruiser Transports.

Progreso, 1907; 1,590 tons.

Gunboats.

Cruiser.

Transport.

Oaxaco and probably four other steamers, unarmed or nearly so.

For Harbor Service.

Independencia, 1874.
Libertad, 1874.

The Texas, which was built at Newport News, went into commission three weeks ago and came here to have some work done on her torpedo tubes and the sights on her guns. She is of the same tonnage as the New York and carries the same number of guns.

There is another battleship, the Ohio, at the Brooklyn Nevy Yard, but she has "gone into reserve" and is not attached to the Atlantic fleet. She is one of the older type battleships. She carried a crew of forty-five officers and 780 men. Most of her men have been assigned to the New York, and she will not be called upon for service except in some great emergency.

It was said at the navy yard yesterday that practically all of the ships there could be placed in service within from twenty-four to forty-eight hours. While the engines and other machinery of the New York have not been tested officially they have been tried out by the workmen and found to be in perfect condition. The ships there for repair are in good shape and can be placed in service quickly should the emergency arise. In fact, it was said, all of the ships were in such condition that they could go to sea as soon as they could get coal.

The ships attached to the Atlantic fleet, the Wyoming and North Dakota, because they are at the navy yards, are not directly affected by the general order of the Secretary of the Navy according to the way those in command at the yards understand the situation. That is why sailing orders were not issued immediately, as was the case with the Louisiana in the North River.

There was no change in the programme of the day's work at the navy yard. The workmen were kept on the regular eight-hour schedule, both on board the ships which were undergoing repairs and on board the New York. Had any order affecting the ships at the yard been received, it was said a twenty-four-hour schedule would have been enforced until the ships were sent away to service.

Not many of the 5,000 men comprising the crews of the ships at the navy yard were on hand yesterday when the report of a mobilization at Tampico became current, but they began to assemble quickly. They hurried to the yards in little groups, all anxious to hear if any orders had been received and most of them were hoping that they would be ordered to sail. They were able to learn nothing about the docks except the scraps of information they picked up from the newspapermen.

One sailor who had hurried back from Manhattan asked anxiously if the "war extras" the newsboys were selling were "fakes." He was told about the reports which had been received from Washington.

"Gee, is there any hope, do you suppose?" was his next question.

Then he started away, stopped, and, pointing to the superdreadnought New York, remarked: "Do you know what I think: I think she could blow up Mexico alone if she went down there."

That seemed to be about the way all of the men regarded the situation. A reporter talked with a score or more of them at the yard. Every one was anxious to see service, but most of them didn't believe there was much chance of serious trouble.

"You watch," said one: "there is going to be some of the tallest saluting done you ever heard of as soon as the news we have here reaches Mexico City. That bunch ain't going to monkey with us, you bet! No such good luck."

Fear They Won't be Called.

As evening wore on and no order to report for duty had gone forth, after the commandant's office had closed, the sailors wandered away, discouraged. Some of them sang a snatch or two of a song to cheer them up.

The general opinion at the navy yard was that the Secretary's order would affect only what were termed "available ships," or, in other words, ships which are now in sea service. The battleships and other ships at the various navy yards, which were being overhauled, it was thought, would not be disturbed unless some very pressing emergency arose. It was pointed out that there were more ships ready for service now than could be used to advantage if there was a war with Mexico.

BADGER TO SAIL AT DAWN.

Admiral with Vessels at Hampton Roads to Lead the Way South.

Special to The New York Times.

NORFOLK, Va., April 14.—It was definitely announced to-night that the battleships in Hampton Roads would sail at daybreak to-morrow morning for Tampico.

The ships in the Roads are the Arkansas, the temporary flagship of Rear Admiral Badger, the New Hampshire, the New Jersey, the Vermont, the dispatch boat Dolphin, and two or three torpedo boats. Other vessels of the Atlantic Fleet at New York, Boston, and Philadelphia, are all under orders to proceed south, under forced draft, to join Rear Admiral Badger's advance guard.

The order for mobilization en route and to sail at once was received this afternoon, and caused great activity at the local yard and in the town. Bargeloads of coal and supplies were rushed to the ships under orders, and the work was pushed with great dispatch throughout the afternoon and early evening. No effort was made to conceal the fact that the ships were under orders to sail, although Rear Admiral Badger and yard officials declined to comment on the orders. All shore leave was denied throughout the day, and men on leave were rounded up early in the afternoon. The officers expect to make a record run down the coast and across the gulf to Tampico. They are confident of reaching Tampico by Sunday or Monday morning. The mobilization will occur before entering Tampico's harbor.

It is also known that orders have been received at the Marine Barracks to have all available men and officers in readiness for immediate embarkation and service. Transports are being hurriedly inspected and prepared for service.

FITS INTO MILITARY PLANS.

Massing of Ships Would Help, if Intervention Proved Necessary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Besides putting the United States Government in a strong position to back up its demands for a salute to the Stars and Stripes, the naval display in force at Tampico would dovetail into the plans for any military campaign that would grow out of necessity for armed intervention in Mexico.

Should the present plan only go as far as a bombardment of the forts, or even the City of Tampico, for refusal to make the demanded salute, the force to be concentrated at Tampico will be stronger than necessary. The guns of the main batteries of the dreadnoughts are very powerful, and able to throw explosive shells into the Tampico forts from a distance beyond the range of the Mexican guns ashore.

But should the Administration decide to order the landing of marines and bluejackets to seize Tampico, pending developments, the large naval force ordered to Tampico would be required for the purpose of covering the landing.

There is every reason for the belief that Tampico, rather than Vera Cruz would become the main base of operations by the navy in co-operation with the army. The difficulty about the Vera Cruz route to the City of Mexico is the fact that there is the famous mountain pass at Maltrata, through which any armed force would have to move while going from the coast to the Mexican capital. It is a sort of pass of Thermopylae, which can be held by a small force against superior odds.

For Sam Houston, at San Antonio, Texas, is the main base for the quartermaster, commissary, ordnance and medical corps of the army, as well as the training camp. Galveston would be the point of embarkation for such troops, mainly infantry, as might be ordered into the campaign around Tampico. There are now about 12,000 American troops concentrated in the vicinity of Galveston. These are nearly all infantrymen. There are about 7,000 troops scattered along the Mexican border doing patrol duty. These are mainly cavalry, field artillery, engineers, and members of the signal corps. These are scattered from Laredo, Texas, to Nogales, Ariz.

Within striking distance of the Mexican border, therefore, is an available army force of about 19,000 men, leaving about 21,000 men in army posts throughout the country. The largest garrisons are at Galveston, San Antonio, Fort Sill, and Texas City.

The concentration points for any movement across the border would be Fort Bliss at El Paso, Fort Clark at Eagle Pass, and Fort McIntosh at Laredo, and possibly Fort Brown at Brownsville. These points all have good railroad facilities and it would not be difficult to move forward troops, stores, and ordnance rapidly from them.

President Taft's Administration worked out plans in detail which contemplated the calling out of 200,000 volunteers. In the event of war, following armed intervention, the Wilson Administration would undoubtedly do the same thing. Galveston and New Orleans would probably be the points of embarkation for many of the volunteers. Most of them, it is believed, would be sent through Laredo and Tampico as main bases, but when the campaign was well under way, it is believed that a strong force of volunteers would be concentrated at Vera Cruz.

HAS PLENTY OF TRANSPORTS.

Government Can Put Panama Vessels Into Service Quickly.

While there is no need for the Government to charter transports to carry troops or stores to Mexico at present inquiries made yesterday at the offices of the American steamship companies elicited the information that there were plenty of suitable vessels available for service.

The United States Government now has seventeen transports in commission, of which the greater number are engaged in carrying troops and stores between San Francisco and the Philippines.

The first call here would be made upon the steamers of the Panama Railroad and Steamship Company, which are owned by the Government. There are six of these ships, and they are all engaged in the passenger and freight service between New York and Colon. They are the Ancon, Colon, Cristobal, Panama, Allianca and Advance, and are in good condition, with ample space for troops, horses or stores. They have a speed of 13 to 15 knots.

Then come the steamships of the American Line, the St. Paul, St. Louis, New York and Philadelphia, which have a mail contract for $4 a mile out and home, which gives the Government a call on them in time of war.

In addition to these, the Government may charter the fourteen steamers of the Ward Line, the twelve serviceable freight steamers of the American-Hawaiian Line, the Porto Rico Line, Mallory, Clyde, Savannah, and Red D Lines.

PRECEDENTS FOR OUR DEMAND

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Examination of naval and diplomatic records shows several precedents for the action of the United States in demanding a salute to the flag as reparation for injury.

One instance of a salute to the flag as a means of non-pecuniary redress occurred sixty years ago at San Francisco. M. Dillon, the French Consul there, had been summoned as a witness by the Federal Court in connection with an indictment found against Señor del Valle, Mexican Consul at San Francisco, who was charged with violating the neutrality act of 1818 by enlisting or hiring persons to enlist in the service of the Mexican republic.

When the witnesses for the defense were called Dillon was not present. Under process he was brought into court, but argued through counsel that under the treaty of 1853 between the United States and France Consuls could not be compelled to be witnesses before the courts, and, moreover, the consular offices were inviolable. Dillon stated that the papers which he was directed to bring into court formed part of the archives of the consulate.

When the attachment was served on Dillon, he hauled down his consular flag. The case was taken up at Washington by the French Minister as involving gross disrespect to France. A long controversy between Secretary of State Marcy and the French Government followed. The fact that an attachment had been issued to bring Dillon into court was regarded by France as not only a contravention of the treaty, but also an offense under international law. It was argued that this disrespect was not purged by the release of Dillon from arrest.

Secretary Marcy, finding that the French Government continued to regard the attachment against Dillon as an attack on its honor, offered to compromise the matter by a salute to the French flag on a French man-of-war stopping at San Francisco. Count De Santiges, the French Minister at Washington, asked that when the consular flag was rehoisted at San Francisco it also should receive a salute. This was declined by Secretary Marcy.

Finally, in August, 1855, the French Government agreed to accept as sufficient satisfaction an expression of regret by the Government of the United States, coupled with the provision that "when a French national ship or squadron shall appear in the Harbor of San Francisco the United States authorities there, military or naval, will salute the national flag borne by such ship or squadron with a national salute at an hour to be specified and agreed on with the French naval commanding officer present, and the French ship or squadron whose flag is thus saluted will return the salute gun for gun."

Another precedent is found in the case of the salute to the Brazilian flag, following the seizure of the Confederate cruiser Florida by the United States warship Wachusett at Bahia, Brazil, on Oct. 7, 1864.

The Wachusett was in port when on Oct. 4 the Florida arrived from Teneriffe and asked permission to obtain provisions and coal and repair her boilers. The American Consul opposed her receiving any hospitality, but the authorities allowed forty-eight hours for provisions and further time for repairs, subject to an examination by a machinist. The Consul was said to have given a pledge for observance of neutrality by the Wachusett.

At dawn of Oct. 7, however, the Wachusett left her anchorage and approached the Florida, firing on her. The commander of the Brazilian naval division intervened and firing ceased, but soon afterward it was seen that the Florida was being towed out to sea by the Wachusett.

Secretary Seward on Dec. 26, 1864, replied to a protest from Brazil, saying that the President disavowed the proceedings at Bahia in that he would suspend the commander of the Wachusett and direct him to appear before a court-martial; that the Consul, as he admitted that he advised and invited the commander, would be dismissed, and that the flag of Brazil would receive from the United States Navy the honors customary in the intercourse of friendly maritime powers.

In the case of the Virginius, which was seized in 1873 by a Spanish gunboat, while flying the American flag and carrying arms to the Cuban insurgents, the reparation demanded by the United States included a salute to the flag. Such a salute was conceded by Spain, in case it should be found that the Virginius was at the time of her seizure entitled to fly the flag of the United States. Subsequently, when it was found by the Attorney General of the United States that the papers of the Virginius were obtained on a false affidavit of American ownership, the demand for a salute was dropped.

Text of Consolidated Bill.

A BILL TO SUPPLEMENT EXISTING LAWS AGAINST UNLAWFUL RESTRAINTS AND MONOPOLIES, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

That "anti-trust laws," as used herein, include the act entitled "an act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies," approved July second, eighteen hundred and ninety, Section Seventy-three to Seventy-seven inclusive, of an act entitled "an act to reduce taxation, to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," of August twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, an act entitled "an act to amend Sections Seventy-three and Seventy-six of the act of August twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, entitled "an act to reduce taxation, to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," approved February twelfth, nineteen hundred and thirteen; and also this act. "Commerce," as used herein, means trade or commerce among the several States and with foreign nations, or between the District of Columbia or any Territory of the United States and any State, Territory, or foreign nation, or within the District of Columbia or any Territory of the United States.

Section 2. That any person engaged in commerce who shall discriminate in price between different purchasers of commodities in the same or different sections of communities with the purpose or intent to thereby injure or destroy the business of a competitor, either of such purchaser or the seller, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the Court. Corporations shall be deemed persons within the meaning of this section, and when any corporation shall be guilty of a violation of this section the offense shall be deemed to be also that of individual Directors or other officers or employes of such corporation ordering or doing the prohibited act, and upon conviction they shall be punished as provided in this section: provided, that nothing herein contained shall prevent discrimination in price between purchasers of commodities on account of differences in the grade, quality or quantity of the commodity sold, or that makes only due allowance for difference in the cost of transportation: and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall prevent persons engaged in selling goods, wares, or merchandise in commerce, from selecting their own customers. It shall be unlawful for the owner or operator of any mine engaged in selling its production commerce to refuse arbitrarily to sell the same to a responsible person, firm, or corporation who applies to purchase.

Sec. 3. That any person engaged in commerce, who shall lease or make a sale of goods, wares, merchandise, machinery, supplies, or other commodities, or fix a price charged therefor, or discount from, or rebate upon such price, on the condition or understanding that the lessee or purchaser thereof shall not use or deal in the goods, wares, merchandise, machinery, supplies, or other commodities of a competitor or competitors of the lessor or seller, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court. Corporations shall be deemed persons within the meaning of this section, and when any corporation shall be guilty of a violation of this section, the offense shall be deemed to be also that of the individual Directors or other officers or employes of such corporations ordering or doing the prohibited acts, and upon conviction they shall be punished as provided in this section.

Suits for Damages.

Sec. 4. That any person, copartnership, association, or corporation, which shall be injured in his or its business or partnership by any person, copartnership, association, or corporation, by reason of anything forbidden by Section 2 or Section 3 of this act, may sue therefor in any District Court of the United States in the district in which the defendant resides, or is found, without respect to the amount in controversy, and shall recover threefold the damages by him or it sustained, and the cost of suit, including a reasonable attorney's fee.

Sec. 5. That whenever in any suit or proceeding in equity, brought by or on behalf of the United States under any of the anti-trust laws, there shall have been rendered a final judgment or decree to the effect that a defendant has or has not entered into a contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce, or has or has not monopolized, or attempted to monopolize, or combined with any person or persons to monopolize, any part of commerce, in violation of any of the anti-trust laws, said judgment or decree shall to the full extent to which such judgment or decree would constitute in any other proceedings an estoppel as between the Government and such defendant, constitute in favor of or against such defendant conclusive evidence of the same facts, and be conclusive as to the same issues of law in favor of or against any other party in any action or proceeding brought under or involving the provisions of any of the anti-trust laws. Whenever any suit or proceeding in equity is brought by or in behalf of the United States, under any of the anti-trust laws, the statute of limitations in respect of each and every private right of action, arising under such anti-trust laws, and based, in whole or in part, on any matter complained of in said suit or proceeding in equity, shall be suspended during the pendency of such suit or proceeding in equity.

Sec. 6. That nothing contained in the anti-trust laws shall be construed to forbid the existence and operation of fraternal, labor, consumers, agricultural, or horticultural organizations; orders or associations operating under the lodge system, instituted for the purposes of mutual help, and not having capital stock or conducted for profit, or to forbid or restrain individual members of such orders or associations from carrying out the legitimate objects of such associations.

Sec. 7. That no corporation engaged in commerce shall acquire, directly or indirectly, the whole, or any part, of the stock or other share capital of another corporation engaged also in commerce, where the effect of such acquisition is to eliminate or lessen competition between the corporation whose stock is so acquired and the corporation making the acquisition, or to create a monopoly of any line of trade in any section or community.

No corporation shall acquire directly or indirectly the whole or any part of the stock or other share capital of two or more corporations engaged in commerce, where the effect of such acquisition, or the use of such stock, by the voting or granting of proxies or otherwise, is to eliminate or lessen competition between such corporations, or any of them, whose stock or other share capital is so acquired, or to create a monopoly of any line of trade in any section or community.

Investments Exempted.

This section shall not apply to corporations purchasing such stock solely for investment, and not using the same by voting or otherwise to bring about, or attempting to bring about, the lessening of competition. Nor shall anything contained in this section prevent a corporation engaged in commerce from causing the formation of subsidiary corporations for the actual carrying on of their immediate lawful business, or the natural and legitimate branches thereof, or from owning and holding all, or a part of the stock of such subsidiary corporations, when the effect of such formation is not to eliminate or lessen competition.

Nothing contained in this section shall be held to affect or impair any right heretofore legally acquired: Provided, that nothing in this paragraph shall make legal stockholding relations between corporations when, and under such circumstanes, such relations constitute violations of the anti-trust law.

Nor shall anything herein contained be construed to prohibit any railroad corporation from aiding in the construction of branch or short line railroads so located as to become feeders to the main line of the company so aiding in such construction before acquiring or owning all or any part of the stock of such branch line, nor to prevent any railroad corporation from acquiring and owning all or any part of the stock of a branch or short line railroad constructed by an independent company where there is no substantial competition between the company owning the branch line so constructed and the company owning the main line acquiring the property or an interest therein, nor to prevent any railroad company from extending any of its lines.

A violation of this section shall be deemed a misdemeanor, and shall be punishable by a fine not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court, and any violation by a corporation shall be deemed to be also the offense of its individual officers or Directors, ordering, doing, or participating in the prohibited act, and upon conviction they shall be punished as herein provided.

Sec. 8. That from and after two years from the date of the approval of this act, no person who is a member of a partnership, or is a director or other officer of a corporation that is engaged in the business in whole or in part of producing or selling equipment, materials, or supplies to or in the construction or maintenance of railroads, or other common carriers engaged in commerce, shall act as a director or other officer or employee of any common carrier engaged in commerce, to which he, or such partnership or corporation, sells or leases directly or indirectly equipment materials, or supplies, or for which he, or such partnership or corporation, directly or indirectly, is engaged in the work of construction or maintenance; and after the expiration of said period, no person who is engaged as an individual, or who is a member of a partnership, or is a director, or other officer of a corporation which is engaged in the conduct of a bank or trust company, shall act as a director, or other officer or employee of any such common carrier, for which he, or such partnership, or bank, or trust company, acts, either separately or in connection with others, as agent in the disposal of, or is interested in the underwritting of, or from which he or such partnership, or bank or trust company, purchases, either separately, or in connection with others, issues or parts of issues of securities of such common carrier.

Controls Bank Directorates.

That from an after two years from date of the approval of this act no person shall at the same time be a director or other officer or employee of more than one bank, banking association, or trust company organized and operating under the laws of the United States, either of which has deposits, capital, surplus, and undivided profits aggregating more than $2,500,000; and no private banker, or person who is a director in any bank or trust company, organized and operating under the laws of a State, having deposits, capital, surplus, and undivided profits aggregating more than $2,500,000, shall be eligible to be a director in any bank or banking association organized and operating under the laws of the United States.

No bank, banking association, or trust company organized and doing business under the laws of the United States in any city or town of more than one hundred thousand inhabitants shall have as a director or other officer or employee any private banker or any director or other officer or employee of any other bank, banking association, or trust company located in the same place.

That from and after two years from the date of the approval of this act no person at the same time shall be a Director in any two or more corporations engaged in whole or part in commerce other than common carriers, subject to the act to regulate commerce approved February fourth, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, if such corporations are or shall have been heretofore by virtue of their business and location of operation, competitors, so that an elimination of competition by agreement between them would constitute a violation of any of the provisions of any of the anti-trust laws.

That any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of $100 a day for each day of the continuance of such violation, or by imprisonment for such period as the court may designate, not exceeding one year, or by both, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 9. That any suit, action, or proceeding under the anti-trust laws against a corporation may be brought not only in the judicial district whereof it is an inhabitant, but also in any district wherein it may be found.

Sec. 10. That subpoenas for witnesses who are required to attend a court of the United States in any judicial district in any case, civil or criminal, arising under the Federal anti-trust laws, may run into any other district.

Sec. 11. That whenever a corporation shall be guilty of the violation of any of the provisions of the anti-trust laws, the offense shall be deemed to be also that of the individual Directors, officers, and agents of such corporations authorizing, ordering or doing any of such prohibited acts, and upon conviction thereof they shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments in the discretion of the court.

Procedure of Litigation.

Sec. 12. That the several District Courts of the United States are hereby invested with jurisdiction to prevent and restrain violations of this act; and it shall be the duty of the several District Attorneys of the United States in their respective districts, under the direction of the Attorney General, to institute proceedings in equity to prevent and restrain such violations. Such proceedings may be by way of petition setting forth the case and praying that such violation shall be enjoined or otherwise prohibited. When the parties complained of shall have been duly notified of such petition, the court shall proceed as soon as may be, to the hearing and determination of the case; and pending such petition and before final decree the court may at any time make such temporary restraining order or prohibition as shall be deemed just in the premises. Whenever it shall appear to the court before which any such proceeding may be pending that the ends of justice require that other parties should be brought before the court, the court may cause them to be summoned whether they reside in the district in which the court is held or not, and subpoenas to that end may be served in any district by the Marshal thereof.

Sec. 13. That any person, firm, corporation, or association shall be entitled to sue for and have injunctive relief, in any court of the United States having jurisdiction over the parties, against threatened loss or damage by a violation of the anti-trust laws, when and under the same conditions and principles injunctive relief against threatened conduct that will cause loss or damage is granted by courts of equity, under the rules governing such proceedings, and upon the execution of proper bond against damages for an injunction improvidently granted and a showing that the danger of irreparable loss or damage is immediate, a preliminary injunction may issue: provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to entitle any person, firm, corporation, or association, except the United States, to bring equity for injunctive relief against any common carrier, subject to the provisions of the act to regulate commerce, approved February fourth, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, in respect of any matter subject to the regulation, supervision, or other jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Sec. 14. That no injunction whether interlocutory or permanent, in cases other than those described in Section two hundred and sixty-six of an act entitled "An act to codify, revise, and amend the laws relating to the judiciary," approved March third, nineteen hundred and eleven, shall be issued without previous notice and an opportunity to be heard on behalf of the parties to be enjoined, which notice, together with a copy of the bill of complaint or other pleading upon which the application for such injunction will be based, shall be served upon the parties sought to be enjoined a reasonable time in advance of such application. But if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court or Judge that immediate and irreparable injury is likely to occur to the property or a property right of the complaint, and that the given notice of the application or the delay incident thereto would probably permit the doing of the act sought to be restrained before notice could be served or hearing had thereon, the court or Judge may, in his discretion, issue a temporary restraining order without notice. Every such order shall be indorsed with the date and hour of issuance, shall be forthwith entered of record, shall define the injury, and state why it is irreparable, and why the order was granted without notice, and shall by its terms expire within such time after entry, not to exceed ten days, as the court or Judge may fix, unless within the time so fixed the order is extended or renewed for a like period, after notice to those previously served, if any, and for good cause shown and the reason for such extension shall be entered of record, and Section two hundred and sixty-three of the act entitled "An act to codify, revise, and amend the laws relating to the judiciary" approved March third, nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby repealed.

Sec. 15. That no restraining order or interlocutory order of injunction shall issue, except upon the giving of security by the applicant in such sum as the court or Judge may deem proper, conditioned upon the payment of such costs and damages as may be incurred or suffered by any party who may be found to have been wrongfully enjoined or restrained therein.

Reasons for Injunction Orders.

Sec. 16. That every order of injunction or restraining order shall set forth the reasons for the issuance of the same, shall be specified in terms, and shall describe in reasonable detail, and not by reference to the bill of complaint or other documents, the act or acts sought to be restrained, and shall be binding only upon the parties to the suit, their agents, servants, employes and attorneys, or those in active concert with them, and who shall, by personal service or otherwise, have received actual notice of the same.

Sec. 17. That no restraining order or injunction shall be granted by any court of the United States, or a Judge or the Judges thereof, in any case between an employer and employes, or between employers and employes, or between employes, or between persons employed and persons employment, involving, or growing out of, a dispute concerning terms or conditions of employment, unless necessary to prevent irreparable injury to property, or to a property right, of the party making the application, for which injury there is no adequate remedy at law, and such property or property right must be described with particularity in the application, which must be in writing and sworn to by the applicant, or by his agent or attorney.

And such restraining order or injunction shall prohibit any person or persons from terminating any relation of employment, or from ceasing to perform any work or labor or from recommending, advising, or persuading others by peaceful means so to do, or from attending at or near a house or place where any person resides or works or carries on a business or happens to be for the purpose of peacefully obtaining or communicating information, or of peacefully persuading any person to work or to abstain from working; or from ceasing to patronize or to employ any party to such dispute; or from recommending, advising, or persuading others by peaceful means so to do; or from paying or giving to, or withholding from, any person engaged in such dispute, any strike benefits or other moneys or things of value; or from peaceably assembling at any place in a lawful manner and for lawful purposes; or from doing any act or thing which might lawfully be done in the absence of such dispute by any party thereto.

Contempt Proceedings.

Sec. 18.—That any person who shall wilfully disobey any lawful writ, process, order, rule, decree, or command of any district court of the United States by doing any act or thing therein, or thereby forbidden to be done by him, if the act or thing so done by him be of such a character to constitute also a criminal offense under any statute of the United States, or at common law, shall be proceeded against for his said contempt as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 19.—That whenever it shall be made to appear to any District Court or Judge thereof, or to any Judge therein sitting, by the return of a proper officer on lawful process, or upon the affidavit of some credible person, or by information filed by any District Attorney, that there is reasonable ground to believe that any person has been guilty of such contempt, the court or Judge thereof, or any Judge therein sitting, may issue a rule requiring the said person so charged to show cause, upon a day certain why he should not be punished therefor, which rule, together with a copy of the affidavit or information, shall be served upon the person charged with sufficient promptness to enable him to prepare for and make return to the order at the time fixed therein. If upon or by such return, in the judgment of the court, the alleged contempt be not sufficiently purged, a trial shall be directed at a time and place fixed by the court: Provided, however, that if the accused, being a natural person, fail or refuse to make return to the rule to show cause, an attachment may issue against his person to compel an answer, and in case of his continued failure or refusal, or if, for any reason, it be impracticable to dispose of the matter on the return day, he may be required to give reasonable bail for his attendance at the trial and his submission to the final judgment of the court. Where the accused person is a body corporate, an attachment for the sequestration of its property may be issued upon like refusal or failure to answer.

In all cases within the purview of this act such trial may be by the court or, upon demand of the accused, by a jury; in which latter event the court may impanel a jury from the jurors there in attendance, or the court or the Judge thereof in chambers may cause a sufficient number of jurors to be selected and summoned, as provided by law, to attend at the time and place of trial, at which time a jury shall be selected and impaneled as upon a trial for misdemeanor, and such trial shall conform, as near as may be, to the practice in criminal cases prosecuted by indictment or upon information

If the accused be found guilty judgment shall be entered accordingly prescribing the punishment, either by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. Such fine shall be paid to the United States or to the complainant or other party injured by the act constituting the contempt, or may, where more than one is so damaged, be divided or apportioned among them as the court may direct; but in no case shall the fine to be paid to the United States exceed, in case the accused is a natural person, the sum of $1,000, nor shall such imprisonment exceed the term of six months.

Sec. 20. That the evidence taken upon the trail of any person so accused may be preserved by bill of exceptions, and any judgment or conviction may be reviewed upon writ of error in all respects as now provided by law in criminal cases, and may be affirmed, reversed, or modified as justice may require. Upon the granting of such writ of error execution of judgment shall be stayed, and the accused, if thereby sentenced to imprisonment, shall be admitted to bail in such reasonable sum as may be required by the court, or by any Justice, or any Judge of any District Court of the United States.

Sec. 21.—That nothing herein contained shall be construed to relate to contempts committed in the presence of the court, or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice, nor contempts committed in disobedience of any lawful writ, process, order, rule, decree, or command entered in any suit or action brought or prosecuted in the name of, or on behalf of, the United States, but the same and all other cases of contempt not specifically embraced within Section 18 of this act, may be punished in conformity to usages at law and in equity now prevailing.

Sec. 22.—That no proceeding for contempt shall be instituted against any person unless begun within one year from the date of the act complained of; nor shall any such proceeding be a bar to any criminal prosecution for the same act or acts; but nothing herein contained shall affect any proceedings in contempt pending at the time of the passage of this act.

UPHOLDS BRITAIN ON TOLLS QUESTION

NO QUESTION OF EXEMPTION

Prof. E. R. Johnson Tells Senate Committee Exemption Would Have No Effect on Freight Rates.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The Senate Committee on Interoceanic Canals today continued its hearings, which so far have inclined heavily in favor of repealing the tolls exemption clause of the Panama Canal act.

Henry White, who was Secretary of Embassy in London during the final negotiations leading up to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, told the committee that there was no suggestion in those negotiations nor in his own mind that the United States was reserving the right to grant special favors to its coastwise shipping.

"Lord Salisbury intimated," said Mr. White, "that the British Government would not, after due consideration of the question, refuse to modify such provisions of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty as stood in the way of making the canal, provided the ships of all nations should have the use thereof on equal terms—a condition which he strongly emphasized. The exemption of our coastwist shipping from the payment of tolls was never suggested to, nor by, any one connected with the negotiation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty in this country or in England.

"From the day I opened negotiations with Lord Salisbury for the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty until the ratification of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty the words 'all nations' and 'equal terms' were understood to refer to the United States as well as to all other nations, by every one of those, whether American or British, who had anything to do with the negotiations."

"Was there any suggestion that coastwise ships be treated differently from others?" asked Senator Simmons.

"No," said Mr. White, "all ships of all nations were included."

Prof. Emory R. Johnson of the University of Pennsylvania told the committee that the exemption would have little if any effect on freight rates, and that the repeal of exemption would impose no burden on American commerce.

"Personally," said Dr. Johnson, "I expect to see a great deal of the traffic from the Orient transshipped into American bottoms at Pacific ports so it can pass through the Panama Canal free of tolls. That of course will constitute a real discrimination against foreign ships in the overseas trade. In the same way I think there is nothing in the law to forbid an American ship from taking a cargo billed from New York to San Francisco through the canal, and then by rebilling the cargo, without transshipping it, proceed on to the Orient. That also would be a real discrimination."

"Wouldn't that be an evasion of the law and subject to penalty?" asked Senator Shields of Tennessee.

"I think it is an evasion," answered Dr. Johnson, "but I think it is perfectly legal."

"It is a palpable evasion, worse than violation," retorted Mr. Shields, "and no court in the country would fail to impose the full penalty, which is forfeiture of the ship and its cargo."

But Only in Cases Where Work Is as Good as Men's — Marriage Should End Women's Service.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 14.—The eagerly awaited fourth report of the Royal Commission on the Civil Service was issued to-night.

The Chairman of the commission is Lord Macdonnell, and the members include the Duke of Devonshire, Sir Kenneth Muir-Mackenzie, Sir Henry Primrose, Sir William Guy Granet, Philip Snowden, M. P., Miss Haldane, and Mrs. Streatfield.

The conditions of work of women civil servants receive special attention. The majority report recommends that with regard to women the present rule requiring the termination of service on marriage should remain. Where the character and conditions of work performed by women approach those of work by men, the pay of women should, it is stated, approximate that of the men, but in so far as the efficiency of men is higher the salaries of men should remain higher.

Women, it is recommended, should not be admitted to the highest class examinations, but when specially qualified should be eligible for particular posts in the highest class.

One of the bitterest complaints of civil servants has been the promotion of a favored few through influence without regard to merit. One recommendation of the report is that when by an act of patronage a person is appointed to a high administrative position in the civil service, and that person has not served the prescribed number of years in the public service, the appointing Minister should lay before Parliament a statement of the qualifications and previous career of that person.

The rule of promotion by merit should, it is stated, be made universal.

PHYSICIAN'S HEROIC END.

Dying of Disease Caught from Patient, He Prevents Epidemic.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, April 14.—Dr. Droba, Professor of Bacteriology at Cracow University, died to-day as the result of becoming infected with glanders while treating a man suffering from this disease.

The professor was constantly with the patient, being greatly interested in the case. He had nearly succeeded in curing him when he observed symptoms which led to the discovery that he himself had caught the disease.

Foreseeing that he must die, he took leave of his family and students, and gave strict orders for handling his corpse in order to prevent the possibility of its becoming a medium in spreading the fearful malady. In accordance with his instructions two coffins were prepared for him, the inner one being lined with turf.

Finally Prof. Droba passed away in great pain, which he bore heroically to the end.

PRAISE AMERICAN PLAY.

London Critics Like "Potash and Perlmutter"—Audience Delighted.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, April 15.—"Potash and Perlmutter" was produced at the Queen's Theatre here last night. It was received with unmistakable favor, and at the finish there was much enthusiasm.

The critics speak well of the play and the author's ability to present really interesting types studied from life.

The performance was given by a company which was mostly American. The play was admirably acted. Robert Lanard as Perlmutter, Augustus Yorke as Potash, Madeline Seymour as Ruth Golman, Matilda Cottrelly as Mrs. Potash, and Elsie Martin as Irma Potash all receive tributes from the critics.

Burns Treasure from New Zealand.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 14.—A manuscript found in the possession of a resident of Whangarei, in North New Zealand, has been proved by the Curator of the Burns Museum at Ayr to be either the original, or a copy in the poet's own handwriting, of the famous poem "Scots Wha Hae." Some years ago the Ayr Museum purchased a copy of the original manuscript, of which Burns is known to have made several, for $1,500.

HISTORIC MANSION BURNED.

Acton Burnell Hall, Near Shrewsbury, Entirely Destroyed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 14.—Acton Burnell Hall, near Shrewsbury, the historic seat of Sir Walter Smythe, Bart., was completely destroyed by fire to-day. It was a fine building of white freestone, the left wing of which contained a chapel built by French Benedictine monks, who came to England at the time of the French Revolution. The house stood in a beautiful wooded park.

The Smythe family has had its seat at Acton Burnell since the reign of Charles II. A few yards from the hall are the ruins of Acton Burnell Castle, where a Parliament was held in the year 1283 by King Edward I., on which occasion the Lords sat in the castle and the Commons in a barn.

Some pictures and many valuable treasures were destroyed by the fire, but a priceless collection of china was saved.

A SHAW PLAY MODIFIED.

Its Sanguinary Adjective Is Now In It Only Once.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, April 15.—The "sanguinary" element in the conversation of the women in George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion" has been modified, owing to the avalanche of hostile criticism.

When the offending word was put in the mouth of a flower girl it was greeted with roars of laughter, but when it was used later by a young society woman, who thought it the latest thing in the slang talk of the smart set, its repetition became odious.

Sir Herbert Tree defends the word "bloody." It is neither blasphemous nor indecent, he says, and he points out its frequent use in literature, for instance in Shakespeare, but he admits there was not much justification for its use on a second occasion in the play by Mr. Shaw.

Henry E. Dudeney, writing to The Daily Mail, points out the remarkable similarity of the plot of "Pygmalion" to Peregrine's adventure, as given in Smollett's "Peregrine Pickle," Volume 4, Chapter II. Mr. Shaw recently jocularly confessed that he was himself a plagiarist, mentioning Smollett, among other authors, as supplying him material for plots.

WINTERFELDT'S NEW POST.

Former New York Banker to Head National Bank fuer Deutschland.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 14.—Hans Winterfeldt, recently of Speyer & Co. of New York, has been elected Managing Director of the German National Bank in Berlin in succession to the late Julius Stern.

Mr. Winterfeldt was formerly a junior partner in the firm of Hallgarten & Co. of New York.

The National Bank für Deutschland is one of the leading institutions of its kind in the country, and the election of Mr. Winterfeldt is looked upon here as a tribute to American banking methods, although he himself is a native of Germany.

It is expected that the National Bank under its new Managing Director will cultivate especially close relations with the American market.

Mr. Wnterfeldt resigned from the firm of Speyer & Co. last Jan. 1 in order to go abroad, Mrs. Winterfeldt's health necessitating a change of climate.

ARMS CAME FROM HERE

But Destination of Rifles on the Fanny Is Still a Mystery.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, April 15.—A telegram to The Times from Berlin says the mystery of the arms on the steamship Fanny is not yet cleared up.

In view, however, of the seizure last week by the Irish customs authorities of American ammunition, it can be stated that the rifles on board the Fanny were Winchester rifles shipped in New York. Their nominal destination was Mexico.

The steamer went to Odessa, where the rifles were transshipped to Hamburg.

THE KAISER'S NEW MOTTO.

Emperor Does Not Want Praise for Simply Doing His Duty.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 14.—The Kaiser has adopted the following new motto:

> I prefer not to be praised by anybody when I simply act according to my conscience and carry out the commands which I should.

The motto was a saying of the famous Dutch Admiral De Ruyter. The Kaiser has had several copies of it framed and hung above his writing desk in his private study, in the royal yacht Hohenzollern, and in his various shooting boxes.

ASQUITH WELCOMED BACK IN COMMONS

Liberals and Nationalists Give Ovation to Premier When He Enters House.

THREAT OF LABOR REVOLT

Party Conference Passes Resolution Instructing Members to Act Independently of Liberals.

LONDON, April 14.—Premier Asquith received an ovation on his return to the House of Commons to-day after his re-election on his appointment as Secretary of State for War. His progress from the entrance of the chamber to the chair of the Speaker was accompanied by volleys of cheers from excited Ministerialist and Irish Nationalist members. The newly elected member for East Fife was "introduced" by Percy H. Illingworth and John W. Gulland.

At Bradford to-day a resolution instructing Labor members of Parliament to act independently of the Liberal Party was adopted by 233 votes to 78 at the closing session of the annual conference of the Independent Labor Party.

The resolution alco denounced "Cabinet rule, which involves the suppression of the rights of the private member adequately to voice the policy of his party, besides making impossible the free consideration of proposals which have not received the Cabinet hallmark." This rule was declared "inimical to good government."

In conclusion the resolution invites members of the Parliamentary Labor Party to vote on all issues brought before Parliament only in accordance with the principles for which the party stands.

It was pointed out that the forty Labor members in the House of Commons might have been in a position at any time to make precarious the life of the Government.

Another resolution, in favor of readmitting the Socialist Party to the ranks of the Labor Party, was defeated.

PLAGUE DEATH IN HAVANA.

Seventeen City Blocks Now Closed—Three May Be Burned Down.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, April 14.—Another Spaniard died of plague to-day, and the Government has closed seventeen city blocks in the commercial district. The inhabitants were not allowed to withdraw more than one change of clothing.

It is said the Government is considering buring the entire three blocks in which the cases occurred.

One hundred and fifty men were added to-day to the health forces within the plague zone, making the total employed in the extermination of rats 300.

WHY ENGLAND GETS ORDERS

Herr Ballin Discusses Shipbuilding and Other Contracts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 14.—"Our shipbuilding prices are cheaper, our delivery times are more reliable than those of British shipyards, and the quality of our workmanship is in every respect on a par with Great Britain's best."

This statement is contained in a striking article on Germany's industrial and financial outlook contributed to the Lokal-Anzeiger by Director General Ballin of the Hamburg-American Company. He makes it the text of a vigorous plea for the more lively participation by German bankers in loans to foreign Governments, declaring that the wiser and more generous policy of English and French bankers is chiefly responsible for the sending of important foreign orders for armaments, warships, harbor works, and railway materials almost without exception to those countries.

Herr Ballin particularly bemoans the fact that England, despite Germany's aforementioned advantages, "with minor exceptions invariably captures the shipbuilding orders of the whole world."

Herr Ballin alleges that in consequence of the deplorable labor conditions the leading English dockyards only reluctantly commit themselves to definite delivery dates.

Herr Ballin adds: "We seem to forget that our eternally expanding industry requires an eternally widening market. Our trade opportunities in foreign markets are all the time more gravely imperiled. I will not even speak of things now taking place in the Near East, but no two opinions can any longer prevail about the fact that we have already been thrown out of the most important districts there, even if we succeed in rescuing the remnant."

NAMES PLAY AFTER HIMSELF

Author of "Five Frankforters" Thus Hopes to Get Immortality.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 14.—Naming a play after himself as the best way of perpetuating his own fame is the novel method to which Karl Roessler, a young German dramatist, has resorted.

Roessler is the author of the play produced in New York not long ago called "The Five Frankforters." It was a great popular success in Germany, but failed to immortalize its author's name, which the public entirely forgot. Herr Roessler decided that his next production should remedy this, and named it "Roesselsprung," a chess expression, which means "knight's move" and the first syllable of which bears a close phonetic resemblance to his surname.

The comedy had its premiere at the Lessing Theatre last night. The reviews do not indicate that it is likely to preserve Herr Roessler from oblivion.

THORNTON MINGLES WITH THE TRIPPERS

F. W. Whitridge Impressed by the Manner in Which the British Lines Handle Heavy Traffic.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, April 15.—H. W. Thornton, the Great Eastern Railway's new American manager, has taken advantage of the Easter holidays to mix with holidaymakers who have traveled on the Great Eastern Line. He said to a reporter:

"I thought I would go out among the crowd to one or two of your most popular places and see for myself how London workers enjoyed themselves, and get a few hints at first hand of your national characteristics free of workshops and office.

"My trip began from here, and I went to Chingford by train. Apparently all London was going to Chingford with the full intent of having a good time. They had it, and so did I. I went into Epping Forest with the rest of the multitude, mixed among them, enjoyed their enjoyments, and felt quite at home."

Among the enjoyments of the day Mr. Thornton had what he described as a "truly British lunch" of cold meats, pickles, and ale.

Mr. Thornton afterward traveled to Southend, another popular resort on his railway, and found the people enjoying themselves much after the manner of New York crowds on a national holiday. He said:

"What impressed me as much as anything was the free and easy good temper and sobriety. I had a long day, all full of entertainment, and from early morning until dark I never came across a single intoxicated person. It did me good."

F. W. Whitridge, President of the Third Avenue Railroad of New York, who is now in London, has some complimentary things to say about English railways. Speaking to a Daily Mail reporter, he said:

"Your express services are as nearly perfect as they can be in comfort and in punctuality. I was enormously impressed by the way in which you handle heavy traffic. We have nothing in the United States approaching your workmen's service at Liverpool Street Station, London, yet you manage it without the least confusion.

"I was impressed also by the civility and helpfulness of all your officials. In France and Italy you get civility by paying for it. In the United States you get it if your known positions demands it, but in England everybody gets it. Your system of porters is excellent, and a sixpenny (12 cent) tip always seems to excite gratitude. A 10-cent tip in New York would excite bad language.

"In some parts of the United States we are starting your porter system. Unlike most Americans, I prefer your system of handling personal baggage to ours. Ours is better in theory. We hand over the baggage and receive a check for it, and the railway does the rest. The only drawback is that when you want your baggage back again in a hurry you are lucky if you get it."

M'CALL CRITICISES MITCHEL FOR VETO

Mayor's Action on Subway Bill Will Please Contractors, Says Service Board Head.

PRESENT LAW A HANDICAP

Authority to Do Construction Work Badly Needed — Must Have Estimate Board's Approval.

Chairman McCall of the Public Service Commission issued yesterday a statement criticising Mayor Mitchel's veto of the bill, passed at the request of the commission, authorizing it to undertake, with the assent of the Board of Estimate, subway construction work and to purchase goods to the value of $25,000, also with the assent of the board. This measure was advocated at Albany by Travis H. Whitney, Secretary of the commission, and was passed in the last days of the session.

"Mayor Mitchel's veto of the commission's bill," said Chairman McCall, "will be very pleasing to the Contractors' Association. So far as I know the only opposition to this bill, either in Albany or before the Mayor, was by a representative of that association, who denounced it because it provided for 'municipal construction.'

"As the law now stands, all work in connection with rapid transit, no matter how trivial, must be by contract, and such contract, no matter how trivial in amount, must be submitted to the Board of Estimate for its approval. The act provides that where there is an emergency, dangerous to life and property, or where the amount involved does not exceed $10,000, the commission need not obtain competitive bids as prescribed by the act. The work, however, must be done by contract.

"The proposed bill had four provisions, two of which apparently aroused no opposition. One of the other provisions raised the amount from $10,000 to $25,000 of contracts which might be awarded without formal competitive bidding. The other provision allowed the commission to employ laborers, buy plant and materials, with which to do construction and to do the work itself. This provision was regarded as important, as when the dual system contracts are approaching completion some contractor may fall down on his contracts, and it may be necessary for the commission, instead of making new plans and advertising for new bids, to jump in and complete the work directly. Almost every department of the city has the right to do its own work directly.

When the statement of Chairman McCall was called to the attention of the Mayor, he said that he had not noticed that the contractors were opposed to the bill. His vetoing it was the result of a conference with Controller Prendergast and President McAneny, who had agreed with him that the amendment to the present law was inadvisable.

MORE SUBWAY BIDS OPENED.

Engineers Face a Problem in B. R. T. Canal Street Line.

Under Canal Street the Public Service Commission has designed a station in connection with the new B. R. T. subway system, which will be one of the important transfer points of the city. When the B. R. T. lines have been reorganized to take in the Manhattan subways, the Manhattan Bridge will take about half the trains which now cross the Brooklyn Bridge, and in particular will carry such important trains as those to Brighton Beach and Coney Island

As the Manhattan Bridge line comes into Canal Street it will run beneath the present loop line under Centre Street, which is operated by the B. R. T., and the present Interborough subway under Lafayette Street, and will make a physical connection with the new B. R. T. Broadway line. It is now proposed to construct on this Canal Street line one long station, connecting at the west with the Canal Street station of the loop line, which is already one of the busiest stations in Manhattan.

This will mean that by means of this station passengers may transfer from the loop line to the Broadway line, or vice versa, without paying another fare. As the new crosstown line will have to be constructed at a great depth to pass beneath the two existing subways, and as the ground is of a treacherous nature, being a filling in of the old Collect pond and swamp which once existed here, the commission has permitted the contractors to send in bids, to be opened on May 12, according to two different methods of construction.

Bids were opened yesterday by the commission for the construction of Section I of the B. R. T.'s Broadway subway, which runs from Trinity Place and Morris Street through Whitehall Street to South Street. There were eight bidders, of whom, according to unofficial figures, the three lowest were Booth & Flinn, Limited, with $2,056,000; the Underpinning and Foundation Company, with $2,160,000, and the Degnon Contracting Company, with $2,173,000. The contract will probably be awarded to Booth & Flinn, Limited, a newcomer in subway work. It is an old-established Philadelphia firm, with an office at 3,785 Broadway.

MRS. BOGGS STARTS SUIT.

Demands $100,000 from Brothers-in-Law for Alienation.

Mrs. Constance H. Boggs, Countess le Tourneux, who recently attempted to set up at Garden City a conservatory of music and art, began a $100,000 suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against her brothers-in-law, John G. Boggs and Robert M. Boggs, whom she charges with having alienated the affections of her husband, Lewis D. Boggs. Mrs. Boggs says that she was married in February, 1912, and lived happily with her husband until last November, when his brothers enticed him away from her.

Mrs. Boggs is a daughter of Dr. Alexander Henry, a well-known evangelist, who was associated with Moody and Sankey. He died several years ago. Her husband is secretary of the Society of Cincinnati, and is a nephew of Rear Admiral Charles Boggs. Her brothers-in-law are owners of the Hotel Laurelton and of the Longacre Hotel. They are grandsons of Robert Morris of revolutionary fame.

Last Opera Bills at Metropolitan.

HONOR JAMES SELIGMAN.

Relatives Congratulate Banker on Ninetieth Birthday Anniversary.

Surrounded by more than 100 children, grandchildren, nephews, nieces, sons-in-laws, and daughters-in-law, James Seligman, senior member of J. & W. Seligman & Co., bankers, celebrated his ninetieth birthday anniversary yesterday. Mr. Seligman appeared in motion pictures playing games with the youngest members of his house, and when those reels were unwound to his greatest enjoyment, he saw himself in another motion picture in which his partner was his faithful little Japanese spaniel, "Tweedie."

The birthday party was arranged by his daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Guggenheim. It began with a reception in Mrs. Guggenheim's home, the Bolkanhain Apartments, 763 Fifth Avenue. Gathered there were a few close friends of Mr. Seligman, including the Directors of Temple Emanu-El, 521 Fifth Avenue, of which the aged banker is President. Relatives and friends marched past Mr. Seligman, each pausing to grasp his hand and express congratulations.

The six living children and twelve grandchildren of Mr. Seligman were actors in the motion picture scenes, in which he also appeared. On one film he was shown in a game of pinochle with his little great-granddaughter, Margery Seligsberg, 9 years old, the granddaughter of De Witt J. Seligman. There were other pictures in which some of the younger children demonstrated modern dances, including the tango and the maxixe.

In the evening at the close of the birthday entertainment Mr. Seligman pronounced the day one of rare enjoyment. He felt richest, he said, in the possession of his children, his grandchildren and his great-grandchild. On their account he enjoyed living, and he was happiest when they were all together.

AMUNDSEN ASKS A GRANT

But It Is Doubtful if He Will Get It —Expedition May Be Given Up.

CHRISTIANIA, April 14.—Official announcement to-day of the postponement for a year of Capt. Roald Amundsen's expedition to the North Polar regions confirms Washington reports to that effect.

The Fram has been recalled to Christiania, and explorers are inclined to believe that the expedition will never be carried out.

The difficulty is in raising the $200,000 needed, for it caused the delay. Since Peary reached the north pole and Amundsen the south pole public interest in such expeditions appears to have cooled considerably, and it is assumed that it will not be possible to raise the money by subscription.

Capt. Amundsen is bitterly disappointed at the delay, as he had made careful arrangements for the expedition both materially and as regards personnel. He intends to ask the Norwegian Parliament, in view of the extraordinary predicament of the expedition, to make a grant of the necessary money to keep it alive, but, owing to the heavy State budget, it is doubtful whether he can obtain the appropriation. If his appeal to the Government fails, the Captain declares that the expedition will have to be given up.

TO MEET COL. ROOSEVELT.

Government of Amazonas State Will Send a Steamer.

RIO JANEIRO, April 14.—The Government of the State of Amazonas has arranged to send a steamer to meet Col. Roosevelt and his companions at the mouth of the Ariparana River, down which the ex-President is proceeding on his way to Manaos.

All the members of the second section of the Roosevelt expedition have arrived at Manaos in good health. They will continue on to Rio Janeiro. The Governor of the State of Amazonas gave a banquet in their honor to-day.

Among other things which the expedition discovered in the volcanic rock region at the source of the Paraguay River were the bones of gigantic animals.

MAJ. KOEHLER FOUND GUILTY

Dismissal of Army Officer Recommended by Military Court.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Major Benjamin M. Koehler of the Coast Artillery, who was tried by a general court-martial last month at Fort Terry, New York, was found guilty of immoral conduct and sentenced to dismissal from the army.

This announcement was made to-day by Secretary Garrison, who said the case had not yet been acted upon by War Department officials. It is subject to review by Judge Advocate General Crowder and the Chief of Staff of the army, as well as Secretary Garrison, before it goes to President Wilson, who has final jurisdiction.

U. S. COURT PROTECTS ORDNANCE SECRETS

MUST NOT REVEAL PROCESS

Brooklyn Firm Wanted to Let English Manufacturers Make the Bliss-Leavitt Torpedo.

Judge Van Vechten Veeder, in the United States District Court, Brooklyn, late yesterday afternoon made permanent a temporary injunction granted by him last July to the United States Government restraining the E. W. Bliss Company from revealing certain secrets of construction and operation of the so-called Bliss-Leavitt torpedo to representatives of Whitehead & Co., or to any other person or Government. Under a contract made in November, 1905, the Bliss Company, a Brooklyn concern, has been manufacturing torpedoes for the United States Government. In this and subsequent contracts there was a clause calling for secrecy as to any device the design for which was furnished to the manufacturing company by the Government.

In May last the Bliss Company desired to negotiate with Whitehead & Co. of England for the manufacture of the Bliss-Leavitt torpedo in certain foreign countries, but the plan was opposed by the Bureau of Ordnance. With a view to submitting the issue to judicial decision the Bliss Company notified the Secretary of the Navy of its intention to communicate the complete construction and operation of the existing type of the torpedo to a representative of Whitehead & Co. The Government thereupon brought the injunction suit.

The bill of complaint sets forth four devices claimed to have been furnished to the company by the Government in accordance with the restrictive terms of the contracts. These were the balanced turbine, ball bearings in the gyroscope, superheater and compound air regulator. In addition, the Government specified four other principles, designs and devices, which, although not furnished by the complainant in accordance with the terms of the contracts, were nevertheless claimed to have been suggested to the company by the Government. The disclosure of these, it was contended, was prohibited by the National Defense act of March 3, 1911.

In its defense the Bliss Company sets forth that the balanced turbine was invented by Lieut. Commander G. C. Davison, of the United States Navy, who had it patented here, in Great Britain, and in several other countries. The foreign patents were assigned by Davison to the Bliss Company. On these facts the company contended that the Government had waived the restrictive covenant or secrecy clause in the contracts. The balanced turbine having been published to the world by the issue of the patents, it would be inequitable, it was maintained, to forbid the defendant, the assignee of the foreign patents, the use of a device available to others.

In his decision Judge Veeder holds that the secrecy clause was an essential part of the contracts and that the company should be restrained from acting contrary to it.

"It seems necessary," says the court, "to point out that this suit is based upon contract, not upon patent infringement. The Government sues for an injunction to prevent the breach of a contract provision subject to no territorial limitation. The National Defense act is a criminal statute, and a court of equity ordinarily has no jurisdiction to enjoin the commission of a crime. If, in this instance, the exhibition and demonstration of the existing type of Bliss-Leavitt torpedo to any other person or Government be a violation of the penal statute, doubtless the defendant would be subject to prosecution for the offense. The complaint does not set up the violation of the penal statute as a separate cause of action, but avers that the defendant intends 'thereby to violate the laws of the United States,' and prays that the defendant be enjoined from violating such laws.

"But the court can grant reliefs in this case only to prevent a violation of the complainant's contract rights. Inasmuch as the existing type of torpedo contains devices the designs for which were furnished by the Government pursuant to contract, the complainant is entitled to a permanent injunction."

MAY AMEND FRANK MOTION.

Application to be Made To-morrow, with Execution Set for Friday.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 14.—It is understood that when the extraordinary motion for a new trial for Leo M. Frank is filed before Judge B. H. Hill next Thursday morning the attorneys for the prisoner will attempt to amend the motion. This would provoke a contest at the outset, as Solicitor Dorsey has said he would oppose any effort to amend the motion as served on him two weeks ago. Attorneys for Frank refuse to discuss the proposed amendment. When the extraordinary motion is presented to Judge Hill, if he entertains it and issues a rule nisi, setting a date for the hearing the same order will contain a stay of Frank's execution set for next Friday.

Detective W. J. Burns, who left Atlanta Saturday, is expected back tomorrow. It is possible he will make his report by Thursday, and that Frank's attorneys will attempt to make it a part of the motion for a new trial.

Dan Lehon, Burns' chief assistant, who is here working on the case, says no one has answered Burns' offer of $1,000 reward for evidence that Frank is morally abnormal.

"Except for the statement of Conley at the trial, parts of which are inconceivable,' says Lehon, "we have found not a scintilla of evidence to support that charge."

Frank continues cheerful. His mother, Mrs. Rudolph Frank, of Brooklyn, spent several hours with him in his cell to-day. She will remain here until her son's fate is decided.

DANIELS FOR NAVY PACKET.

Indorses Proposed South American Service and Asks Appropriation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels to-day enthusiastically indorsed the plan of Senator Weeks of Massachusetts for using lightly armed cruisers and the auxiliary ships of the navy for a commercial and mail line between the United States and South America. Mr. Weeks, in a resolution recently adopted by the Senate, pointed out that under present conditions a privately owned line could not hope to compete with foreign vessels and suggested that four light cruisers be used for the purpose. Mr. Daniels not only accepted the suggestion, but replied that he could place seventeen ships in the desired trade at a merely nominal cost.

Mr. Daniels named as suitable for this purpose the scout cruisers Chester and Salem; the fast cruisers, St. Louis, Charleston, Milwaukee, Columbia, and Minneapolis; the Panama Railroad steamers Ancon and Cristobal and the Buffalo, Rainbow, Hector, Mars, Vulcan, Cyclops, Neptune, and Nanshan. The cruisers could carry about twenty cabin passengers each and 150 tons of express parcels. The Buffalo, Rainbow, Ancon and Cristobal could take twenty passengers, and any kind of freight in bulk ranging from 3,000 to 11,000 tons. The Ancon and Cristobal could carry seventy-four first-class passengers and thirty-two in the steerage with 11,000 tons of freight. The naval colliers could carry only freight.

CHECKS 'N. G.'—GOLDFOGLE

He Tells the Court Why He Won't Retire as Corn's Lawyer.

Representative Henry M. Goldfogle told Justice Davis, in the Supreme Court, yesterday, that Robert Corn of the Corn Novelty Company had not paid him for legal services, and, therefore, he would oppose the motion to have another lawyer substituted in his place.

"I thought you got Corn off when he was charged with making false claims of loss to an insurance company," said Justice Davis.

"So I did, your Honor," said Mr. Goldfogle, "and he paid me for my services by giving me phony checks. The checks were N. G. at the bank."

An attorney representing Mr. Corn told the Justice that Mr. Goldfogle got $750 for his services, but he asked for $3,000. Then the lawyer said that besides the $750 check the other checks for $250 each were given to Mr. Goldfogle by Mr. Corn.

"The checks were not cashed," said Mr. Goldfogle.

Justice Davis looked puzzled for a moment. Then he said he would appoint a referee to investigate the matter.

P. D. CRAVATH HOME ON SOUND BURNS

THE LOSS MAY BE $250,000

Firemen at Locust Valley and Surrounding Towns Able to Do Nothing—Owner Now in Europe.

LOCUST VALLEY, L. I., April 14.—Fire, starting according to report, from defective insulation destroyed Veraton, the country home of Paul D. Cravath, overlooking Long Island Sound, on the outskirts of this village, between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon. The servants, working under the direction of Mrs. E. M. Cravath, a sister-in-law of Mr. Cravath, and Mrs. J. Parker Kirlin, a neighbor, saved the paintings, tapestries, and antique furniture on the ground fooor. They also saved the Horse Show trophies won by Mr. Cravath and his daughter, Vera, for whom the estate was named. In saving the valuables the servants, nine in number, who had been preparing the house for the occupancy of Mr. Cravath, who is in Europe, lost their own effects.

Blazing up suddenly, in the southeast wing, where the servants had their quarters, the fire swept through the whole length of the house, 250 feet, destroying the sixty-room two-and-a-half-story brick and stucco structure, which was one of the show places of Long Island.

On their arrival, the Locust Valley firemen found the fire was too much for them and summoned help from Oyster Bay, Glen Cove, and Roslyn. The reinforcing firemen could do little because of the scarcity of water and had to allow the fire to burn itself out.

Many families within an hour's ride by motor car, who were superintending the preparation of their country homes for occupancy, raced to Locust Valley to see the fire. A large company had gathered in time to see the roof fall into the blackened walls of the ruins. They recalled that five years ago, an earlier home of Mr. Cravath, standing on the same site, had burned down on a Spring afternoon.

Lighthouse Fund Is Growing.

The Lighthouse Fund Committee of the New York Association for the Blind will meet to-day at the home of Joseph H. Choate, 8 East Sixty-third Street. The following new donations were announced yesterday: Anonymous, $5,000; Henry C. Frick, $500; George G. Mason, $1,000 conditionally; Mrs. Francis L. Stetson, $500; H. J. W., $500; Mrs. Morris K. Jesup, $250; Mrs. Anna Woerishoffer, $500; Elkan Naumberg, $500; Arthur Williams, $500, and Samuel A. Walsh, $500.

Shakespeare Play by Students.

Special preparations have been made to celebrate in the public schools the 350th anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare. The Wadleigh High School will give a performance of "Midsummer Night's Dream" on April 23. On May 8, at 1 o'clock, another Wadleigh cast will present the same play. The best members of each cast will be combined to give pay performances on the evenings of May 15 and 16. Lectures on Shakespearean subjects will be delivered in various schools.

Harriette A. Clark's Portraits.

Harriette A. Clark will give an exhibition of thirty portrait miniatures at her studio, 135 East Sixty-sixth Street, to-day, from 11 A. M. to 6 P. M. The pictures are of persons well known in society.

A Letter with a Pretty Compliment

A little while ago we wrote to some of our customers whose names we had on our books, asking them why they had not recently purchased at our store.

Among the replies was the following letter, which we are glad to publish, with the permission of the writer.

It is evidence that we are surely—if slowly—approaching our ideal of the service that GIMBELS must always give.

GIMBEL BROTHERS,
Gentlemen:—

I was indeed surprised at your letter to-day, and wonder at such system in such a large business.

Let me say I do not remember giving any order through the mail, as I so seldom do so. I go myself as a rule. I am also pleased at the notice you take in so small a person as I am. It is all so funny. I hardly know how to answer, that you may fully understand me.

I am alone in the world, and my shopping seems small. Until about one year ago (I am going to be honest) I seldom went to your store, not finding much I liked and knowing better the older New York shops. But during the past year I have gotten little but what came from your house in New York. This Spring I have done more shopping than in the past, and all has been at Gimbel Brothers.

But your wagon does not come to Staten Island, but could you look over the books of Ward's Express you would find many of my checks. But they are made out in Ward's Express name, that being their rule.

Now, I want to say something to you. There is a young man—I wish I had his number, but I have lost it—he is, I should say, the youngest man in the ——— Department. Never have I met with such politeness and kindness as from him. He always remembers me by name. You know that is pleasant to a tired woman in our crowded stores. If busy, and I say "I'll wait," he gets me a chair and makes me as comfortable as possible.

I sit and notice him. He is the same to all old ladies like myself, or the working girl buying for dressmakers. I hope he will receive his reward. As I surely hope Gimbel Brothers will for their great politeness.

Sincerely,
MRS. ANNA DENNISON SMITH,
West Brighton, N. Y.

No One Would Throw Away 29 Dollars

But you might just as well do that as to wait after May 28th to buy the new

Encyclopaedia Britannica
(11th Edition)
"the book you need"

On May 28th the price of this great library will be advanced Twenty-Nine Dollars for the book in its cheapest binding.—It will be $50 more than it is now for the most expensive binding. This change in price is by instructions from the publishers of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the University Press of Cambridge, England. The price has already been advanced in England.

Your Opportunity—If You Are Prompt

You need the Britannica. The letters we can show you from those who have bought it, have tested it, are using it daily, and are delighted with their investment in this public-information-service, this efficiency-maker and time-saver

will persuade you. What other buyers in every part of the world and in every station of life are getting out of the Britannica, you can get out of it. It is meeting the needs of thousands of intelligent, ambitious, shrewd and very prudent buyers. It will meet yours.

At the present prices, this "Monarch of Encyclopaedias," containing a complete exposition of all human knowledge, is easily within the reach of every man and woman of moderate means. If it is not convenient to pay cash, you can purchase the Britannica upon these very liberal terms:

Only $5.00 Down and the 29 Vols. will be sent to you at once with the remainder to be paid month by month. This must appeal to you—it gives you an unequalled opportunity, soon to be discontinued, to possess this invaluable work—the greatest library of universal information ever issued, written and edited by great men for the service of a vast public.

The new Britannica has been printed again and again, in order to keep deliveries up to the demand. Upward of 60,000 sets have already been delivered to subscribers, and

We are prepared to take care promptly only of orders received at once

Inasmuch as the increase in prices—from $29 to $50, according to the style of binding—is inevitable, it is apparent that in two weeks or less, every one of the sets now on hand will have been sold and delivered.

This means to you—get your order for the Britannica in now. We shall continue to sell the work at the present low prices until May 28th —but no order can be accepted at present prices, unless received or post marked by that day.

Orders have been more than doubled since we began the publication of these final announcements in the newspapers of all the large cities of the United States. The demand in the remaining weeks of the Britannica sale at present prices cannot be anticipated. But, in their own interest, we urge upon all intending subscribers, to order at once, and thus

Save $29 to $50
Order the Britannica NOW!

The way to do it is to sign the attached order blank and send it in—a set of the Britannica will be reserved for you.

Here is a great book, made by great men, at an outlay of $1,500,000 before a single page was printed. It is conceded to be the finest, as well as the largest body of exact information ever put into book form. It consists of twenty-nine volumes, printed on genuine India paper, splendidly and substantially bound for daily use. In contains 44,000,000 words of text, more than 500,000 indexed facts, 41,000 separate articles that make 30,024 pages, 14,689 illustrations, 450 full plates, 329 maps.

WHITMAN SCOUTS CIROFICI'S STORY

him what had happened when he returned to his cell after he had conferred with the Warden and the others in the Principal Keeper's office.

Father Cashin was then asked whether any particular effort had been made by him, aside from his confidential relations as a priest, to get a statement from "Dago Frank." It had been charged by the attorney for Harry Vallon, who was named by "Dago Frank," along with "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie," as having shot Rosenthal, that the Catholic chaplain was extremely active, and that his activity was directed to aid Becker.

"I want to answer that question," said Father Cashin. "It is important. I want to say that I made no more effort in Frank Cirofici's case than is always made to get men to tell the truth. There is an element of uncertainty in many cases. The men always assert their innocence. They often assert that frame-ups convicted them, and that evidence which was excluded at their trials would have materially aided them.

"In a case of this kind, which does excite so much public interest and in which there has been so much seeming animosity displayed on both sides, it is of vital importance that the truth shall be known in order that the public mind can be appeased and that the action of the courts can be vindicated and that the Governor may know that his upholding of the action of the courts was fully justified.

"I feel that it is my duty as a Catholic priest to instruct and persuade the condemned to tell the truth. I do not mean by this that I would instruct or persuade any man to make any statement which would betray or implicate others unless an injustice were being done to others and unless some person or persons were suffering unjustly because of untold facts.

"I have no particular desire to aid or incriminate any particular person. My sole object is to get at the truth."

"Does this apply to Becker?" he was asked.

"Assuredly," he replied. "If I were convinced that Becker were innocent I would be glad to aid in every honorable way to establish his innocence. On the other hand, if he be guilty I think he should pay the penalty."

"How about Hans Schmidt?" he was asked.

"The same applies to him. I know very well what has been said with regard to the Catholic Church and the defense of Schmidt, but before the law Hans Schmidt is no different from any other culprit.

"I will tell you about the efforts to get Frank Cirofici to make a statement," continued the chaplain. "I will tell everything except that to which I am bound to secrecy as between a priest and a communicant. This is the first time that I have talked about this affair.

Didn't Expect Cirofici to Talk.

"I wanted Frank to make a confession for the sake of justice, but I did not expect a confession even at the last. The final efforts were begun last Sunday morning, when Frank's mother and sister came to the prison to plead with him. Frank could be not prevailed upon. He said it was of no use to try any more; that he would say nothing.

"'It's no use,' he said; 'it wouldn't be believed, any way.'

"He feared the consequences of a confession. He said that reprisals would be sure to follow. He was not worried about himself, he said, but about his family. He referred to the stabbing of 'Bridgey' Webber and to the killing of 'Spanish Louie.' He cited those as examples of reprisals that followed 'squeals.' He also mentioned bomb explosions, and told how members of his family would be unable to hold positions anywhere if he told about any one.

"When Frank's mother and sister could do nothing, they came to my house in Ossining. That was just after noon on Sunday. They wanted to go to the Governor and make a last appeal. I told them that I thought it would be useless, and that it would only mean another harrowing situation for both the Governor and them. I advised against the trip, but the mother insisted that she and her daughter must go. She would never be able to rest peaceably, she said, if she left a single stone unturned in her fight to free her son.

"So mother and daughter left for Albany. They were delayed there and the trip came to naught. At 7:30 P. M. on Sunday Frank's younger sister, Anna, and his brother, Paul, came to the prison. They wanted to see Frank. The Warden was disinclined to let them see Frank, desiring to have them wait until the mother and sister returned from Albany. When it was found, however, that they could not return until about 4 o'clock the next morning the Warden let Anna and Paul see Frank. No efforts were made at this time, however, to get a confession.

"Between 9:30 and midnight on Sunday there were some negotiations with Albany, as has been reported. I cannot tell, of course, what was said, but a wire was kept open to the prison from Supt. Riley's office, as I understood it.

Feared Harm to His Family.

"From 9:30 to midnight I was with Frank and I continued to urge him to make a statement and thus clear up the situation. I told him that if any persons were wrongly accused it was his duty to make it known. I told him that his statement might be of advantage to him if it could be corroborated. I made no promises, of course. I discussed with him his fears and tried to get him to see that the protecting power of the law was greater than the system which he feared. But his fears held him, fears for his family.

"'I'd be better off dead even if I am innocent the way things stand,' he said. 'I am doing this for my mother.'

"I told him that I didn't want him to go to his death with a lie on his lips; that he owed it to himself and to society to tell what he knew. I urged him to clear any one who might be wrongly accused. But he would not yield, and I rested from 12:30 to 3:45 o'clock, when I again went to his cell. I went right into his cell as I had always done, and began to plead with him. The question then arose as to whether he should say his last farewell to his mother and sister in his cell. It was decided that it would be best for him and for the other gunmen to take him to the principal keeper's office. Frank snatched at the opportunity.

"Frank was taken out at 4:40 A. M., and met his mother and sister in the principal keeper's office. They pleaded with him. He took his sister by one hand and his mother by another and said: 'You know I can't say anything because I am afraid for you and for you.' His sister is a wonderful woman. Whatever was accomplished was due to her. She told Frank that he had associated with bad people so long that he could not understand how good people acted. Finally she made the winning appeal. I remember her words. 'Frank,' she said, 'you were brought to what you are to-day by disobeying your mother. Do what your mother says to-day, do it, Frank. Obey her now.'

Shouted Out Confession.

"This was at about 4:50, and the Warden had not yet come in. Instantly this appeal took effect, and Frank shouted out in one breath:

"'I didn't do the shooting. The men who fired the shots were Gyp, Louie, and Vallon.'

"Just then the Warden came into the office and Frank was asked to repeat what he had said. He did repeat it, verbatim. I wanted him to say it before the Warden, because I could not qualify as a witness. The Warden then began to ask him questions. The first question was 'Were you at the shooting?' Frank smiled, he actually smiled as he said: 'Why, no, Warden, I was five miles away at the time.' He followed this up by briefly telling the story which he had told on the stand, the story which he used as an alibi.

"It was suggested that a stenographer be called, but the Warden said he would take it down himself. The Warden went out for paper, and while he was out of the room Frank began talking without any prompting whatever. He volunteered this statement:

"'I had nothing to do with the shooting, and, so far as I know, Becker had nothing to do with the case. It was the result of a gambler's fight which had been going on for fifteen years.'

"He talked fast and kept right on. He told of some differences which had existed between Jack Rose and Rosenthal in the Hesper Club. He spoke of raids, and mentioned a number of places. He mentioned one place in particular. It was on Fourth Street. I don't remember whether he said it belonged to Rosenthal or 'Dollar John.' I think it was 'Dollar John.' He mentioned both names in connection with the raids.

Warden Took No Notes.

"The Warden came back just then with paper and Frank repeated what he had said. But the Warden took no notes. Frank spoke so fast and no one tried to stop him.

"He was next asked this question: 'Did you know anything about a plan to kill Rosenthal?'

"He replied: 'No, I was at Webber's and knew something was coming off, but I didn't know what it was. Rose, Vallon, and Schepps got me from my flat in an automobile. At Forty-second Street and Sixth Avenue, near Webber's place, I saw "Dollar John," Sam Paul, and Webber standing together. We went down stairs and I gave an excuse to the boys that I wanted to go uptown and see Gene Gordon. I didn't go to the scene of the shooting.'

"The other things which he said, as I remember them, were these: That the story which Shapiro told to Deputy Commissioner Dougherty was true, and that he had told some lies on the stand to save the other three gunmen. He referred particularly to his testimony that he had seen Louie pack a trunk. In his confession he said that he had not seen Louie pack a trunk, which implied, of course, that Louie was not in Frank's flat after the murder, as the gunmen had testified.

"When all of this had come out I personally asked Frank this question:

"'Frank, can you corroborate what you have said?'

"He replied by shrugging his shoulders, and then he said: 'I don't know.'"

"Dago Frank" was taken back into his cell at 5:05 o'clock and was told by Warden Clancy that there was no hope for him from Albany. He had no conversation with the other gunmen after that except when he bid them "good-bye" on his way to the electric chair. According to Father Cashin, he seemed resigned to his fate.

Mr. Whitman let it be known in the afternoon that he had no faith in that part of the "confession" which sought to exonerate ex-Lieut. Becker. Mr. Whitman also believes that "Dago Frank" was present when the shots were fired, and that he concocted the story of the trip to Harlem to get his sweetheart out of the West 125th Street Police Station. The trial records, it was pointed out, showed that the girl was not bailed out until an hour after the Rosenthal murder. Taxicab slips and the testimony of those in the station house indicated that it was 3 A. M. when "Dago Frank" arrived there.

The District Attorney also scouted the assertion in the confession that Vallon fired some of the shots. Vallon is regarded at the District Attorney's office as a man totally lacking in the courage needed to handle a revolver, or engage in an active gun raid with himself as a principal actor.

The sole effect of the publication of Warden Clancy's notes, according to Mr. Whitman, has been to convince the public that the gunmen were guilty and that no injustice was done in their execution.

To Move for Trial To-day.

When Mr. Whitman left his office he said he saw no reason to change his plan to appear before Justice Seabury this morning with a request that the date for a second trial for Becker be set for the first Monday or the first Tuesday in May. Mr. Whitman will ask that a special panel of 200 talesmen be furnished from which to draw a jury, and that his first business, after the names are furnished, will be to look up the records of each man named. He expects to get just as intelligent a jury for the second trial as he had for the first, and he has no doubt that the outcome will be the same.

At the second trial of Becker, Rose and Vallon will be used as witnesses by the District Attorney, according to the present plan, but it is doubtful whether any use will be made of Schepps. Even if "Dago Frank" had lived after making his so-called confession, his testimony would not have been available, according to the view taken at the District Attorney's office, for the reason that his evidence would only have been hearsay and so of no value.

While Mr. Whitman was preparing to ask Justice Seabury to set a date for the second Becker trial there was a persistent rumor about the Criminal Court Building that assistants of Mr. Whitman were at work upon a plan to bring criminal prosecutions for perjury against some of the witnesses who were used last Saturday in the final effort before Justice Goff to obtain a new trial for the gunmen.

While these rumors were spreading in the Criminal Court Building Joseph A. Shay, counsel for Becker, was holding a conference with his client in the Tombs. He emerged from this conference with a formal statement written out, to the effect that he had withdrawn from the case and would not represent Becker at the second trial.

Why Lawyer Shay Withdraws.

The reason given by Lawyer Shay for his withdrawal was that Police Lieut. John Becker, brother of the indicted man, had been too active in seeing men who proposed to sell him evidence. Mr. Shay was careful in the statement to point out that he did not have anything to do with these offers, except that once he had a detective see one of the would-be evidence vendors.

The statement of Lawyer Shay did not make any impression upon the District Attorney's office. It was stated that Martin T. Manton of the law firm of Cockran & Manton, would succeed Mr. Shay, and would continue to have Mr. Shay's fullest co-operation until such time as he had mastered all the details of the Becker defense.

"It was John Becker who discovered Dresner, Burwell, and Kalmonson," said Lawyer Shay, "and I refused to have anything to do with those men. John Becker, since his brother's conviction, has been lending an ear to any one, listening to the wildest of stories, and forgetting in his zeal that he might easily be 'framed up' by the persons who pretended anxiety to help him. It was he who took those men to ex-Judge Wahle for use in the effort to obtain a new trial.

"Mr. Whitman understands that I wanted to conduct the trials in a clean manner. Charley and Mrs. Becker urged me not to withdraw, but I believe the conduct of John Becker is likely to hurt his brother's case and I want no part in it.

"I threatened to withdraw as early as May 12 last, when I heard that John Becker was lending an ear to men who were known to be unreliable. Of course, he is Charley's brother and thinks everything he does is for the best, but he had an absolute lack of judgment and has been indiscreet. It has got on my nerves to have people call up for weeks and weeks, saying, 'I've got something.' I have been side-stepping these people, but it has been a hard thing to do."

Mr. Shay said he had been obliged to go to Mr. Whitman to straighten out some of the difficulties into which John Becker got him.

Except Mr. Shay, the only person Becker saw yesterday was his wife, who called shortly after Mr. Shay's departure and remained with her husband several hours. She said on departing that he was much dejected because of his lawyer's decision to abandon the case.

Mr. Manton had a long interview with Becker last Wednesday, and since that time has been making a study of the case. He called up the District Attorney's office on the telephone yesterday and obtained information about some minor features of the case. It is expected that he will try to obtain a postponement of the date Mr. Whitman will ask to have set for the trial on the ground that he cannot prepare the defense in so short a period.

MARY CIROFICI'S VERSION.

Sister of "Dago Frank" Tells Story of Confession.

Mary Cirofici, sister of "Dago Frank," welcomed reporters to the family home at 360 East 184th Street yesterday at 1 P. M. and gave her version of what occurred in Sing Sing Prison during her brother's last hours. While Miss Cirofici was telling the story the body of her brother lay in a darkened front room with twenty or more sympathetic neighbors gathered around it.

Miss Cirofici said she wanted to tell all she could remember of her brother's final words, since Warden Clancy had noted down what he could remember and her version might in some details supplement his. Her married sister and her brother Paul supported Miss Cirofici while she talked, but she broke down several times, and finally had to drop the narrative, with a promise that she would take it up again to-day when she felt stronger.

"My mother and I left our house at 7 o'clock Sunday morning," she said, "and we saw Frank at 9 o'clock, after having arrived at Ossining at 8:20 o'clock. Frank did not break down at that time. He smiled, and said to us, 'Don't cry. I am going to tell you just how I feel.' He then told us he had become a Roman Catholic and had received the last sacrament.

"He said to us, 'I am ready to go to my Maker. I am glad I am going.' We said to him, 'Frank, do not leave us with something on your heart. Tell us all you have to tell. Don't hide anything.' He replied, 'Mamma, I could talk, but I won't. I die an innocent man. What I know I know from hearsay. Some of the things I have heard I believe, and some I don't. Why should I tal kand send others to their death? If I should get out of here it would mean my death, anyway, and that death would not be the holy one which I am going to have. They would get me on the street when I would not be prepared to go to my death.

"I said to him, 'Go to your death, brother; we believe you are innocent. We prefer that you go to your God pure.'

"He said to me, 'Mary, will you go to the Governor?' A look of amazement crossed my face. I thought that he desired me to see the Governor to plead for him. Before I had time to speak Frank said, laying his hands on my shoulders: 'No, I don't want you to plead, but just take a message to the Governor. Tell Gov. Glynn that I want him to know that I am innocent. Tell him that I could talk, but that I won't. Tell him that I am reconciled to my fate. I'll go to my God, but I won't talk.'

"He tore himself away from mother and me. We did not cry, but in our hearts it was terrible. We left for Albany immediately. At 4 o'clock we arrived in the Capital city and met a friend—a Roman Catholic priest who I will not name."

Paul Cirofici interrupted with an exclamation that it would be best to tell everything, but his sister shook her head and cautioned him to keep quiet.

"We called the Governor's mansion on the telephone," she continued, "and were told that the counsel of the Governor would come to see us. He did. We pleaded that we would like to see the Governor, but he answered that the Governor had decided not to see us. We told him it was a trust on our part to deliver the message declaring the innocence of Frank.

"He departed and another gentleman came out to see us. This gentleman thought it impossible that the Governor could arrange to see us.

"I do not complain. God is good. The works of the Lord are wonderful. I can't, however, understand why the Governor refused to take the message I left for my brother when he had but a few short hours to live.

"We returned to Sing Sing and obtained at 4 A. M. Monday a pass to see my brother. Warden Clancy said, 'It isn't all over yet. There is hope.' He said this with evident feeling. I don't know whether he said it just to cheer us, but it gave us hope. We went to the counsel chamber, where we met Frank. Frank came to us with a crucifix on his breast. He was smiling as before.

"He embraced us, and we said: 'If you have anything to tell us do it. Go to God innocent. Your hour has come!' He looked at us and said: 'I could have told you long ago. You and mother and brother have lived in a respectable home, among respectable people, and have lived respectable lives. I have had a taste of the other cold world, but if I told all the bodies of my family would be dismembered. They'd get me when I was drunk. I have no malice, not even for those who sent me here.'

"We asked him again if he had anything to divulge, and again he declared his innocence. He then looked us straight in the eye and said: 'Before going to my death two are guilty and another besides myself are innocent.'

"Father Cashin then said: 'Are you sure you have nothing else to say?' and Frank replied: 'Two shot. One man still walks the street. I have no malice toward him.' He lifted his head higher and turning to the father said with a steady voice: 'I don't believe Mr. Becker is involved. From what I heard in the death cell I cannot believe that he was one of the instigators, but that it was a gamblers' row.' He then said in effect that Mr. Becker was in a position to help them, the gamblers, but that he refused, and they decided to put him in a fix.

"I went to the death cell and met the other three prisoners. They kissed me, once for their mothers, and once for themselves. My last word to them was, 'God is here.' They were all calm. They embraced me as well as they could through the bars.

"I went back to the counsel chamber. Not long afterward Father Cashin came in. We believed that he had good news. We thought it was possible that a reprieve had been granted at the last moment. He extended his arms toward mother and I. 'Father,' she said, 'where is Frank?' The holy father replied, 'He has gone to his God.' We felt he had gone like a cherub, yes, like a martyr."

ONLY ONE CONFESSION.

That Prepared by Clancy and Published in The Times.

State Superintendent of Prisons Riley, talking over the telephone from Albany yesterday, denied that his authority backed the tale of a plot of the four gunmen, who were put to death on Monday, to kill "Dollar John" Langer. A story to this effect, purporting to be a part of the confession of Frank Cirofici, one of the gunmen, was printed yesterday. It does not agree with the version of the confession as given out by the Rev. Father William E. Cashin, the Catholic Chaplain at Sing Sing, who heard the confession.

Mr. Riley said that the version of the confession as printed in yesterday's TIMES was that which Warden Clancy prepared in Albany, and which he gave to the newspaper men. So far as is known, this is the version of the confession which was filed in the Superintendent of Prison's office. Supt. Riley said that after Warden Clancy had given out the formal statement of the confession—the one printed in THE TIMES—some newspaper men had questioned the Warden.

In answer to these questions, Mr. Riley said, the Warden had told of certain details of Cirofici's conversation which were not included in the formal statement, because the Warden did not consider them relevant to the Rosenthal case.

Mr. Riley said that "Dollar John" had been mentioned in this supplemental interview given out by Warden Clancy. He said that he could not vouch for the stories.

A denial also came from Albany of the report that Gov. Glynn had remained up until 4 A. M. Monday. He was waked by a telephone call from Mr. Riley, who transmitted the last request of Clancy for a stay.

TWO GUNMEN BURIED.

Services for "Gyp" and "Lefty Louie"—Big Crowds Attend.

With crowds of gaping, curious spectators in evidence, the funeral services of "Gyp the Blood" Horowitz and "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg were held yesterday afternoon, while the body of "Dago Frank" Cirofici was removed to the home of the dead gunman's mother, at 360 East 184th Street, to remain there until the funeral service is held at 8 o'clock this morning.

The funeral of Cirofici will be the last of the four, as "Whitey Lewis" was buried on Monday afternoon. The funeral this morning was arranged for an early hour especially that the family of Cirofici might avoid passing before great throngs, such as stood all yesterday afternoon in front of the Cirofici home. While the service is being held at the home there will be another service in the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, in East 189th Street. The interment will be in St. Raymond's Cemetery, Westchester.

The body of Cirofici was transferred last night, at the order of the family, from the plain box provided by the State to a handsome oak coffin with silver trimmings. Immediate friends of the family were welcomed to the family home, but two mounted policemen and two patrolmen were kept on duty to prevent others from entering.

The funeral service for "Gyp the Blood" Horowitz was held yesterday morning almost without mourners. When the body left the undertaking establishment at 208 Lexington Avenue there were no relatives present. A vehicle carrying Mrs. Horowitz, widow of the dead gunman, and two friends, fell in behind the hearse at Park Avenue and 116th Street. When the body was being lowered into the grave at Mount Zion Cemetery, at Maspeth, L. I., Mrs. Horowitz became hysterical, as she observed a freshly covered grave adjoining that of her husband, and was told that this was the grave of "Whitey Lewis." She threw herself on the ground and moaned until she had to be carried to the coach in which she had ridden to the cemetery. Hundred of persons crowded around the grave before it could be closed.

The funeral of "Lefty Louis" was held from a coffin-making establishment at 128 East Eighteenth Street. The dead man's father, brother, and wife were the only mourners present. There was a big crowd outside, however. Rabbi Kopfstein conducted the service, after which the body was taken to Mount Hebron Cemetery for burial.

Will There Be a Setback to American civilization? H. G. Wells fears so. In his just-published book, "Social Forces in England and America," he lays his finger on some of our weak spots. But neither does England escape him. He is her "devil's advocate," he says, "pleading against national overconfidence." But Wells always builds up more than he pulls down—listen to his prophecies of what a wonderful world we shall have when the Great State shall be inaugurated and science has poured out a few more surprises from her treasure-box. This Mr. Wells's new book, "Social Forces in England and America," contains all of his miscellaneous writings for the past five years.

MURPHY TAKEN BACK IN DEMOCRATIC CLUB

Foley and Plunkitt Also Restored to Membership by Governors.

SMITH SCORES O'DWYER

Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy is a full-fledged member of the National Democratic Club again. So is ex-Sheriff "Big Tom" Foley and ex-State Senator George Washington Plunkitt. The Board of Governors of the club, at its regular meeting last night, and after a little more than an hour's debate behind closed doors, restored the trio to the full enjoyment of all the privileges of members in good standing.

All three were expelled from the club at a meeting held on March 10, which broke up in a row which could be heard a block away.

Ostensibly their expulsion was for non-payment of dues, though in reality Mr. Murphy was expelled because his leadership was not to the liking of a certain element in the club. "Big Tom" Foley was thrown out because he was close to the Tammany boss, and the complaint against ex-Senator Plunkitt was of the same nature.

James E. Gaffney, one of Mr. Murphy's closest associates, both in politics and business, was expelled from the club at the March meeting, too. He was not restored at last night's meeting, because he had shown a decided disinclination toward coming back. Dr. Thomas Darlington, who was Chairman of the Tammany General Committee, was another man condemned to exile when the Governors met in March, presumably also because he was looked upon as being too close to Mr. Murphy. He was restored at a special meeting of the Board of Governors a week ago, following his appointment to a place on the new Compensation Commission by Gov. Glynn

It was hinted last night that Mr. Murphy's reinstatement may be followed by his resignation as a member of the club. In connection with this a member of the club said that should Mr. Murphy follow the advice of those who urged to him to resign after being vindicated, in all probability 175 members of the club would walk out of the club with him to show their resentment over the treatment to which the Tammany leader had been sujected.

The reinstatement of Mr. Murphy and the others was upon the motion of Capt. John P. Leo, one of the Board of Governors. The motion was seconded by Thomas F. Smith, Secretary of Tammany Hall, who is a Governor also. Capt. Leo. Mr. Smith, and Congressman Herman Metz of Brooklyn spoke in favor of restoring Mr. Murphy. Chief Judge Edward F. O'Dwyer of the City Court, President of the club and the Chairman of the Board of Governors, and John R. Dunlop, editor of an engineering journal, were the only opponents to the proposition. Both spoke against the motion, Judge O'Dwyer especially denouncing Mr. Murphy's leadership and the brand of Democracy of which he is the exponent.

"You are entitled to express your own opinion regarding Mr. Murphy," Mr. Smith retorted hotly. "But you have no right to speak for the club or for the Board of Governors, as will be shown here to-night. The universal opinion in the club and outside the club is that the expulsion of Mr. Murphy was a petty, spiteful action. I am not speaking for Mr. Murphy when I urge his restoration to membership. I do not know whether he wants to come back again."

Judge O'Dwyer resented the remarks of Mr. Smith. He called attention to the fact that the voters last Fall had shown unmistakably that they were of the same opinion as those in the club who did not approve of Mr. Murphy's leadershi

"Well," Mr. Smith broke in, "there were 234,000 who thought otherwise, for that number voted for the Tammany ticket, though Murphy was the principal issue in that campaign

"Let us get down to cases," Smith went on. "What Democratic leader in this city can boast, as Mr. Murphy can, that under his leadership two Democratic Governors have been elected, together with Democratic Legislatures and one entire set of State officials, with the sole exception of the Governor? What other Tammany leader can boast of having been instrumental in having Democratic Mayors succeed themselves for three terms? You are only raking up a lot of old stuff. While Mr. Murphy has been leader of Tammany Hall there have been Republican Governors, Republican Attorney Generals, hostile District Attorneys in this city and investigators galore, and yet nobody has got a thing on Mr. Murphy.

"It is not up to Judge O'Dwyer to say who shall be leader of Tammany Hall. That is up to the Democrats throughout the Assembly districts. They elect their leaders at the primaries and these leaders in turn elect the leader of Tammany Hall. It is up to us in justice not only to Mr. Murphy but to the club to reinstate him and make reparation for the shabby treatment to which he has been subjected."

Mr. Murphy's name was the first one to be voted on. Then followed Foley's and Plunkitt's. In each instance the vote was the same, 11 for reinstatement and 2 against. The two opposing votes were cast by Judge O'Dwyer and John R. Dunlop. Two members of the Board of Governors who were present refrained from voting. There are twenty-seven members on the board, but only fifteen attended the meeting last night. Here is the list of Governors who attended: Edward F. O'Dwyer, Herman Metz, William H. Jasper, Roger Foster, John W. Keller, Thomas F. Smith, John R. Dunlop, John B. Hasslacher, John M. Riehle, Harry Gallagher, Daniel F. Murphy, John P. Leo, Theodore W. Myers, Thomas F. Donnelly, and John J. Quinlan.

The absentees were William A. Clark, William Einstein, Stephen Farrelly, John F. O'Brien, Thomas L. Feitner, Alexander Konta, J. Lewis Lyon, William B. Anderson, Charles S. Guggenheimer, Richard Croker, Richard Croker, Jr., and William F. McCombs. It could not be learned who the two refraining from voting were.

Secretary Smith of Tammany Hall said after the meeting that checks for $25 for dues up to July 1 from Mr. Murphy, Mr. Foley and Mr. Plunkitt had been delivered to the Treasurer of the club yesterday, but that none of them had made application for reinstatement as required by the club rules when a member is dropped for non-payment of dues.

UNDERGOES 23 OPERATIONS.

Young Wife, a Victim of Cancer, Fails to Survive Twenty-fourth.

Within six years Mrs. Mary Steffen Wilson, 30 years old, wife of James W. Wilson of Rapelyea Avenue, Corona, underwent twenty-three operations. She died in the German Skin and Cancer Hospital, Manhattan, on Monday night, following the twenty-fourth operation.

It was said she was known to surgeons throughout the city, and was considered a remarkable patient. Her trouble was first caused by a fall. Her spinal column was injured, and she then underwent her first operation. A year later her son Rowland, who with her husband survives her, was born. A second and third and fourth operation followed quickly, and finally cancer developed.

The Second Year of the Cradle Spring Frame

In 1913 we brought out the Cradle Spring Frame as the crowning feature for that year of the

Indian Motocycle

But it was not only a 1913 improvement. It is a 1914 one as well. It will be a 1915—a 1916—a 1917 improvement, because it is a basic achievement.

Not an attachment, but a truly great piece of constructive engineering, the Cradle Spring Frame is a working out of absolute shock-absorbing and vibration-eliminating principles.

It is the superlative comfort feature of a world of motorcycles.

A BACTERIAL EVOLUTION

Chicago Pathologist Also Changes Morphological Characteristic of Bacteria by Environment.

Two important announcements were made to the members of the International Surgical Association at yesterday morning's session of the fourth congress, which is meeting at the Hotel Astor, during a discussion of ulcers of the stomach and duodenum. The first tended to show that these ulcers, which are comparatively common in persons of middle age, belong to the category of infections diseases, while the second positively indicates the evolutionary character of bacterial life.

The second announcement substantiates in a measure the report cabled from Europe the other day to the effect that a new infectious agent, producing a new disease, had been produced by the simple process of subjecting a known and well-defined bacterium to the action of ultra-violet rays. The morphological characteristics of the germ underwent an immediate change.

Dr. Arthur D. Bevan, Profesor of Surgery at the University of Chicago, made the announcement relative to the origin of gastric and duodenal ulcers. He said that his colleague, Dr. Edward C. Rosenau, who occupies the Chair of Pathology at the Chicago University and has a wide reputation as a research worker, had demonstrated that these ulcers could be caused by the injection of bacteria taken from other ulcers. The injections were made intravenously, that is, directly into the blood, whereupon the disease made its appearance at the usual sites of ulceration, both in the stomach and intestines of animals. The duodenum is that portion of the small intestine immediately contiguous to the stomach and is about twelve inches long. The stomach empties directly into it through the pyloric orifice. Ulcers of the stomach and duodenum are annoying, painful, and sometimes fatal. Their treatment offers at best a perplexing problem to both physician and surgeon.

Dr. Rosenau's Experiments.

It developed in the course of Dr. Bevan's remarks that Dr. Rosenau's experiments in creating ulcers by bacterial injection were based on logical deductions following an earlier and equally fascinating—to the scientific mind—series of experiments. He had taken certain strains of bacteria, that is, bacteria cultivated in a certain medium, and injected the germs into animals by the intravenous method. He found that endocarditis, or inflammation of the lining of the heart, followed. Invariably this strain of bacteria produced endocarditis.

Next, the investigator took the same variety of bacteria and cultivated them in a different medium. Some subtle change in product resulted, producing another strain, which, when injected into animals by the same method as before, produced inflammatory infectious lesions in the joints. The joint lesions also invariably followed the injection of this second strain.

Dr. Rosenau concluded that each strain produced possessed a selective or affinitive action for some distinctive type of tissue in the body. Proceeding on this theory, he isolated bacteria from the exudate of gastric and duodenal ulcers, cultivated them in suitable media, and set up diseased processes similar to those from which they were taken by the injection of a solution of the bacteria which he had isolated and cultivated. That is, he produced the pathological lesions by the injection of one particular strain of the bacteria taken from the ulcers, as will be shown later.

"Dr. Rosenau would say," Dr. Bevan remarked in conclusion, "that a particular strain of bacteria has a particular selective action for some particular tissue."

Dr. John B. Murphy of Chicago, who followed Dr. Bevan, corroborated the latter's statement and added enough information to indicate the evolutionary processes going on in bacterial life under the comparatively slight stimulus afforded by a change in environment.

Produces Different Lesions.

"Dr. Bevan," said Dr. Murphy, "took a single strain of streptococcus, cultivated it in different media, and produced different lesions by injecting the resulting strains. For instance, the streptococci when cultivated in a certain medium changed to diplococci, and when these were injected into an animal they produced pneumonia, and the original strain of streptococci was then cultivated in another medium. The resulting products were injected into other animals and produced ulcers of the stomach and duodenum."

Several papers were read on ulcers of the digestive tract, and the only session of the day was devoted to reading and discussing them.

Dr. F. de Quervain of Basel set forth in his paper the actual condition of the clinical and radiological diagnostic features of gastric and duodenal ulcer and the problems concerned therein. He asserted that apart from certain well-established facts there existed a great number of open and controversial questions. He discussed several of these, which were of a technical nature.

Dr. H. Hartmann and Dr. P. Lecène of Paris presented a joint paper in which they asserted that duodenal ulcer is more frequent than was supposed several years ago. In their opinion, however, its frequency has been exaggerated. They have found one ulcer of the duodenum to eight or ten of the stomach.

Cancer Possible Outcome.

They also found that about one-fifth of the cases of the callous ulcers of the stomach degenerate into cancer. "The importance of radioscopy and radiography in the diagnosis of gastric ulcers is to-day universally recognized," they asserted.

"The surgical treatment of gastric or duodenal ulcer," they continued, "must therefore not be opposed to the medical treatment. The first is only the frequently necessary complement of the second. The real results, observed at a lapse of time, of the medical treatment are far from being as good as was formerly supposed. Without speaking of serious complications, such as hemorrhage, perforation and stenosis, which are indisputably urgent surgical indications, we consider that all ulcers (gastric or duodenal,) showing resistance to medical treatment belong to the surgeon."

They described in detail several of the operative proceedures which are depended upon nowadays for the relief and cure of these ulcers.

Dr. William T. Mayo gave a historic review of the diagnosis and treatment of chronic ulcers of the stomach and duodenum, as observed and carried on in St. Mary's Hospital at Rochester, Minn., since 1893.

Dr. E. Payr of Leipsic reviewed the origin and pathology of the ulcers, so far as known, but none of these theories, he acknowledged, was sufficient to explain every case. He did not mention the theory which Dr. Rosenau has brought forward, which may explain these obscure cases.

Those who took part in the discussion of these papers were: Dr. Block of Copenhagen; Dr. Sonnenburg of Berlin; Dr. Kummell of Hamburg; Dr. Lambotte of Brussels; Dr. Ullmann of Vienna; Dr. Manninger of Budapest; Dr. Gautitano of Naples; Dr. Brunning of Giessen; Dr. Zahradmicky of Nemeky-Brod; Dr. Krynski of Warsaw, and Dr. Howard Lilienthal of New York.

Prof. Charles Willems of Ghent, President of the Association, and twenty-five noted Dutch and Russian surgeons, arrived yesterday on the Rotterdam. Among the new arrivals was Dr. Jan Schoemaker, head of the hospital at The Hague, who is one of the best-known surgeons in Europe. Dr. Schoemaker before he returns home will visit clinics in the chief cities between New York and Chicago.

Instead of holding the usual afternoon session, an adjournment was taken at noon until this morning, to give the visitors an opportunity to visit Mt. Sinai Hospital, where the system of management was explained to them by Dr. A. C. Gerster. Some of the foreign surgeons attended clinics at St. Luke's, Roosevelt, and the New York Hospitals.

Mrs. William T. Mayo entertained the wives of the visitors at luncheon at the Biltmore, and later they attended a matinée performance of "Peter Pan." All the members and their wives were the guests of the American Medical Association at a special performance at the Metropolitan Opera in the evening.

HOTEL MEN IN WAR ON PROHIBITIONISTS

NATIONWIDE POLL PLANNED

Mutual Benefit Organization, Also in Session, Favors Endowment Fund for Employes.

Prohibition vs. personal liberty, the advance in freight rates asked for by the railroads, the founding of an endowment fund for the benefit of hotel employes, and the "tipping evil" were the principal subjects of discussion and resolutions at the meetings yesterday at the Hotel Men's Mutual Benefit Association of the United States and Canada and the American Hotel Protective Association. The two organizations opened simultaneous conventions at the Waldorf-Astoria.

The hotel men took action favoring personal liberty as opposed to prohibition, an increase in freight rates, and the establishment of an employes' endowment fund. After much discussion by the Protective Association the consensus was that the tipping question could be solved better by the patrons of hotels than by the hotel proprietors, and no action was taken regarding it.

The meeting of the American Hotel Protective Association was called especially to consider the liquor question. Percy Andreae of Chicago opened the meeting with an address. He said the hotel men were "the housekeepers of the nation at large," and for that reason should be opposed to any attempted restriction of man's personal freedom in the home. He emphasized the necessity for action against the Prohibitionists.

"The question whether men shall continue to exercise the right they have enjoyed from time immemorial to drink alcoholic stimulants has, unfortunately, within recent years passed beyond the realm of opinion," he said, "and has become, at least on the part of those who take the negative side of this question, a matter of dogma pure and simple. You cannot argue with a man on a matter of creed or reason with him on a question of faith"

Mr. Andreae suggested that a poll on the question of prohibition be taken among the guests of every hotel in the country.

John C. Roth of the Great Northern Hotel, Chicago, introduced a resolution for the poll on the liquor question, and the appointment of a committee to take charge of balloting. A similar poll in all clubs and restaurants serving liquor in the United States was also asked for. The resolution was adopted unanimously while the members cheered.

Another resolution condemning the Hobson and Works Prohibition bills was passed unanimously, and resolutions to the same effect from the hotel associatians of forty States were read.

George C. Boldt of the Waldorf-Astoria made a short address on several topics, indorsing the action taken against prohibition and a move to establish an endowment fund for hotel employes. Mr. Boldt then introduced the resolution favoring an increase in railroad freight rates. It stated:

"Resolved, That the American Hotel Protective Association, an organization having upward of 900 members, coming from all sections of the country, in convention assembled, desires to give expression to its belief that a prompt advance in such rates would be not only an act of justice to the railroads, but also of large benefit to the entire business of the United States."

The Hotel Men's Mutual Benefit Association adopted a resolution authorizing a committee to formulate plans for the establishment of an endowment fund for hotel employes. It was suggested that the employes' endowment fund be supported by the employers, and that money owned by the association and not needed for other purposes be applied to the fund.

These officers of the association were elected: E. M. Tierney of the Arlington Hotel, Binghamton, N. Y., President; John C. Roth of the Great Northern Hotel, Chicago, Vice President, and J. K. Blatchford of Chicago, Secretary.

In the evening the hotel men and their families to the number of 600 gathered in the ballroom of the Waldorf for their thirty-fifth annual dinner. D. H. Knott, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee, was toastmaster. Simeon Ford sat at the right of George C. Boldt, and it took an hour's persuasion to make him speak. When he did, he gave advice to members in regard to their conduct on a prospective trip to Europe, and incidently expressed the opinion that the best job for a landlord was as skipper of an ocean liner.

"All boarders there must pay in advance," he said, "and if any of them puts up a kick it is mutiny on the high seas. I got my love of the ocean in Brooklyn, where I was born. Brooklyn is famous for me and Greenwood Cemetery. At heart I have always been a sailor, although I can't say as much for my liver."

Mr. Tierney, Robert E. Lee, secretary of the Mayor of Baltimore, and Mr. Boldt also spoke. Louis Seelbach, formerly President of the association, presented to Charles E. Gehring of the Hotel Register Record, a gold watch for getting the greatest number of members—fifty-nine—in the last year.

SHIFTS SIEGEL-VOGEL CASES

District Attorney's Action Transfers Them to Supreme Court.

The fourteen indictments returned last Thursday against Henry Siegel and Frank E. Vogel were taken yesterday by District Attorney Whitman to Justice Seabury, automatically transferring the cases from the Court of General Sessions to the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. Before the indictments were returned, the District Attorney said that his office was desirous of bringing the Siegel-Vogel cases to trial before June. It is believed now that Siegel and Vogel will be tried immediately after Charles Becker.

The time within which Siegel and Vogel may change their pleas to the indictments charging them with grand larceny and receiving bank deposits when insolvent has been extended several times, and the last extension granted expires to-day.

Judge Hough signed an order yesterday directing the receivers of the Siegel Stores, William A. Marble and John S. Sheppard, Jr., to accept a bid of $18,000 made by Gustave Baer for the accounts receivable of the Fourteenth Street Store. The inventories of the receivers as of March 14 showed that the accounts receivable totaled $75,931.70. The highest sealed bid for the accounts receivable was $9,000, and this figure was so small that Judge Hough ordered the receivers to revise their inventories and try to make collections on the accounts. At an expense of $125 a week the receivers were able to collect only $2,673.68.

EMBASSY RENT IS TRIPLED.

LONDON, April 14. — Walter Hines Page, the United States Ambassador, received a notification to-day that the rent of the offices in Victoria Street, Westminster, which the American Embassy has occupied for nearly thirty years, is to be raised to more than three times its present figure when the lease expires next Autumn.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Manhattan Club will give a dinner to its retiring President, Justice Victor J. Dowling, at the clubhouse on April 20. The committee consists of Phoenix Ingraham, Ashbel P. Fitch, Charles W. Dayton, and Louis Bertschmann.

J. T. Fetherston, Street Cleaning Commissioner, will talk to New York University students to-night on street cleaning and snow removal, at a dinner to be given in the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Fetherston is an alumnus of the university of the Class of '97.

SAYS TAR HID ROAD WORK.

Coating Laid at Night to Conceal Shallow Filling, It Is Asserted.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., April 14.—Former employes of the Suffolk Contracting Company who worked on the Patchogue-Coram road and others who observed the building of the road testified to-day against the four officers of the company and the two State Highway Department officials who are on trial here for conspiring to build the road in disregard of specifications. Supreme Court Justice Kapper presided.

Nicholas Bianco of Medford, a laborer, testified that while he was employed on the road he saw dirt and stones taken from the roadside and used for filling, instead of the broken stone which the specifications called for. The filling in the bed, he said, varied from three to five inches in depth, where there was any filling at all, and in some places not even the sand and dirt from the gulleys beside the road had been used for filling.

District Attorney Ralph C. Greene had established that a uniform filling of six inches had been called for in the contract.

"I asked the foreman one day," Bianco said, "if he was going to puddle the roadbed and he replied, that he would let the rain do the puddling."

Bianco said also that tar had been placed on parts of the roadbed at night when no Inspectors or engineers of the State department were near. This was done, he declares, so that no one could see what kind of filling was being used. The tar was placed on cold nights and not protected from the air.

Thomas Smith, a farmer of Coram, testified that he had written to the State Highway Department about a dangerous curve in the road near his farm, and that when he had told Leigh Roberts, an engineer of the Highway Department and a defendant in the trial, of his letter, Roberts had replied: "It's a ring, and they are not coming here to whip me like a schoolboy."

Many other witnesses testified to the same effect as these. Willard N. Baylis, chief counsel for the defense, cross-examined them all sharply, but failed to make any of them contradict their direct testimony.

Joseph A. Curren, Superintendent of Maintenance of the State Highway Department, said before the trial began that John A. Hennessy, whose investigations under the direction of Gov. Sulzer revealed the graft that led to the trial, would not be called as a witness.

CITY LODGING HOUSE STUDIED FOR GRAFT

DETECTIVES GOT EVIDENCE

Charges of Political Influence, Petty Thefts from Unfortunates, and Other Irregularities Are Up.

An investigation of alleged irregularities in the conduct of the Municipal Lodging House was begun yesterday afternoon before Chief Magistrate McAdoo at his offices at 300 Mulberry Street, on information furnished by William Alberti Whiting, an investigator in the employ of the Department of Charities. Eighty witnesses, most of them employes of the lodging house, were subpoenaed to appear in a John Doe inquiry. Before the hearing Chief Magistrate McAdoo said that after consultation with Assistant District Attorney De Ford, who is appearing for the State, he had decided that it would be best to permit no outsiders to attend the sessions.

The inquiry began on March 18, when Commissioner of Charities John A. Kingsbury directed Whiting to investigate the lodging house as a part of the study of the general problem of unemployment. Whiting sent thirty-five detectives into the house under the guise of homeless men seeking shelter to find out just what was being done and how and why. Last Wednesday Whiting's men found that their mission was known.

On last Saturday morning an altercation arose between Sigmund Simons, one of Whiting's men, and William Butler, a brother of ex-Assemblyman Richard Butler, who is night registry clerk at the house. Butler struck Simons, who had detectives on hand at once. Butler was arrested, was arraigned before Magistrate Harris in the Essex Market Court yesterday morning, and was fined $5 for disorderly conduct.

Simons, Henry Groetheim and Charles Day, all investigators, were called as witnesses in yesterday's hearing before Chief Magistrate McAdoo. Peter Garvin, a driver employed by the Charities Department, was also heard. The rest of the eighty were ordered to report at the continuation of the hearing, which will begin at 11 o'clock this morning.

Commissioner Kingsbury would discuss the situation only in general terms, but intimated that the suspicion lay mainly in the direction of petty graft among some of the employes of the house, and of misuse of the house for political purposes. He asked reporters if they did not think it significant that ex-Deputy Commissioner of Charities Frank Goodwin was the man who bailed Butler out on Saturday, and that Alderman McCort was a leader of the crowd which is said to have heckled Simons in the trial at Essex Market Court yesterday morning.

Commissioner Kingsbury said that he did not know what offenses might be indicated by the evidence, nor to what persons the trial might lead

Inquiries from persons connected with the lodging house developed the possibility of considerable petty graft which would be hard to reach.

More serious are the charges that men who have large sums of money get a free lodging in spite of it. Strictly, any one with more than 25 cents is debarred from the house's privileges, but such men have been admitted in many instances when it was known that they had money. As every one who comes in is compelled to strip and has his clothes fumigated, the money is always discovered no matter how carefully hidden.

In such cases it is taken to the house safe, and a receipt is supposed to be given for the full sum. Not long ago a man named Frank Healy was discovered to have a large roll of bills in his clothing. When he went to the office to get them the next morning he received $166.30. Healy insisted that he had $228, but, according to Mr. Whiting, Supt. Yorke compelled Healy to sign a paper stating that $166.30 was all he had before he could take any of it away. Yorke also said, according to Whiting: "You ought to be glad to get away with any at all."

INTER OCEAN BONDS FIRST.

Amount to $600,000 and Take Precedence as Lien, Court Holds.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 14.—Federal Judge Carpenter issued an order to-night in which he held the $600,000 first mortgage bonds of The Inter Ocean Newspaper Company to be a first lien on all the property of the newspaper. The Central Trust Company of Illinois is trtustee of the bonds.

This was one of the legal questions which the Judge was to decide before the receivership sale of the property of the newspaper. This sale is scheduled to take place next Saturday morning in the United States District Court. To-night's order is regarded as a victory for the bondholders over the claims of other persons asserting liens.

Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt to-night denied a report heard in New York to-night that the Shuberts would be bidders for The Inter-Ocean newspaper when it was sold on Saturday. Mr. Mayer said probably the Shuberts would seek to acquire the lease of the building now occupied by The Inter-Ocean to reconvert it into a place of amusement, it being a most desirable site and eminently adapted for theatrical purposes.

DR. DAVIS AGAINST KILLING.

Capital Punishment Does Nothing to Stop Crime, Says Commissioner.

Katharine B. Davis, Commissioner of Correction, came out in an interview yesterday in favor of the abolition of capital punishment, on the grounds that it does nothing to prevent crime. From the police record of "Gyp the Blood" for years before he participated in the Rosenthal murder, Commissioner Davis mentioned items which she said demonstrated to her mind that he should have been sentenced long before the Rosenthal murder to an institution for mental defectives.

"I have not met the four gunmen," said Commissioner Davis, "and I do not know whether all of them were hopeless mental defectives, but I do know that putting men to death for murder has not lessened the number of murders. I would have every person convicted of murder examined by a board similar to the Board of Pardons. We might call it the Board of Rehabilitation. This board could determine in a little time whether any given prisoner should be treated for defective mentality or punished by a prison sentence.

"For instance, I met once a young Sicilian girl who had killed a man. She told her story to me, and I was convinced that she could not see that she had done anything wrong. There had been an old family feud. In this feud her husband had been slain, and she felt that it was her duty to hunt down her husband's slayer and kill him. She went about her duty in a painstaking way, and finally succeeded in her purpose. She did not try to evade any of the facts. They all justified her, according to the code of morals in which she believed.

"Now, this girl was capable of social regeneration. I had her sent to Bedford Reformatory instead of to a prison, and in two years she was ready for release. She married a brother of her first husband, and together they returned to their native land to get the three children. Society is not the loser by having this woman restored to membership in it.

"Yesterday I had lunch with 'Al' Jennings, who was once a train robber and noted bandit. He has had a change of heart, and is now a useful member of society. I remember that 'Gyp the Blood' was up before Justice Hoyt in the Children's Court some time before the Rosenthal murder, and that Justice Hoyt said then that there ought to be some institution where he could be put for life. He predicted that this mentally defective youth would turn out to be a menace to the community, and shortly thereafter his words came true.

"I also remember that the gray murder car used in the Rosenthal murder was at one time used in an attempt to rescue a girl from the Bedford Reformatory. A man named Libby, who was a partner of Shapiro, who drove the car on the night of the murder, drove it on the occasion of the attempted rescue. Libby and another man were caught. A technicality of the law saved them, but I had the law changed the next week to make such an offense as theirs a misdemeanor."

THAW CASE GOES HIGHER.

Habeas Corpus Granted—Supreme Court to Decide on Bail.

CONCORD, N. H., April 14.—Harry Kendall Thaw's petition for a writ of habeas corpus was granted by Judge Edgar Aldrich of the United States District Court to-day. The court said, however, that no order would be issued for the prisoner's discharge from custody until arrangements had been completed to take the case to the United States Supreme Court on appeal. Thaw's petition for admission to bail the court left undetermined, taking the ground that it would be more appropriate for this to be passed upon by the Supreme Court.

The result of the decision is that Thaw's guardianship will be unchanged for the present; but that his petition for a writ of habeas corpus will go to the highest court in the land with a decision of the lower court in his favor.

The decision filed with the clerk of the court here comprises more than 10,000 words, and discusses exhaustively the various phases of the case presented in the United States Court, concluding:

> My conclusion is that the constitutional right of extradition for crime does not reasonably apply to such a situation as this, where the right of control by the demanding State resides in a degree of custody based on insanity, and where its papers upon their face negative the idea of personal criminal responsibility. It is further thought that it would involve forced or fictional reasoning to make a flight of the character of the one in question the kind of a flight contemplated by the Constitution as a basis for extradition.

New York's right of custody, if the right existed, Judge Aldrich said, was "based solely upon the idea of insanity; and from the very nature of the case, in describing the supposed extradition crime, the demanding State itself, upon the face of the papers, necessarily throws the question of criminal responsibility into the field of uncertainty, and thus it at once presents a question new to extradition law."

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Only by extraordinary steps can the Thaw case be considered by the Supreme Court before next October, as the court plans to suspend hearing all cases on Friday, April 24, and hear no more argument until October. That probably means that Thaw must remain in custody until October at least. Those best posted on the court's procedure predict it may be Christmas before the Supreme Court will pass upon the case finally.

A motion for an appeal in the Thaw case to the United States Supreme Court is to be made at once by William Travers Jerome, acting as Special Deputy Attorney General. Mr. Jerome expects the motion to come up for argument in June.

Haerle Acquitted of Killing.

Detective Lieut. George Haerle, Jr., who shot and killed William Horgan, of 1,880 Second Avenue, after Horgan had slain Detective Joseph Guarnieri, was acquitted yesterday by a Coroner's jury. Horgan had shot Charles Moser, a saloonkeeper, of 1,891 First Avenue, before encountering the detective on April 2. Moser was a witness before the Grand Jury against Horgan's son, who was accused of grand larceny.

C. S. MELLEN FREED ON WRECK CHARGE

LACK PROOF OF NEGLIGENCE

Case Hinged on Cross-Over and Expert Reported That Engineer's Mistake Caused Accident.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 14.—Charles S. Mellen, ex-President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, who last May was arrested on a bench warrant charging him with manslaughter because of the death of one "Jane Doe" in the wreck of the Springfield Express in Westport on Oct. 3, 1912, was ordered discharged from custody to-day, following a nolle prosse of the charge by Judge Joseph P. Tuttle.

This action was based on the recommendation of the special counsel, Attorney General John H. Light and State Attorney Alcorn of Hartford County, that the case be dismissed for lack of evidence. In accepting the recommendation, Judge Tuttle said he had confidence in the integrity of the special counsel and was not surprised at their conclusions.

"If you could not convict the accused," he said, "I do not know of any one who could. Therefore, I think your recommendation is a wise one. To have brought the case to trial under present conditions would have imposed a great expense on the State. If you are satisfied from your inquiry that there is not evidence enough to convict, the court is willing to accept that finding. In a trial it would be the duty of the State to prove the duty of the accused, the violation by the accused of that duty, and that negligence, gross in character, had taken place. It is this last phase which is difficult to prove."

The recommendation of the special counsel pointed out that the essential allegations against Mr. Mellen were that as President he had "exclusive control and management of the tracks and appurtenances of the company through Westport and of the operation of trains," and that it was his duty to see that all conditions were such as to make travel safe thereon, including the use of automatic control signals and proper crossovers, and that because of "culpable negligence" to perform his duty "the death of Jane Doe resulted."

The report stated that the special counsel had gone over all the evidence carefully, including the reports of the investigations of the wreck by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Connecticut Public Utilities Commission. It found that roadbed, cars, signals, engine, and other train equipment were in good condition and did not contribute to the accident, and that a competent engineer was in charge. It was agreed that the only allegation on which a conviction might possibly be obtained was that relating to the crossover.

The report stated that in the opinion of the principal expert for the State the train would have taken the crossover safely if the engineer had not applied the brakes, making the train too rigid to respond to the curves.

"We are unable to prove that a longer crossover would have carried the train safely," the report concludes.

With Mr. Mellen last May four other officers of the road were arrested on the bench warrant. The complaints against the latter were withdrawn about two months ago. There remain pending only two criminal prosecutions as the result of the several serious wrecks on the New Haven Road in Connecticut in the last three years, these being of an engineer and conductor held criminally responsible for the White Mountain-Bar Harbor express wreck at North Haven on Sept. 2 last, in which twenty-one lives were lost. These cases are to be called in New Haven next week.

TROLLEY TRUSTEES NAMED.

Will Take Over New Haven's Connecticut and Rhode Island Lines.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Judge Walter C. Noyes of New London, William W. Hyde of Hartford, Lyman B. Brainard of Hartford, George E. Hill of Bridgeport, and Charles Cheney of South Manchester, Conn., were named to-day by Attorney General McReynolds as Trustees to take over the Connecticut trolley lines owned by the New Haven Railroad.

Rathbone Gardner, Theodore F. Green, John O. Ames, John P. Farnsworth, and Charles C. Mumford, all of Providence, were chosen to take over the Rhode Island trolleys.

The announcement of the names of the Trustees was accompanied by a statement of two sentences. In one the Department of Justice said the men had been selected to serve "in case the suggested adjustment of the New Haven transportation problem is carried out," and in the other said "it is believed that the Trustees agreed upon will accept."

The fact that the statement referred to the "suggested" adjustment was not taken here to-night to indicate that any disagreement had arisen between officials of the road and the Department of Justice. The Attorney General and T. W. Gregory, his assistant in charge of the case, however, realize that the New Haven stockholders may vote not to accept the plan of dissolution, and in such a contingency only a suit under the Sherman law would be left to the Government to effect the changes desired.

KILLED IN DEMONSTRATION.

Conrad Scherrer Falls Off New Fire Truck and Skull Is Broken.

Conrad Scherrer, a member of a committee of Ridgefield, N. J., citizens who came to New York yesterday to buy a new motor fire truck, died last night in Roosevelt Hospital of injuries received on a demonstration trip.

Mr. Scherrer, Mayor Ernst Webben, and Chief Charles Mundt of the Ridgefield fire force went to an automobile establishment at 427 West Forty-second Street, where John Birmingham, a chauffeur demonstrator, fitted up rough board seats on a chassis and took the committee for a ride. At Sixty-first Street and West End Avenue Mr. Scherrer fell off the improvised seats and his skull was broken.

Patrolman Nally of the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station arrested Birmingham, who lives at 548 West Fortieth Street, because he did not have a driver's license. Birmingham said he had left it at the garage.

WARD & GOW UNDER FIRE.

Consumers' League Criticises Hours and Pay at Subway Stands.

The Consumers' League has attacked the hours and pay of the men and women employed by Ward & Gow as custodians of Subway news stands in a letter to the Public Service Commission, protesting against its approval of the renewal of the Subway privilege to that concern. This protest, it states, is based on a recent study of the terms of employment at fifty-five news stands.

The league alleges that 58 per cent of the men and 47 per cent of the women work twelve hours a day, or seventy-two hours a week. No time is taken off for lunch, except in seven instances. The league contends the twelve-hour day endangers health of working people, and quotes from a work by Miss Josephine Goldmark on health impaired by the roar of passing trains. It also speaks of the danger from draughts which blow from the Subway entrances in Winter.

The league states pay is deducted for Sundays and legal holidays. Vacations must be taken at the standkeepers' own expense, although in July and August all the uptown stations and a number of the others give a Saturday half-holiday with pay. The league has found that 52 per cent. of the men and 66 per cent. of the women get $7 a week or less and must pay for any publications stolen from them, the deductions running from 10 cents to $4 a week.

The league adds that it is protesting not against Ward & Gow, but against any firm which does not give its employes good hours and pay, and urges the commission to consider hours and wages in passing upon any contracts submitted for its approval.

FIRE TENDER DERAILS A CAR.

Pole Penetrates Side of Trolley and Three Persons Are Hurt.

On the way to a fire at 195 Douglas Street, Brooklyn, yesterday, Tender No. 226 turned south in Bond Street from Bergen just as a Hoyt and Sackett Street trolley car started to cross Bond. The tender crashed into the car. Its driver, Thomas Lenahedy, of 319 President Street, was thrown headlong from his seat, as was Fireman John Abrams of 522 Hatch Street.

The pole of the tender penetrated the side of the trolley car, which was thrown off the rails. Its half-dozen passengers were hurled from their seats, and Mrs. Margaret Fox of 79 Douglas Street was injured.

Lenahedy suffered an injury to his left ankle, and Abrams's right leg was hurt. Mrs. Fox was bruised about the body. One of the horses attached to the truck had to be shot.

AND PUPILS IS CALLED TO THIS SHAKESPEARE ANNOUNCEMENT

Mayor Mitchel has named a committee of distinguished citizens to co-operate next week in making the Shakespeare celebration in New York an event of exceptional interest. Schools and colleges throughout the country will enter largely into the celebration of this 350th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth. The New York Times is co-operating by issuing for every reader a beautiful rotogravure copy of the famous Chandos portrait of Shakespeare. This portrait is the best-known likeness of the poet. It is believed to have been painted from life, and although no portraits of Shakespeare are actually so proved, the Chandos was certainly made with the approval of his intimate associates, and bears internal evidence of genuineness. The Chandos portrait is the first of the three most widely accepted likenesses of Shakespeare, and the only painting among the three. These are the Chandos painting, the Droeshout engraving from the first folio edition of the plays, and the memorial bust in Stratford Church. The Chandos portrait now hangs in the National Gallery in London. The New York Times's rotogravure copy is of good size, (10½ by 15,) and will be delivered, unfolded, to every reader next Sunday. Teachers of literature should call the attention of their pupils to this announcement. The exercises next week will have an added interest to the pupils who have been able in advance to secure this excellent Shakespeare portrait. But bear in mind that The New York Times is an "ordered-in-advance" and not a "placed-on-sale" newspaper. There is a difference; and this difference explains why the demand is always greater than the supply. Neither the occasional buyer, nor his friends, can hope to get this Shakespeare portrait unless an advance order is placed with a newsdealer early this week.

French Champion Knocks Out Mitchell in 95 Seconds After Hard Fight.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 14.—Georges Carpentier, the French champion boxer, defeated the English amateur, George Mitchell, to-night in ninety-five seconds. Although he was so quickly defeated, Mitchell won a wager for standing up longer in front of Carpentier than Bombardier Wells did at the National Sporting Club of London. Wells was knocked out after sixty-three seconds of boxing. The contest took place at the Salle Lerda, Paris, and was of a private nature, only the friends of the two boxers being invited.

The men took the ring at 10:35. Mitchell, who stands 6 feet 3 inches, towered over his opponent. Carpentier attacked throughout, and led off with a heavy punch to the body, following quickly with a right to the jaw.

In one sharp rally Mitchell managed to hold his own for a while, and Carpentier narrowly escaped a vicious swing to the jaw. From that point until the end of the contest Carpentier had his opponent at his mercy, and four times Mitchell was brought to the boards before he was finally counted out. A tremendous right to the jaw, which came with terrific force and the speed of a thunderbolt, finally put him out. When his seconds picked him up Mitchell was dazed, but not quite unconscious. His left eye was badly damaged and blackened.

Callahan Outpoints K. O. Brown.

Patsey Callahan easily outpointed Knockout Brown in a ten-round bout last night at the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn. Brown gave little evidence of his former ring work and was hopelessly outclassed from the start, in spite of nearly ten pounds advantage over Callahan. He has gone back, while his blows lacked steam and direction. Callahan secured a big lead in the early rounds, and in the sixth had Brown bleeding, with one eye closed. Brown was groggy in the eighth round, but managed to hold on to the end of the contest. Callahan was repeatedly warned by the referee for rough work and using his elbow. Frankie Burns of Jersey City outpointed Dutch Brandt in ten rounds in the semi-final bout, and Tommy Cox knocked out George Place in one of the preliminary contests.

WILD SHAMROCK RUMOR.

Report Had It That Lipton Would Not Finish Yacht and Race for Cup.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 14.—Sir Thomas Lipton is still on the Riviera, but his private secretary says there is absolutely no truth in the report that work will be stopped on the Shamrock IV. and the intimation that he may not race. Work is going right on, and nothing within human control can stop the Shamrock from reaching Sandy Hook on the dates for the America's Cup races.

EQUAL THREE RECORDS.

Remarkable Running Performanccs by Drew and Kelly in the West.

Several remarkable running performances have been reported from the West. These performances, which are credited to the University of Southern California athletes, were received yesterday at the headquarters of the Amateur Athletic Union. In a letter to Secretary James E. Sullivan, Walter Christie, the Pacific Coast trainer, states that Howard P. Drew and Fred W. Kelley between them tied three world's records on April 7.

At a set of games held at Los Angeles, Cal., to defray the expenses of the University of Southern California team to the University of Pennsylvania relay meet, Drew ran 50 yards in 0:05 2-5, and sixty yards in 0:03 2-5. Kelly ran sixty yards over high hurdles in 0:08 flat. All these times equal the world's amateur records in their respective events.

It is not stated whether these times were made under conditions that would admit of their being accepted by the Record Committee of the A. A. U. Information regarding weather, track, and competitive conditions has been requested by the Record Committee.

MILITIA TO STOP RACING.

Governor of Oklahoma Orders Two Companies to Tusla.

TULSA, Okla., April 14.—Adjt. Gen. Canton early to-night ordered companies of the State Militia at Chandler and Pawnee to report immediately to Tulsa to declare the race tracks here under martial law. The Tulsa company was ordered to assemble ot the local armory.

Stanford in Eastern Tennis.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., April 14.—Stanford will be represented by a two-man team in the Eastern and Middle Western tennis tournaments this Spring. Matches with Cornell, Yale, Harvard, Chicago, Missouri, and Illinois have already been arranged, and it is also planned to enter the Stanford duo in the Longwood national tournament. R. L. Murray, Palo Alto, former university champion, will probably be selected to lead the team, with H. L. Hahn, Pasadena, as his mate.

ADMIT WOMEN TO A. C. A. MEMBERSHIP

Board of Governors Expect to Add 500 Names to List—Voting Privilege Denied.

By a unanimous vote the annual meeting of the Automobile Club of America last night at the club house, Fifty-fourth Street, west of Broadway, women were admitted to active membership of the club. This is the first time in the history of motoring that women have received the same privileges as the male members. Membership carries all the regular privileges of the members, except the power to vote and an equity in the club property. The latter rights are withheld, as women will not be charged any initiation fee. Special quarters will be set aside for them.

The decision to elect women members, to the number of 500, which will be the limit, was due to the widows of former members of the club, who did not have the privilege of purchasing club's supplies and storing their cars. The special form of membership is expected to attract a number of women, as nearly fifty applications have already been received. It is not expected, however, that the 500 limit will be approached for some time.

Seven of the twenty-one members of the Board of Governors retired by rotation and were re-elected for three years. They were James A. Blair, Jr., Judge Elbert H. Gary, Oliver G. Jennings, William W. Miller, Dave Hennen Morris, William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Frederick W. Whitridge. More than 800 members voted in person or by proxy, and the officers of the club will be elected at the next meeting of the governors, which will take place early next month.

Football Practice at Cornell.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 14.—Twenty-eight candidates for the Cornell football team reported for practice to Capt. John O'Hearn here this afternoon. The men included a number of players on last year's team, including Mallory, Collier, Ahern, Phillipi, and others, and quite a few new men. On account of the fact that Head Coach Sharpe is busy with the baseball players, Capt. O'Hearn will have charge of the practice. No scrimmaging will be tried this Spring, but the forward pass will be given a good test.

English Soccer Results.

LONDON, April 14.—For the close of the Easter programme only six games were set for decision to-day, and resulted in all the home clubs picking up points. The results:

KOLEHMAINEN TO SAIL.

Famous Long Distance Runner Will Return to Sweden Next Month.

Hannes Kolehmainen, the Finnish long distance runner, announced yesterday that he will sail for Finland early next month. His last appearance in America this season will be in a special three-cornered, three-mile scratch race against Harry Smith and William J. Kramer at Celtic Park, on May 3.

Kolehmainen will compete for Finland at the Baltic championships at Malmo, Sweden, July 3. After these events Hannes expects to arrange a special ten-mile match race with Jean Borun of France, to be run at Paris or some other city in France. Kolehmainen is uncertain about his movements in the Fall. He may remain in Finland, but there is a slight possibility of his return to this country, in which event he will represent the Irish-American Athletic Club in the National Amateur Athletic Union championships.

Winners with the Cue.

Koji Yamada, the Japanese billiardist, who is practicing at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, for the championship 14.1 balk line tournament, displayed excellent form in his game with Clyde B. Terry of Palisades last night, winning by the score of 250 to 65 in seven innings, scoring an unfinished run of 150 points in the last frame. He averaged 35 5-7.

Orlando Morningstar and "Young Jake" Schaefer displayed good form in their practice games last night at Maurice Daly's Billiard Academy, Forty-ninth Street and Broadway. The former defeated William Chapman in a 400-point match at 14.1 balk line billiards by the score of 400 to 240 in thirty innings. Morningstar made a high run of 142 points, and an average of 13 10-30. Chapman's highest run was 38 points, with an average of 8. Schaefer defeated Sylvester Levy, nephew of the late Prof. McLoughlin, the old-time billiard player, by the score of 300 to 136. The winner completed his string in twenty-one innings, for an average of 14 6-21, and made a high run of 55. Levy's high run was 29, with an average of 6 10-21.

Willie Hoppe contested in two practice games yesterday at Thum's Billiard Academy, Thirty-first Street and Broadway, in preparation for the championship 14.1 balk line billiard tournament. In the afternoon he defeated George W. Moore by the score of 200 to 65 in thirteen innings, for an average of 15 5-13. Hoppe made a high run of 39. In the evening he defeated Moore again by the score of 400 to 65, making a high run of 149, with an average of 20.

WATERBURY TEAM PUT TO HARD TEST

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 14.—For eight hard periods Capt. J. M. Waterbury, Jr.'s, Red team battled with their Blue opponents this afternoon, and at the end they had obtained only a one-goal advantage. The game was stubbornly fought from gong to gong, and for at least half the battle the Red quartet were outplayed by their adversaries.

The Red team comprised the three members of last year's cup defenders, the two Waterburys and Milburn, with different players alternating at No. 1. The Red four were slow in getting started, and Milburn did not get into his stride until the last periods of the game, while Larry Waterbury did not shine as he did on Saturday. His brother, Capt. J. M. Waterbury, on the other hand, had a good day, and it was his fine work that kept the team in the running several times.

Opposed to the Reds was a powerful combination. C. P. Beadleston, Rene La Montagne, and Malcolm Stevenson, all prominent contenders for a place on the team, were out for blood, and they made the pace a hot one.

Stevenson nearly came to grief in the third period, when he collided with one of the goal posts and was unhorsed. The accident came as the climax of one of the best displays of the day. H. C. Phipps got off with a clear field, and a race between Phipps, Stevenson, and Monte Waterbury resulted.

Phipps carried the ball down to the goal, and then drove to Waterbury, who whipped it between the posts. Stevenson, riding with reckless abandon, crashed into the post in attempting to save the goal.

One of the prettiest plays came in the second period. The Blue four had the ball well down in Red territory, and Stevenson drove out from the edge of the field. The shot was perfectly directed, and La Montagne made a neat goal. In the latter part of the game Milburn's hitting and riding were a great source of strength to his team. The line-up and summary:

Reds—H. C. Phipps, J. S. Phipps, C. C. Rumsey, J. M. Waterbury, Jr., L. Waterbury, D. Milburn.

Goals—J. M. Waterbury, Jr., 5; H. C. Phipps, 1; C. P. Beadleston, 1; R. La Montagne, 4; D. Milburn, 1; J. C. Phipps, 1; M. Stevenson, 2.

Fifty Men Excavating for Athletic Field at Princeton.

PRINCETON, April 14.—Work was started on the new Palmer Memorial Stadium here to-day. A force of fifty men was set to work on the excavating, which is expected to be completed in five or six weeks. Every effort will be made by the contractor to complete the structure in time for the Yale football game next November. The plans call for a seating capacity of about 41,000 persons.

Harvard Picks Relay Team.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 14.—The Harvard relay four, which broke the world's indoor mile record, lost a member to-day, when B. Tower was defeated by A. Biddle in the final trials to select a team for the relay carnival of the University of Pennsylvania. The other three members of the team are Capt. W. A. Barron, W. J. Binghan, and F. W. Capper.

Studebaker

Full Floating Rear Axle
Electrically Started
Electrically Lighted

Ride In All The Other "Sixes" and "Fours" —Then You'll Buy This SIX

Studebaker SIX sales more than any other "Six" in America.

And the reason—so plain, so obvious, that you can't get away from it.

Studebaker SIX sales are in advance of all others, not because the Studebaker SIX costs less than some other cars, but because other cars cannot give more, even at a higher price.

Study that statement from any angle—from every angle—and the result will be the same.

If smartness, and style, and beauty are what you are looking for—there can be only one conclusion concerning the Studebaker SIX.

If it's economy—study the light, strong construction; and hear the low-cost story that owners are telling in every city in the country.

If it's carrying capacity—the Studebaker SIX carries seven without crowding—with space to spare—in comfort so complete you couldn't ask more.

If it's starting and lighting, no car—not one, at any price—surpasses the splendid Studebaker-Wagner separate unit system.

Is it a question of what's in the car and how it's built? Listen:

This Studebaker SIX was built and re-built and tried and tested, and tried again, for three years before the first perfected car went on the market

We've built more than 120,000 motors and this SIX motor is the fruit and flower of that invaluable experience.

No company in the world buys and uses as great a volume of the costliest steel or subjects it to a more drastic course of heat-treating and testing.

No automobile company in the world buys as many Timken bearings—and this SIX has a full Timken equipment.

No car in the world has a safer, better axle than this full floating rear axle.

No car in the world is in greater detail manufactured within the plants of its own builder than this Studebaker SIX—stampings, castings and forgings—springs, bodies and upholstering—our own crown fenders, our own cowls, and even our own tops.

The Studebaker SIX is leading in sales because it deserves to lead. Take that drive with the Studebaker dealer tomorrow.

Notice, merry men and ladies, whose toes were frost bitten at the Polo Grounds yesterday, that the Yankees are in the lead for the American League taffeta. For once, anyway, the Yankees head the pennant parade. Another epoch in baseball history was inaugurated when the rejuvenated players of "Husk" Chance traveled relentlessly over the world's champion Athletics, while 22,000 Manhattan fans marveled at the miracle. Last year one of the Athletics' favorite pastimes was defeating the New York Club. This year it is different. The Yankees won yesterday, with the band playing and the flags flying, by a score of 8 to 2.

Naturally you are surprised. Everybody is. But it was a well-earned victory in which the Yankees displayed more and higher-powered baseball than the Mackmen. It was a delight to New York enthusiasts to see Joe Bush, the hero of last season's world's series, driven from the mound to let a rookie come in and try to stem the tide of defeat. It was great to see Frank Chance on the coaching lines inspiring his men to rub it in hard. It was something new to hear this same "Fighting" Chance prod his players with the war cry, "Be alive." That will be his slogan from now until the end of the season, "Be alive."

The answer to the big victory is simple. The Yanks hit the ball and ran the bases like bronchos in a stampede. Think of it, seven stolen bases on the world's best backstops.

Not forgetting the hero of the whole jigamaree, Marty McHale. He didn't mind the cold blasts which wafted over the Polo Grounds. He set out to pitch and carried out the idea beautifully. He struck out a half a dozen of the slugging Mackmen and behind him the Yanks fielded with courage and finesse. For five innings, McHale allowed only a single hit, and that was a lucky roller which Barry out-romped.

In the sixth, the Athletics' bats got busy, and with two out, three hard drives filled the bases. Then the inexperienced McHale, unafraid in the face of his famous enemy, pitched himself to glory and the Mackmen went out like a snuffed candle, with nary a run.

The opening of the season had all the frills and fancies which are expected on such occasions. Prince's Band played all the tango and maxixe tunes in captivity. Lieut. Gov. Robert Wagner tossed out the new white ball to McHale, and it was a good throw, which showed that this Wagner played ball before he became a statesman. Wonder if he knows Hans?

After all, it was the same old drama in the same old setting. But its novelty never wanes and the enthusiasm for the first big game of the season has not lessened. Enthusiastic anticipation for the opening game has crowded more serious subjects into the background for a week. Folk waited patiently for this occasion. To New Yorkers it means that Summer is here. Never mind the robins and the bluebirds or the calendar.

A good many serious-minded citizens were undecided yesterday morning about going to the game. It wasn't baseball weather. Many a boss decided to let his office boy go and stay on the job himself, but as soon as 3 o'clock arrived his mind changed and he locked the office door and hustled to 155th Street and Eighth Avenue as fast as Subway or elevated could carry him. All the office boys were there, and so were all the men they work for.

The Spring finery which was exposed at yesterday's game received an awful jolt. The pussy-willow gowns and the mushroom hats looked fine, but, my, the girls who wore them shivered. In making up a world, however, there must be included those who must go in style, if they go at all. There was one sensible man in the big gathering. He wore a fur cap, and after the fifth inning he pulled down the ear warmers and enjoyed the game.

The Mackmen, who went down in defeat yesterday, were precisely the same troop which played the last game at the Polo Grounds last October. Perhaps you remember them. On that occasion they defeated the Giants in the tussle for the championship of the world. After the game yesterday Connie Mack, the foxy pilot of the club, was asked about this unexpected defeat. He smiled, as he always smiles, and remarked: "The season is young yet." A good loser is Mack, and a fine winner.

All those people who vote here and never miss a ball game were sprinkled around in the field boxes. Among them were Edward E. McCall, Jim Corbett, Foxhall Keene, Harry Payne Whitney, William A. Brady, Robert Adamson, the Fire Commissioner; "Diamond Jim" Brady, wearing white gems rather than blue, but just as expensive; O. H. Harriman, Edward E. Smathers, the horseman; Uncle Ben Shibe, the veteran owner of the Athletics; John A. Drake; and almost everybody who is anybody. There were actors, actresses, brokers, and chorus girls, in fact, all those lucky people who invariably get their names in the papers.

Now for the ball game. Eddie Murphy was granted a pass by McHale, and took too big a lead off first. He was caught a mile. Oldring and Collins did no damage, and the Yanks felt encouraged.

Fritz Maisel succumbed to Bush's speed and fanned. Then came Roy Hartzell, who crashed a two-bagger to left close to the chalk line. Jimmy Walsh, who used to wear Athletic haberdashery, singled to centre and scored Hartzell. Walsh tried to steal second, but Li Hung Schang threw him out. Williams walked and stole second. Fine. Holden also walked. Better still. Lute Cook rapped a single to right, scoring Williams. Peckinpaugh poled a hit to left and scored Holden and Cook.

Really, there is nothing to this.

Peckinpaugh started to second on his journey around the circle, but he was nailed by E. Collins, and the fireworks ceased.

Under the new rules, whenever a coacher at third interferes with a base runner and helps him back to the base, when he overruns it, the base runner is out. To Manager Chance goes the honor of being the first coacher to score a putout of this kind. It made him mad, but Chance did it out of habit. In the second inning, when Ed Sweeney was being run down between third and home, Chance pushed him back on the base. Do you think that escaped the eye of Umpire Billy Evans? Not at all. Sweeney, safe back on the bag with Mr. Chance's aid, was declared out.

On the score board could be seen Athletics 4, Yankees 0. You see the score-board boy was so used to posting that score last year that naturally he put it up the same way yesterday. An "S O S" message was sent out to the score board, and the Yanks got due credit for their quartet of counts.

After the second inning, Bush spent the time in the clubhouse. Charley Boardman, a southpaw, took up the pitching task, and Lapp succeeded Schang behind the bat. It was much easier to steal on Lapp than on young Schang.

The Athletics got their first count in the third. Barry beat out a slow roller to third and stole second. Schang struck out. Daley, batting for Bush, was safe on Hartzell's fumble. While Murphy forced Daley at second, Barry scored the champions' first run.

In the fourth inning Maisel walked, and just by way of recreation he stole second and then third base. There was one event in this inning which brought the crowd to its feet.

Harry Williams smashed a liner high enough to go over an ordinary man's head. Barry, the Mackian short stop, saw it coming and made a high jump, nabbing the ball with his gloved hand and clutched it before it got a chance to spill.

In the fifth inning the Yankees got after Boardman. Holden singled to left, but was forced at second by Cook, Eddie Collins vaulting into the air for Barry's high toss. Peckinpaugh smashed a double to left sending Cook to third. Ed Sweeney poked the ball to right, scoring Cook and Peckinpaugh. And, by the way, Sweeney stole two bases yesterday. Scout Arthur Irwin made a bet the other day with Sweeney that he would not steal fifteen bases during the season. Sweeney wants that hat, so he started out yesterday with two steals, which is not a bad start against a team like the Athletics. Sweeney got to second on a passed ball, and went to third on McHale's single to left. Sweeney and McHale worked a double steal, Sweeney scoring. Marvelous.

The other Athletic run was harvested in the eighth. With two out, Collins walked and went to third on Baker's single. McInnis slapped a single to centre, scoring Collins. The Yanks promised to do lots of damage in the eighth, when with one man out, Hartzell beat out an infield hit and stole second. Walsh walked. Williams got a single and scored Hartzell. Holden whacked a hard liner to centre, which was caught by Strunk, who got the ball back to second in time to double Walsh.

Cobb Wins Tigers' First Game.

DETROIT, April 14.—Bonfires were flickering through the haze in centre field in the last half of the thirteenth inning to-day when Ty Cobb drove a triple to the score-board which counted two runs, and a moment later came home with the tally which enabled Detroit to take the opening game of the season from St. Louis, 3 to 2. It was a pitchers' battle from beginning to end. Neither team scored until the final inning, when good, bad, and reckless baseball gave St. Louis two runs and inspired a Tiger rally which brought back memories of championship days. For twelve innings the struggle was anybody's. Each team threatened again and again to score. On more than one occasion runners were cut down at the plate. In the eleventh Cobb risked a broken leg in an attempt to decide the struggle. In the thirteenth Agnew scored the second run for St. Louis by a reckless diving slide, and was carried off the field with a spike wound in his foot. Dubuc pitched wonderful ball for twelve innings. In the thirteenth he wrenched his weak knee while fielding a bunt and gave way to Dauss. Weilman, who was effective but erratic, was replaced by James in the thirteenth, with Bush and Bauman on bases. Cobb tripled, Veach drove a sacrifice fly to Shotton, Cobb beat the return by an eyelash, and the game was over. The score:

White Sox Win Thrilling Game.

CHICAGO, April 14.—A batting rally in the seventh inning turned defeat into victory for the Chicago Americans in the opening game of the season here to-day, Cleveland losing a thrilling contest to the White Sox, 5 to 2. A two-base hit by Tom Daly, a recruit from Lowell, Mass., who was sent in to bat for Schreiber, drove Brodie across the plate with the winning run. Up to the sixth inning the game was an air-tight pitching battle between Scott, for Chicago, and Mitchell, Cleveland's clever left-hander. The Sox attack in the seventh routed Mitchell, and Blanding finished the game. Another Chicago batting streak added two more runs for good measure in the eighth on timely hits off the former University of Michigan man. A warm and clear day favored the teams at the opening. Practically every seat in the stands and bleachers was occupied, but, except for music by a band and singers, there were no formalities. The score:

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 14.—The Phillies used their bats to pry off the lid of the National League season to-day and it went off with a bang. Terrific batting which overwhelmed the Giants under a volley of base hits and superb pitching on the part of Grover Cleveland Alexander which prevented the scoring of runs by the National League pennant winners, resulted in a 10 to 1 victory, which brought joy to the hearts of fifteen thousand excited fans and enabled Phillies to start the season right.

Captain Sherwood Magee, the hard-hitting batsman and left-fielder of the Phillies was the hero. It was the terrific hitting of the new field leader which caused the downfall of the Giants. Twice in the game Magee connected with the ball with such force as to drive the sphere over the head of "Red" Murray, and into the crowded stand in left field for a home run. On his last trip to the plate, Magee drove the ball to left for a single which brought two runners over the plate. This hit also drove "Rube" Marquard into retirement and caused Manager McGraw to call upon a relief pitcher to finish the game.

But while the Phillies were making a target of the star left-hander of the Giants' pitching staff, McGraw's men were batting helplessly against the brilliant pitching of Alexander. The big right-hander, who is Manager Dooin's help in this year's pennant race, was never in better form and deserved a shut-out victory in his initial championship contest of the season. A muffed fly ball by Cravath in the third inning robbed Alexander of this honor and saved the Giants from the further humiliation of a shut-out defeat.

In only three innings of the nine were the Giants able to connect safely with the sensational pitching of the Nebraskan, and in not one of the three could they make their hits count. In the eighth inning, when the game was safely won, the Phillies leading by a margin of nine runs, Alexander gave the best exhibition of his skill. With runners on second and first as the result of hits, Alexander retired the side in one, two, three order without permitting either of the runners to advance.

The triumph, complete as it was unexpected, carried with it all the glory of a well-earned victory. The crowd was prepared for anything. The blows dealt the Phillies by the Federal League in taking away such stars as Knabe, Doolan, Seaton, and Brennan shattered the team which led the championship race through almost half of last season and finished second to New York. But there was no evidence to-day that the loss of this quartet of players had weakened the Phillies in the least. Bobby Byrne played Otto Knabe's position as if he had played second base during his entire baseball career, and at bat he won honors only second to Capt. Magee. He showed more speed on the bases than Knabe could possibly have displayed, and handled three difficult fielding chances with all the skill of a finished second-sacker.

The easy victory of the home team and the utter rout of the Giants gave the opening day crowd its only opportunity to show any real enthusiasm. With the exception of the concert by the band and the tossing out of the new ball by Mayor Blankenburg, the usual ceremonies attendant to the opening of the baseball season were missing.

The weather man was none too generous in his contribution for the opening game. It was real chilly in the covered stands, and those who wore overcoats or furs found this Winter raiment none too heavy. Handsomely gowned women occupied many of the boxes and seats in the covered stand, the brilliant coloring of Easter finery dotting the picture. Society was well represented. Mayor Blankenburg, members of his cabinet, and numerous city officials were present to inaugurate the season. Gov. John K. Tener, President of the National League, was among the absentees. Gov. Tener's sympathies are with the Phillies, but in order to show his loyalty to the other teams he was the guest of honor at the game in Brooklyn, and was officially represented at the Phillies game by his assistant, D. Leroy Reeves, and John H. Heydler, Secretary of the National League.

Johnson Starts with a Shutout.

BOSTON, April 14.—Walter Johnson pitched shut-out ball for Washington to-day, and the Senators won the opening game of the season from Boston, 3 to 0. A big crowd enjoyed the contest, with weather conditions almost perfect. Ray Collins's pitching was effective, except in the third inning. Then Washington combined three singles with a base on balls, and scored all three of its runs. Boston batsmen did not get a hit off Johnson until the sixth inning, when Manager Carrigan singled to centre. Both teams fielded sharply. Yerkes made a difficult catch of a low liner, which he got while running backward. Mayor James M. Curley threw out the first ball to Manager Carrigan, and there was the customary flag-raising march by the players across the field. The score:

BROOKLYN FEDS WIN.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., April 14.—Superior pitching and timely hits inserted just when the opposing defense was beginning to wabble, brought victory to the Brooklyn Federal League team to-day in the opening game of the season by a score of 1 to 0. It is doubtful if the Smoky City fans were ever treated to such a brilliant exhibition, and there have been few opening conflicts that equalled the battle waged by the Tip Tops and the Pittsburghs.

It was a stirring pitchers' duel between Tom Seaton, the former Philadelphia pitcher, who caused the Wards so much worry, and Baron Knetzer, at one time a member of the Brooklyn Nationals. Seaton and Knetzer were at the height of form, and they pitched a brilliant game, but Seaton had the better of the argument. The former Quaker was never really in danger at any stage, although at times he became rather unsteady.

In only one session, the fifth, were the Pittsburghers really dangerous, and then they got a man on second and third bases. However, the necessary hit was not forthcoming. This was the only inning a Pittsburgher got on third, and in no other round did Doc Gessler's men get past the first sack.

It was Westerzil, the young third sacker, who drove in the winning run in the tenth inning after he had struck out twice. Murphy was passed purposely by Knetzer in order to get Westerzil, but he came through with a knockout. Knetzer started the inning by walking Hofman, and then Delehanty was retired at first, Artie going to second. Murphy was passed, and then Westerzil singled through short, scoring Hofman. Claude Cooper, for Brooklyn, and "Rebel" Oakes, for Pittsburgh starred in the field with sensational running catches. The score:

BROOKLYN.

No Date for Federal Hearings.

CHICAGO, April 14.—Date for the preliminary hearing of the two suits of the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club against James A. Gilmore, President of the Federal League, and the officers of the Chicago and Brooklyn Federal Clubs was not set to-day. Marshals were endeavoring to serve the papers on Gilmore, Weeghman, Walker, and Joe Tinker here, and summonses had been mailed to New York to be served on Robert and Walter Ward.

"The suits of the Philadelphia Club to restrain the Federals from appearing with its players and for the $25,000 damage will be vigorously pushed," Horace K. Tenney, counsel for the Philadelphia Club, said to-day. "They are part of the war all along the line that will be waged against the Federals. I have not heard from counsel for the Federals, so I cannot say on what day we will be ready to meet in court for preliminary hearings. Whether it will be advisable for us to push at once for an immediate injunction we have not decided."

DODGERS GET EARLY LEAD AND WIN, 8 TO 2

After he had marched both teams around the field behind a band, had had himself photographed in various poses, and indulged in all the other formalities which go with the ceremonial opening of a baseball season, Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Dodgers permitted his team to defeat the Boston Braves by a score of 8 to 2 at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon. With hardly more than 12,000 spectators to urge them on, the Brooklyn team played in midseason form behind the veteran Ed Ruelbach, and batted the offerings of Tyler, who started to twirl for the Bostons, in a way that brought joy to their supporters. The attendance was undoubtedly kept down by the cold weather and the fact that the edge had been somewhat taken off the opening by the several pre-season exhibition games.

Gov. John K. Tener, President of the National League, threw the first ball on to the diamond. Gov. Tener, Charlie Ebbets, President of the Brooklyn team, and Steve and Ed McKeever made a ceremonial entrance, with a party of friends, to a box in the lower grand stand just before the game started. Tener and Ebbets and their party were cheered loudly as they filed through the stand.

Managers Robinson and George Stallings assembled their players at 3 o'clock in centre field, where the American flag was run up to the top of the flagpole, while the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the ball players and every one else not afraid of catching cold stood up and took off their hats. With the rival managers and catchers leading, the two teams then marched in behind the band to the home plate, where they spread out along the first and third base lines in the form of a "V." Manager Robinson then waved his hand majestically and the ceremony was over.

A little later three men came struggling in under the weight of an immense floral horseshoe, which was deposited behind the home plate. Manager Robinson was persuaded by the squad of photographers to pose in front of it with his players.

The big concrete grand stand was only about half filled when the game started. Although small, the crowd was a loyal and noisy one, and showed its pleasure at the way their pets drubbed the Braves by making as much noise as if there were 30,000 present instead of 12,000.

Jake Daubert, who was arrested in the morning for playing baseball with a semi-professional team at Coney Island last Sunday, showed his "nervousness" by getting two hits out of three times up, one of them a triple in the first inning. This was his first time at bat for the season.

Tyler, who started the pitching for Boston, began like a whirlwind and struck out three men in the first inning. Dalton, Cutshaw, and Wheat all fanned and Daubert was left stranded on third base. Daubert started to slow up at second base on his hit, but some one in the crowd blew a policeman's whistle and he turned second and sprinted down to third.

The Dodgers got two runs in the second inning. Smith singled and went to second on Egan's sacrifice, after Stengel had fanned. Miller then drove a long fly to right field, which Griffith got under after a hard run and then dropped, letting Smith score. Reulbach got a base on balls and then Dalton singled, scoring Miller. With Reulbach on third and Dalton on first the double steal was tried, but Whaling fooled Reulbach by feigning a throw to second and caught him between the bases.

Brooklyn scored another run in the third inning on a single by Daubert and Wheat's double to right field. They scored once more in the fourth on a pass to Egan and singles by Miller and Reulbach.

The fifth was the Dodgers' big inning at the bat. Cutshaw started by singling to centre. Daubert then hit a little grounder to Tyler, which was meant to be a sacrifice. Tyler tried to catch Cutshaw at second, but was not quick enough and both runners were safe. Wheat sacrificed both men along, and J. Carlisle Smith then came through with a double to right, which scored Cutshaw and Daubert. Smith then tried to steal third and was caught by ten feet. Stengel started trouble again by walking, and was followed by Egan, who singled, sending Stengel to second. Miller followed by driving a single to centre. Gilbert threw home, trying to catch Stengel, but was too late and Tyler took the throw short and tried to catch Miller going to second. He threw wild and Egan also scored. Reulbach closed the session by striking out.

The Braves were not dangerous while Reulbach was in the box. Reulbach eased up, however, in the seventh, and on an error by Smith and a single by Whaley, followed by Crutcher's double, the Braves scored twice. Manager Robinson put in Pfeffer, a recruit, for the next two ninings and the young fellow had his hands full all the while. He started off by filling the bases in the eighth, but managed to pull out without permitting any runs to be scored. Again in the ninth, with one out, Maranville and Evers both singled and started what looked like a dying rally, but the next two men were easy outs.

Evers, playing his first league game in a Boston uniform, was not very impressive. He got one hit in five times up and managed to muss up a throw to stop a double steal.

Zach Wheat provided the only real fielding feature of the game when he caught Griffith's short fly over second after tripping and sliding several feet along the ground. The score:

Reds Win in Drizzling Rain.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 14.—Chicago met defeat here to-day in the opening game of the season after playing for two hours and eight minutes in a drizzling rain. The score was 10 to 1. The rain, which began shortly before the time advertised for the starting of the game, not only kept down the attendance, but caused Cheney to lose control. He gave eight bases on balls, made four wild pitches, and hit two men, besides having four hits registered off him. Benton, on the other hand, appeared to like the wet going, and held the visitors to two hits. Gov. Cox of Ohio was the guest of honor at the game. Manager O'Day of the visitors, who was formerly leader of the Cincinnati team, was remembered by friends in the form of a huge floral offering which was presented to him. Chicago saved themselves from a shut-out in the ninth inning when they worked Benton for three bases on balls in succession, with only one out. Zimmerman followed with a sacrifice fly. This was the only time that Benton showed any weakness. The score:

Old Pirates Beat Former "Pals."

ST. LOUIS, April 14.—Players traded to the St. Louis team during the Winter by Pittsburgh played a prominent part in the defeat of the latter team here to-day by the score of 2 to 1 in the opening game of the season. It was "Chief" Wilson's stinging single in the ninth inning, after two men were out, that sent Art Butler across the plate with the winning run for the local contingent. In the first inning Jack Miller, also with Pittsburgh last year, doubled, scoring Butler from second base. Excellent fielding held the visiting players to one run. Recruit Cruise, in left field, was the star, getting seven put-outs to his credit, three of which were sensational running catches over his head. Butler, at shortstop, figured in several snappy plays. The usual opening day ceremonies started the contest. Heavy clouds and a light rain just before the game held down the attendance. The score:

Meenan Out with Columbia Nine.

Dan Meenan, Captain of this year's championship basket ball team, reported with the Columbia baseball squad at yesterday's practice. Although Meenan has been suffering from a dislocated shoulder, his physicians feel that he will be able to wield a bat to the same advantage as last year, and his presence with the squad will be a notable addition.

Reller on Cornell Track Team Again

ITHACA, N. Y., April 14.—Coincident with the announcement that twenty-five men had been selected for the track training table at Cornell University, it became known that Andy Reller, the crack sprinter of the Cornell track team, was back in the university and would begin to train for the 100-yard dash within a few weeks. Reller will probably not enter the early dual meets, but may enter the meet against Pennsylvania and run in the intercollegiates. The men taken to the training table to-day follow: Capt. Shelton, Brodt, Caldwell, Fritz, Halsted, Munns, Brown, Ingersoll, Lahr, McCutcheon, Mehaffey, Milton, Morrison, Speiden, Van Kennel, Cady, Hoffmire, Irish, Lewis, Lukens, Millard, Newman, Potter, Souder, Starr, Van Winkle, and Warner.

Yale Wins in One Inning.

Special to The New York Times.

NORFOLK, Va., April 14.—Yale had no trouble to-day in disposing of the Catholic University nine by the score of 6 to 2, due to the control and effectiveness of Brown, who struck out ten men, and the batting of Reilly and Cornish. The Catholic boxman was wild and poorly supported. The game was called after the eighth inning to allow Yale to catch a New York steamer. The score:

Holy Cross Wins in Tenth.

Holy Cross won out in a ten-inning game from Seton Hall on the grounds of the Jersey City International League yesterday afternoon by the score of 2 to 1. Holy Cross scored a run in the first inning on a double by J. Murray and hits by Norton and Ostegrehn. Seton Hall finally tied the score in the eighth, when Maloney reached second as Saunders threw his hit far from Ostegrehn. M. Shannon sacrificed and Hayes brought Maloney home with a rap to right field. J. Murray hit in Holy Cross's tenth round. Norton advanced him on a sacrifice, and when Luty fumbled Saunders's grounder, Murray reached third, scoring on Ostegrehn's safe hit. The score:

Williams Practices with N. Y. U.

On Ohio Field yesterday afternoon the New York University baseball team played an eight-inning practice game with the Williams College nine, which is spending the Easter vacation in playing games with Columbia, Seton Hall, Fordham, and New York University. The work-out was a snappy one, and coach and Captain of the Violet team both expressed their satisfaction at the work of the men preliminary to the Fordham game this afternoon on the Fordham diamond. Two New York University pitchers received a try-out. J. S. Tyler, the principal 'Varsity twirler, was not among these. Henry Kranichfeld and L. Davidson, two freshmen, each received a trial, but were retained only for a few innings on account of the cold. The Williams College players spent a good part of the day at University Heights practicing by themselves in the morning, then lunching in the university "commons," and facing the Violet team later in the day.

COLUMBIA PITCHER OUT.

George Smith in Classes Again, but Cannot Play This Spring.

With the aid of crutches, George Smith, Columbia's star pitcher, who fell and splintered a kneecap five weeks ago, was able to get back to his classes yesterday for the first time since the accident. It is impossible for him to return to the game in the six weeks remaining of the Columbia schedule.

Columbia faces Holy Cross on South Field this afternoon, and a close game is expected. O'Neale will probably pitch for the Blue and White, while Shea will be held in reserve. Charlie Hann, the former Harvard first baseman, who has been playing the same position for Columbia, has recovered from a slight illness and will take his place in the line-up.

Bowdoin Blows Up at Cambridge.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 14.—Harvard would have had a hard time to beat Bowdoin 5 to 1 this afternoon had the visitors not gone into the air in the field and thrown the match away. All of the Crimson's five runs came as the result of errors, after which, however, the home batters were able to hit the ball. Frye held the visitors to seven hits, while Harvard made eight against Knight, who looked good enough to win his game with even fair support. McElwee, Bowdoin's third baseman, played a rattling game, accepting all of his ten chances, while the work of Nash and Fripp for Harvard was of high grade. Bowdoin's one run came when Frye hit Weatherill and Eaton hammered out a two-bagger. Harvard's eight hits were scattered through six innings and would have produced no runs had it not been for the visitor's misplays. The score:

Fordham vs. N. Y. U. To-day.

Fordham University baseball team will play the New York University nine on the former's field at Fordham this afternoon. Unusual interest centres in the game, as it is the first time these two colleges have been opponents in a match of an athletic nature in the last seven years.

KEEPING FAITH WITH THE PEOPLE.

"The President said emphatically "that he would stay in Washington all "Summer if necessary to put the trust "legislation in the statute books"—so ran a Washington dispatch to THE TIMES yesterday. Yet the country needs new anti-trust legislation about as much as the solar system needs an eight-hour day and factory inspection. And no news that could come out of Washington would be heard with such devout thanksgiving as the announcement that Congress had adjourned.

The projects of anti-trust legislation are still formless and chaotic. The Trade Commission bill, even after much pruning and revision, is crude, mischievous, and impossible; the bill forbidding interlocking directorates a piece of futile fooling that could have come only from the minds of men grossly ignorant of the ways of business. The bill directed against holding companies is another of the same class. The Definitions bill, which seeks to define the offenses punishable under the anti-trust law, is a compend of stupidity. Even its authors have perceived that many of the definitions are superfluous, and they have thrown them out. They are all superfluous. As well try to define and label all the possible permutations of the multiplication table as to name and classify the offenses forbidden by that act. It is a law directed against unjust and wrongful things. It must be left to the court to determine whether the offense in any given case falls within the prohibition. These clumsy measures will not be bettered by blending them in one.

We are told that the President feels that his party has pledged itself to this legislation, and that "the Ad-"ministration must keep faith with "the people." With what "people"? With the politicians and demagogues who stuffed the platform with promises of endless harassment for business and corporations? When were these pledges, when was this programme of disturbance asked for by the real people, the men whose genius and toil and money would make the country prosperous if Washington would give them a chance? There are other pledges, Mr. President, worthier of present heed. The programme of legislation against monopoly laid before Congress and the country in the President's address of Jan. 20 has been maturely considered, and there is not a scintilla of evidence that it embodies a policy of remedy and of healing. The ills, largely imaginary, at which it was directed, have succumbed during the general business starvation. "We are to "square our laws with the thought and "desire of the country," said the President in that address. All the thought, all the desire of the country is for rest and a decent chance to work and do business free from the constant alarms that come out of Washington. "We are now about to write the ad-"ditional articles of our constitution of "peace," said Mr. Wilson, "the peace "that is honor and freedom and pros-"perity." The country longs and begs and prays for that saving writ. Commerce and industry are at a low ebb, men are in deep despondency. The President deepens their discouragement, he disappoints them, when he proclaims his resolve to hold Congress in session until the unnecessary and mischievous anti-trust bills are put upon the statute books. The fundamental conditions of business revival and advance are visible to all. If there has been any serious hindrance save that of Federal meddling, actual like that of the intolerable dalliance of the Interstate Commerce Commission with the question of freight rate increases, or threatened like the pending anti-trust legislation, then the most attentive students of such questions have failed to point it out. Persistence in disturbing policies can bring nothing but harm to the people, and Washington has already had its warning that the people know how to call to account the responsible authors of evil and disaster.

AGAIN THE FUR-SEAL WAR.

The public is apprised through the current number of Science that United States Fish Commissioner Smith and Secretary Redfield have taken a step calculated to stir up more bad blood in the fur-seal controversy. Under admirable reserve and reticence another scientific "commission" has been appointed to go to Alaska, gaze for a few weeks upon the rocks and fur seals that still exist on the rookeries of St. Paul and St. George, "study" the seals, and gravely report to the Government its findings of what really should be done about those much harassed animals.

The Commissioners are W. H. Osgood, formerly of the Department of Agriculture, but now of Chicago; E. A. Preble of the Department of Agriculture, and George H. Parker of Harvard. These are men new in the fur-seal field, and are entitled to all the confidence that can be mustered in their ability to advise the Government after six whole weeks of seal study.

We regret that Secretary Redfield permits the flames of this controversy to be continually fanned in his department, and we do not congratulate Fish Commissioner Smith on his initiative in the matter. Congress and the fur seals are not at this time in need of any new commissions or reports. If this sowing results in a new crop of dragon's teeth, the sowers will have only themselves to blame. Meanwhile, the Rothermel committee has supplied to Congress, for its action, information and first-hand evidence covering all sides of the controversy, enabling that body and the Attorney General to place the responsibility for the depletion of the herd where it belongs.

PUTTING THE RESERVE DISTRICTS UP TO CONGRESS.

The Senate resolved yesterday that the Organizing Committee should explain its selection of Federal reserve districts. That's easy. The organizers slighted New York because that was the programme of Congress. They selected twelve districts because that was the maximum, and Congress never intended the minimum to be chosen. If Congress thinks that the job of discriminating against New York and pleasing twelve cities without displeasing all other possible cities could be any better done it makes a mistake.

It is safe to say that Congress will do nothing. It was safe for the organizers to do what Congress will be prudent not to meddle with. The organizers do not have to stand for election this Fall, and Congressmen do. The value in votes of support of this measure is an asset only in The Congressional Record. As a stump argument it is a liability. The best way for Congressmen and bankers alike is to rely upon the Federal Reserve Board, in the hope that the President will guide his appointments with some regard for the character of the discussion upon the efforts of the Organizing Committee appointed by Congress.

RAILWAY REGULATION, IDEAL AND THE ACTUAL.

Nobody objects, or would be heard to object, to railway regulation of the sort described by those who provide it. The sort of regulation actually provided must be condemned with equal unanimity. Take yesterday's news, for example. The Supreme Court heard argument upon appeal regarding the tap line cases. These cases, it will be remembered, cover the so-called "free services," for which the railways were to charge hereafter, and thereby collect $15,000,000 to stay their stomachs while the Commission was thinking about allowing the 5 per cent. advance. But that installment on account seems indefinitely distant. It is disputed before the Supreme Court that the Commission has power to forbid the making of rates which it is the Commission's duty to regulate when made. The Commission's order was annulled by the Commerce Court, and the Commission, instead of submitting, made as a recommendation what it did not venture to put into an order while its procedure was under an appeal. The Supreme Court's decision lies in the distant future, and the Commission itself, on the day that the court heard argument, suspended a tariff filed by several leading railways in accordance with the Commission's recommendation. The Commission itself runs away from its own plan on the day that the Supreme Court hears it denounced.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's proposal of procedure regarding the 5 per cent. advance was also published yesterday. This has been pending for several years, in one form or another, but the Commission always begins at the beginning, as though nothing had occurred previously. The Commission's sole duty is watching the railways and telling them what to do, or not to do, and it might be supposed that it had a mind of its own. On the contrary, it lets somebody else write for it seventy-eight questions which had never occurred to the Commission. The blanks necessary to answer one of the seventy-eight questions weigh fifteen pounds, but not all are so weighty. The answer of all the railways to all the questions would fill a freight train. The answers and the arguments must all be in by April 27. And then the railways will soon get their decision?

Not in the least. That is only on the first division of the subject. When the Commission has digested these tons of information it will be in position only to say whether rates ought to be raised. It will then begin an inquiry as to how they should be raised. Under this head will come a rediscussion of the propriety of stopping expenses instead of raising rates. It is clear that if the railways spend less money upon "free services" they will not need to collect more money. By that time the Commission perhaps will be clear in its own mind about allowing the railways to do what it has recommended, while the Supreme Court is hearing argument about whether the Commission has the power it has assumed to exercise. No dates are set to this second division of the argument, so there can be no disappointment about it.

This is a sample of actual regulation. If the investigation and suspension files of the Commission were to be searched most of the questions now disturbing business men would be found buried there. Its indecisions and idealities are only one of the handicaps in the obstacle race which legislators have set for business men to run. If business cannot go ahead it must go backward.

ANOTHER MEXICAN CRISIS.

The arrest at Tampico of a Paymaster of the United States Navy and a detachment of unarmed marines who had landed from a launch to procure a supply of gasoline seems to have been a stupid and unpremeditated act of the childish character of many other Mexican doings we have been reading about lately. But it is questionable if nations can consider motives when such actions are involved. An insult was clearly offered to the United States Government, and ample apology according to the law of nations must be made. Admiral Mayo, in command of our ships at Tampico, indicated the form the apology must take. The Admiral's position has been sustained by the President. The American flag must be saluted from the Mexican batteries at Tampico, and, as the Mexican Provisional Government will not see the matter from our point of view, the war vessels of the North Atlantic fleet will be assembled at the Mexican port. Although the situation is grave, it does not necessarily mean intervention or war. The complications in our relations with Mexico, however, are increasing, and the crisis is perplexing. The case of the murdered English subject, Benton, in which we acknowledge a certain measure of responsibility for the punishment of his murderers, is still far from settlement, while the expulsion from Chihuahua and Torreon of a large number of citizens of Spain is a matter of which the State Department at Washington must seriously take cognizance.

Now, the insult to our flag at Tampico, no matter what the intention of the officer directing it may have been, greatly increases the gravity of the situation. The attitude of Huerta in this matter is incompatible with his pretensions as a trained military commander and enlightened statesman. He has put himself on the level with a savage chieftain. Without placing too great weight on the reports from the Mexican capital which indicate that he has shifted his position in this matter more than once, it is obvious that he has acted with full knowledge that his course would make a demonstration by the United States inevitable. If this usurping Dictator were preparing secretly for flight, and felt that a show of force by the United States at this moment would serve as a decent excuse, he could not have acted differently. But it is needless to argue thus curiously in regard to any of Huerta's ideas of policy. He embodies the worst traits of the Mexican character, and he has brought upon his country whatever fresh humiliation it must suffer. Intervention is not to be apprehended, however, as the most authentic news of the progress of the war in the north indicates the continued triumph of the revolutionists. But the end of the civil war is not yet in sight, and the destruction daily of valuable property belonging to Americans and other foreigners is piling up a burden of claims on the Government established after peace is obtained. Moreover, the conquering Constitutionalists have, in some ways, defied the laws of nations and denied the rights of aliens quite as frequently as the Government of Huerta.

DELUSIONS ABOUT THAW.

Federal Judge Aldrich's decision granting a writ of habeas corpus to Thaw, now at Concord, N. H., runs to the length of 10,000 words. Ten times ten thousand words could not successfully square with reason and common sense the measures taken in respect to Thaw since he fled to New Hampshire. Judge Aldrich concludes that the writ of extradition for crime does not reasonably apply to such a case as this, based on insanity, and where the papers "upon their face negative "the idea of personal criminal respon-"sibility." Then in Heaven's name, why not set Thaw free and be done with it? The court's logic, it seems, did carry it almost to the point of granting bail. The Judge was not at all certain that he was not denying Thaw a plain right and doing him an injustice by leaving this question to be settled by the Supreme Court.

We see here, as we have seen in so many other things done in respect to Thaw in New Hampshire, the ravages of the delusion that Thaw is a persecuted man, that he is now a much-to-be-pitied victim of injustice and oppression, and that if set at liberty he would never in the world do anybody any harm. Has nobody made known to these people in New Hampshire the true character of Thaw? Are they ignorant of the fact that he is not merely a degraded pervert, but that he is a dangerous and incurable lunatic whose mental malady has been four times determined in the courts of this State, which have pronounced him too dangerous to be at large?

Absolutely the only thing New Hampshire had to do with Thaw was, through her Governor, to grant the extradition demanded by the Governor of New York. That was done. Then an appeal was taken to a Federal Judge for a writ of habeas corpus. Absolutely the only thing any Federal Judge had to do in the case of Thaw was to point to Article IV., Section 1, of the Constitution of the United States, providing that "full "faith and credit shall be given in "each State to the public acts, rec-"ords, and judicial proceedings of "every other State." Instead of that the writ of habeas corpus is granted, the appeal goes to the Supreme Court, and in all probability months must elapse before this murderous maniac is returned to his lawful place of detention in the State of New York.

TWO NEW SHIPS NEEDED.

The Naval Appropriation bill will come up for consideration in the House of Representatives this week. The present indications are that such opposition as develops to the proposed laying down of two new battleships this year will be futile. Recent incidents have convinced a majority of members that the upbuilding of the navy should not be further retarded. The minority report of the Naval Committee, against the construction of the two ships, is full of false reasoning, as has been sufficiently indicated in the statement of Representative Britton, given out by the Navy League, and published in yesterday's Times.

This unprogressive majority contends that more ships at present would be useless, as the navy lacks the sailors to man them. This is a fatal admission. The navy is indeed short of men, and its deficiency in this respect has only recently been brought forcibly to public attention. But it will be easier to enlist new men than to get battleships in case of emergency. The work of upbuilding should be continuous and two new ships, at least, should be provided for in each year's appropriations until our naval establishment is raised to its proper relative position among the navies of the world.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Wandering Among Uncertainties.

Whoever attempts to explain the working of the minds of the four "gunmen" in their last hours is at once confronted by the difficulty that opposite theories of their conduct are about equally plausible. And as our criminal procedure still utterly ignores the facilities for acquiring exact information provided so generously by what is called "the new psychology," no determining conclusion can be reached.

A natural question is why these men, all unquestionably guilty of participation in a particularly cold-blooded murder, chose to die protesting innocence. That is what they all did, for the statement of Cirofici, though described as a confession, was rather a mixture of exculpation and accusation.

When other murderers refuse to confess, their course is usually and credibly ascribed to a desire that their relatives may have such consolation as they can find in a last, lingering possibility that the law's ultimate penalty was unjustly inflicted—a consolation of which they would be deprived by an acknowledgment of guilt. There may have been something of that motive in the silence of these men, but perhaps more likely is the assumption that each of them feared the vengeance might fall upon his family if by betrayal of his associates through a confession he obtained, or even tried to obtain, some degree of mercy for himself. Such revenges were familiar to them—had been, indeed, a part of the business by which they earned their own livings. Opposed to this explanation, however, is the fact that nothing has yet happened to the men who did buy immunity in just this way, though many months have passed since they gave the evidence which made the conviction of their miserable tools so easy.

Similar contradictions are discovered when one considers the public funerals of the "gunmen"—funerals attended by great crowds and strangely different from the secret burial in quicklime which was the old disposition of such criminals. On the one hand, such a display of such dead could be condemned as a mere satisfaction of morbid curiosity, and highly demoralizing in that it tended to close their careers in a sort of sinister glory. On the other hand, there might be claimed—in old days doubtless would have been claimed—for the exhibition a deterring influence closely analogous to that credited to capital punishment itself. Whether the spectacle was or was not a solemn warning to other gangsters, who can tell?

Enemies of Science Victorious.

Mr. Rockefeller's request for permission to extend the activities of his New York institution for medical research by creating a branch of it in New Jersey at an expenditure of $1,000,000 has been refused! A bill making this possible passed the New Jersey Legislature with hardly a show of opposition, but Gov. Fielder, instead of heeding the arguments of scientists like Dr. Flexner, speaking for the whole medical profession, allowed himself to be convinced by the anti-vivisectionists that for him to sign the bill would fatally weaken the protection to animals from cruelty which the laws of his State now give and that it would legalize "experiments on human beings." He was told, too, that his signature of this measure would enable any little group of men to incorporate for the purpose of inflicting torture, however horrible their motives or useless the results.

And this last plea, strange as it may seem, is the one on which the Governor apparently based his veto of the bill! The desire to cause pain is indeed a well-known form of degeneracy, but it is more than wildly improbable that its victims would ever unite in any such formal way as that suggested, and it is incomprehensible that the Governor should have paid any attention at all to the pumped-up horror that marks every mention by the anti-vivisectionists of testing new drugs and operations on human beings.

Surely he cannot expect—or want—to prevent that or to stop it. How else ever did or ever can the art of medicine advance? As was well said by one of the advocates of the bill, the medical treatment of every patient is in some degree experimental, since the individual reaction to it cannot be fully known except by trial, and not infrequently surprising idiosyncrasies are then revealed. The greatest value of animal experimentation, perhaps, is that it makes comparatively safe the ultimate test on human beings that is and must be made in pushing forward the war on disease.

It is almost amusing that the would-be founders of the new biological station were criticised because theirs was a general instead of a special bill. Yet every lawyer present at the hearing knew or ought to know that no other course was open under the New Jersey laws for a foreign corporation desirous of starting auxiliary work in that State.

A Problem for the Politicians.

Something like anxiety is beginning to appear in official circles, both here and in Washington, as the date approaches for the arrival on these shores of a real Queen. Nobody seems to know just how a visitor of that rank should be welcomed and entertained, and, though there is of course every wish and much inclination to do the right and proper things for her, there is manifested a slight but obvious disquietude lest mistakes more or less awful be made.

The situation is rendered the more difficult by the fact that there is more than likely to appear a certain inconsistency between our traditional attitude toward the occupants of thrones and the attentions which courtesy and good will toward an amiable and estimable, as well as distinguished, lady will force us to show Queen Eleanora.

The politicians have to consider the possibility that constituents fiercely democratic may become derisive or indignant if the reception and entertainment of a crown-wearer be too demonstrative and elaborate, so some of them, and big ones, too, will have to steer a perilous course between their theories and their obligations.

The problem is almost serious for those who face it, and entirely amusing for the rest of us, who have no "vote" to guard and no "fences" that won't stand shaking. But the Queen presumably has tact and certainly has training, and she can confidently be expected to make things as easy and pleasant as possible for her hosts.

WOMEN TEACHERS' SALARIES.

Will the City Now Give Them Prompt Consideration?

The Mayor has vetoed the women teachers' salary bills, yet let it not be thought that we no longer consider him sincere, of lofty purpose, and anxious only to serve the best interests of our city.

Possibly it hurts to know that he signed the Velte-Schaap bill, in favor of men teachers, which is mandatory legislation (his plea for vetoing our bills.) It hurts, too, to believe that he is willing to guarantee a salary schedule of $900 to $2,400 to inexperienced men, while refusing equal protection to women, many of whom began their work at a salary of $300, and who still, after years of faithful service, receive but $1,800; to believe that, knowing the Board of Education had power to regulate these men's salaries, he yet felt called upon to sign a bill asking the Governor to give what the board might have given; that he was equally willing to listen to and heed the demand of the Board of Education that a similar plea in behalf of the women teachers should not be favorably considered.

Many of us believe that the Boylon bill was introduced in bad faith. Certainly it is carelessly framed, and contained a pernicious principle, that of the flat schedule. If a teacher of a 1A grade received the same salary as that granted to an 8A teacher, the Board of Education would experience some difficulty in filling positions above the 6B. It may be assumed that promotions which involve the passing of an examination and five years' experience, and which carry with them harder work, harder discipline, more preparation for work, more papers, more examinations, but no greater salary, will not be immensely popular, nor eagerly sought for.

For many years past there has been a spirit of unrest among the teachers, and a lamentable lack of sympathy and co-operation between them and the Board of Education. Thanks be, President Churchill has shown the desire and ability to bring about a better feeling. We, too, desire to further that, to increase the efficiency of the teaching body, and "to go complacently about our work."

If a committee is at once appointed to investigate all inequalities in salaries, from Principals down, if this committee acts promptly and fairly, should we not believe that both the Mayor and the Board of Education have acted in good faith in urging that home rule be recognized? If, however, this settlement is delayed, first by the Board of Education, then by the Board of Estimate, as has so often been the case in the past, if "the right moment to do the right thing" never comes, if the taxpayers are always considered and the teachers and their rights never, will we not be justified in asking the Mayor one year from this time to sanction a mandatory measure which will give us our rights? ## New Cars Help Pickpockets.

The ferries at the foot of West Twenty-third Street are a focus for the exploitation of the noble art of picking pockets, and this is entirely due to the mistaken ideas of the crosstown car line in using "pay-as-you-enter" cars. On a Sunday evening, for instance, the arriving ferryboats land continuous streams of passengers at this point, and as it takes at least five minutes to load a car, the undiminished crowds flock to the next car and the next and so on, giving the light-fingered persons a perfect orgy in the exercise of their gentle profession, especially when the struggles to mount the steps take place.

Without counting the delay in the service through the clumsy method of payment at this terminal, the encouragement it gives to this low order of thief should be sufficient to impel the Public Service Commission to demand the removal of such cars from the heavily patronized crosstown lines.

The World's Busiest Terminal.

Referring to your editorial this morning, entitled "Which is the largest traffic centre?"

Charing Cross, with its 15,000,000 handled on four levels, is not in it with the Lackawanna Railroad, which last year handled over 17,000,000 passengers on one level through its Hoboken terminal.

I am inclined to think you will find that, with the possible exception of San Francisco, the figures just quoted are the highest handled through any one terminal by any one railroad company.

PRUSSIAN TRADE SCHOOLS.

Notable Growth and Success of State Vocational System.

In view of the widening interest which the Chamber of Commerce Committee on commercial education is awakening in that subject, I would direct attention to a summary account of Prussian Trade Schools as furnished by the American Association of Commerce and Trade, Berlin, Germany. The report runs as follows:

The Prussian system of trade schools has grown to be a very successful institution, and during the past years has made rapid progress, according to an article in the Hallesche Zeitung. In 1884, 664 continuation schools, including 58,400 pupils, were under the jurisdiction of the Administration of Commerce and Trade, and the number has since increased to 1,719 trade schools and 381 commercial schools, with a total attendance of 360,000 pupils. Besides this the number of special schools has increased from 56 with 8,000 pupils to 204 with, in all, 44,300 pupils. Although in 1885 about 570,000 marks were spent by the Government in supporting these schools, in 1910 the money granted for the same purpose amounted to more than 13,000,000 marks, apart from further 4,500,000 marks for supplies.

Of course, in view of this tremendous development of the system, it was necessary to reorganize the management. The further development of the continuation schools was effected by means of cleverly arranged plans in the courses of instruction, and more especially through such schools becoming more and more a form of compulsory education, consequently obtaining more favorable hours for the courses. Superintendents and head teachers were appointed; the schools were separated from the regular public day schools, and the pupils divided into classes representing the different vocations. The German Trade Department described the importance of these schools in the following words: "They alone are equal to the task of holding the masses of young people before the time of their military service, and thus making them accessible to educational influence. Their purpose is not alone to act through the instruction imparted, but to form a foundation for other institutions providing for the welfare of the younger population."

The special trade schools have also made decided progress both in regard to number and organization. Besides the special schools for applied art, crafts, building, metal and textile industries, the trade schools for girls are worthy of special mention.

Germany may be proud of its wonderful system of schooling, and most especially the continuation schools above referred to, where boys and girls are given a splendid opportunity to increase their capacities in earning their living, thus adding to the general welfare and prosperity of the nation.

These schools are noteworthy, apart from their special aims, because of the success with which they deal with the problem of furnishing some general directive guidance of youth in those critical years between 14 and 20—the years in which too many of our young people take the wrong track mainly for the want of some institutional connection.

GOOD BOARDING HOUSES.

Why Not Put Lists in Libraries for Lonely Girls?

The discouraging side to the lonely-girl-and-good-places-empty condition is the lack of a responsible means of connection between them. Probably not one girl in a thousand ever heard of the Bureau of Boarding Houses for Girls and similar institutions, or would be able to judge of their reliability if she had. On the Public Library bulletins of Chicago is mentioned a pamphlet to be had for the asking on the educational opportunities of the city. Why could not something of the sort be done here, and made to include also authorized sources for seeking a home? Or why could not the Travelers' Aid Society, which posts in stations sundry warnings as to travel, offer also a hint to such safeguards and conveniences?

It is not sufficient to say that every one knows of the Y. W. C. A. Many people have the mistaken notion in regard to that admirable institution that they will either be accepting a form of charity or pledging themselves to some sort of religious effort.

The point is that the information should be conveyed through a medium at once far-reaching and recognizably disinterested and reliable. S. A. H.

Bible Supports Death Penalty.

Ignorance regarding the Bible is common among laymen, but one would hardly expect that a Doctor of Divinity would make the amazing statement that "capital punishment is not Biblical," as reported in THE TIMES. Here are a few Biblical statements in regard to murder:

He that smiteth a man so that he die, shall surely be put to death. * * * Thou shalt take him from My Altar so that he may die.—Ex., 21, 12-14.

The murderer shall surely be put to death.—Lev., 24-17.

Ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer * * * for blood it defileth the land, and the land cannot be cleansed of the blood that is shed therein but by the blood of him that shed it.—Num., 35, 31-33.

As to pity for the murderer (the spurious pity so common in the world) we are told:

Thine eye shall not pity him, but thou shall put away the guilt of innocent blood from Israel, so that it shall go well with thee.—Deut., 19-13.

Other quotations could be given, but the above suffice to make it evident that those who advocate the abolition of the death penalty for murder are in direct opposition to the teaching of the Word of God. W. C. C.

The Times's Rotogravure Presses.

From The Editor and Publisher.

The rotogravure press, upon which the notable reproductions of gems from the Altman collection were printed in Sunday's edition of THE NEW YORK TIMES, introduced an improvement of the slow and expensive process of photogravure to a rotary press by means of which reproductions are printed at high speed and at such moderate cost as meets the mechanical limitations of a modern newspaper.

The pictures, as well as the text, are etched upon a copper cylinder instead of upon the ordinary copper plate. Each press has two cylinders. The printing machinery of which the press is composed is lighter and more skeleton-like than the ordinary rotary press that is familiar to publishers. The twenty-eight rollers that are used on the ordinary press give way to two on the rotogravure—one for each cylinder.

A knife which scrapes all the ink from the cylinder except that which is needful for the reproduction is a feature of the new press. The metal of the cylinder is five-eighths of an inch thick. It is of necessity mathematically true as to surface conditions in order to get the needed results. After use the cylinder is ground and repolished with a loss of something like one-sixty-fourth of its thickness. A new etching can then be cut upon it.

The cost approximately equals that of half-tone printing. Fifteen thousand impressions represent the rotogravure capacity per hour. The use of these presses is an innovation in this country. THE NEW YORK TIMES has two such presses. Other newspaper plants that include a press of this kind are The Boston Sunday Herald, which has the New England rights; The Philadelphia Public Ledger, and The Chicago Tribune.

THE BANNED ADJECTIVE.

John Corbin Learned It from Oxford Students.

As an undergraduate at Oxford, I became familiar with the English use of the word "bloody." In my first vacation, at Christmas, I fell in with a Bohemian set in London—newspaper men, music teachers, singers, and so forth. Very much pleased with what I took to be a wild and rakish environment, I ventured to embellish my conversation with the newly learned expletive. The wild Bohemians almost passed away. When they revived they asked me where I, a Puritan and an American, had learned so vile a word. I replied that it was in the familiar conversation of the pupils of Jowett at Balliol. I don't think they have recovered yet.

"Bloody" is a contraction of the round Elizabethan oath, "By our Lady," which, by some curious freak, has survived in the coster dialect. The only reason I could ever find for its power to shock is its connotation of low-lived vulgarity. That, of course, was what chiefly commended it in the classic shades of Balliol—together with a large vocabulary equally under the ban in England and America.

VOTELESS PANAMA.

Would United States Prosper Without Male or Female Suffrage?

Mr. Wheeler reports that he found in the Canal Zone a commonwealth without suffrage—male or female. The people are industrious, well fed, and happy. They receive good wages and work reasonable hours. The death rate is lower than in Kansas or Colorado. Does Mr. Wheeler mean to suggest that the United States would be better off without an elected President or legislators or State Governors or other officials? Would he have us under the control of a beneficent and efficient Governor appointed by Great Britain or Germany, or, perhaps, Japan?

He tells a story of the hospitals in Panama established by the French. Ants were then a plague. To guard against them the French put the legs of the beds in pans of water. The water bred mosquitos, which bit the patients and spread disease. The intentions of the French were good, he says, but the remedy was worse than the disease. So, he thinks, it is with the suffragists. But aren't the suffragists trying to cure the disease itself, rather than choosing between ants and mosquitos? Or does he mean that the male voters are the mosquitos that have gotten ahead of the ants—the women voters—and are doing a great deal of harm? Or does he mean that the patients would rather have been stung by ants than bitten by mosquitos?

Are the women voters going to do away with that self-reliance and personal initiative which are the soul of American liberty by special legislation? Is it not Mr. Wheeler who is trying to do away with American liberty, soul and all, by suggesting that we could do away with suffrage—male and female—and still prosper? Isn't it better to have enough of a good thing than none at all? MARY CONTRA.

Rubaiyat Quatrains Not New.

I have read carefully the thirteen quatrains by Omar Khayyam, alleged to have been newly discovered, which you published in THE TIMES on Sunday, April 12.

Of course, you are aware that of the 158 quatrains of Omar Khayyam's "Rubaiyat" FitzGerald utilized only 101 in making his immortal translation. The "newly discovered" quatrains IV., VI., XII., are identical, except for some changes made by the translator, with the quatrains CXII., CXLVI., and CXXIX. of the original poem of Omar Khayyam, which were discarded by FitzGerald, probably on account of their being a repetition of thought.

While FitzGerald followed very closely the philosophy of Omar Khayyam, still he rewrote many of the quatrains, condensed others, and even changed the original order of the verses.

Literary Questions.

I am seeking enlightenment on several subjects of a literary character. First: I find in the Review of Reviews for January—delayed in transmission—a literary notice of the late Francis Thompson, English poet, in which certain of his friends are mentioned, including "Meredith, Wilde, Coventry, Patmore, Hind" and others, and while I know of Meredith, Wilde, Patmore, and Hind, will you please tell me who is Coventry? Is Coventry some one known to the critic, or is he a creation of the intelligent compositor and proofreader?

Second: In this same issue I find in a criticism of Benjamin Low's verse in reference to his "perfection of technique," this line: "One longs for the trample of the hoofs of a freer muse," and I long to learn if the muse of poetry has hoofs. If Pegasus isn't the party referred to, it is a horse on the muse, isn't it?

Third: In a recent issue of Judge occurs a story entitled "On the Pergola," and I desire to be informed if this is correct. It is a love story, not serious, and the hero and heroine are pictured surrounded more or less by the pergola. But are they on the pergola, or in the pergola, or under the pergola, or what is their correct location? On a verandah, or on a porch, or on a piazza, is all right by usage, if not wholly so in fact, but what about the less known pergola? Verandahs and porches and piazzas, having been in common use from time immemorial, writers of romance have fitted their language to them, but the pergola is so unusual in plain living that appropriate language to fit needs authority. Therefore should one say "on" or "in" or "under" the pergola? I am not asking these questions in any carping spirit, but solely for information along accepted literary lines.

Subway Ticket Delay.

Why do not the people who complain about the delay in buying subway tickets invest a few nickels in tickets, instead of standing by the window every time they take a train?

The train is not always pulling out as one goes down, and there is generally opportunity to buy at least two tickets, one for the next time. As subway tickets are good until used, the proper way is to buy, say, twenty at a time where a person travels frequently. This helps him to keep out of his own and other people's way. F. S. D.

THE NEW BABIES' FAIRY.

To whisper her gift to my child.
She thought I was sleeping, my travail just ended—
So faintly I breathed as she smiled.

"Oh, Hope of True Lovers, who longed for thy coming,"
(How gently she touched the wee head!)
"I bring thee a treasure far greater than jewels;
A wholesome sweet spirit," she said.

And lo! she had vanished—the rainbow-winged Fairy,
No humming bird's flight swift as this.
While I held my baby, and lay amid flowers

CHILDREN MAY WORK 48 HOURS A WEEK

LUNACY MEASURES VETOED

Provision for Pleas of "Guilty, but Insane," Found Defective—Action on Other Measures.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 14.—Gov. Glynn today approved the Smith bill, amending the labor law in relation to the hours of labor in mercantile establishments. This act reduces the number of hours during which children under 16 years may work from fifty-four to forty-eight in any one week, and from nine to eight hours in any one day, and prohibits their employment after 6 o'clock in the evening instead of after 7. The bill also provides that no female employe over 16 shall work more than six days, or fifty-four hours, in any one week in any city.

Luncheon time of employes is extended from forty-five minutes to an hour, unless the Labor Commissioner shall approve a shorter period. Should an employe work after 7 o'clock at night, twenty minutes for eating must be allowed between 5 and 7 o'clock. The old restriction which in cities of the second class prevented female employes from working after 6 o'clock in the evening, is changed so that they may work until 10 o'clock.

"Under this bill the discrimination against the cities of the second class is removed," the Governor explained. "While in cities of the first class female employes have been permitted to work sixty hours, they have been limited to fifty-four hours a week in cities of the second class. The law is now made uniform.

"There is no good reason which applies in one case which does not apply with equal force in the other. Instead of discouraging the growth and hampering the facilities of cities of the second class, the State should rather encourage them.

"This bill," the Governor adds, "is based upon the findings of the Factory Commission. The child labor problem is one that demands intelligent and sympathetic care, and I believe that this law is a step in the right direction."

Vetoes "Guilty, but Insane."

Gov. Glynn vetoed the two Blauvelt bills, one amending the Criminal Code in relation to pleas of insanity and the other amending the penal law relative to the responsibility of incompetent persons. With the vetoes the Governor filed a memorandum in part as follows:

"The purpose of these two bills is to create a new plea, 'Guilty, but insane,' available for defendants charged with crime, and to enact a new legal definition of the term 'insanity.' The former bill does not contain any express provision empowering the trial court to refuse to accept the plea and direct a trial upon the defendant's assertion that he is insane. At the public hearing on these bills the advocates thereof contended that, in cases of murder punishable with death, the trial court would have the same power to refuse to accept the new plea, 'Guilty, but insane,' as it now has in that single class of cases upon the plea of 'guilty,' and they suggested that in other cases it did not matter whether the court had this power or not, because the court would merely be obliged to sentence the defendant to an insane asylum instead of to prison. They also requested that if one bill were disapproved the other should also be disapproved.

"In my opinion the former bill should contain an exact provision defining the power of the trial court where this suggested plea of 'guilty but insane' is made, and authorizing the court to direct a trial upon the issue of insanity where the court or the prosecuting officer believes that that issue should be tried. I am also of the opinion that, whatever be the merit or demerit of the present definition of insanity, the suggested definition will be quite as difficult of application as the definition in existng law, which, at least, has the benefit of judicial construction.

"While both bills indicate a sincere attempt on the part of the persons interested in the subject to substitute something better for existing law, I am constrained to the opinion that the subject is one which will require further investigation and discussion before the existing law is amended."

The Blauvelt bills were recommended by a committee of the State Bar Association to meet conditions similar to those in the case of Harry K. Thaw. Opponents of the bills at the recent hearing before the Governor pointed out that if the measures became law it would practically mean the elimination of the death penalty for first-degree murder cases.

Canal Land Bill Killed.

In disapproving the Adler bill, which would give municipalities a preferential right to purchase abandoned canal lands, Gov. Glynn declared the measure against public policy. He pointed out that there was nothing in the measure which would require an appraisal of the abandoned lands before purchase by municipalities, and that this defect might result in a discriminaton against the "ten million taxpayers of the State for the benefit of a few." The bill was indorsed by city administrations and civic bodies of Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, and other cities along the new barge canal.

Psysicians convicted of a felony and subsequently pardoned may resume the practice of their profession upon the sanction of the State Board of Regents under the terms of the Seeley bill, signed to-day by Gov. Glynn. The measure was drawn primarily in the interest of Dr. William J. Morton, convicted with Julian Hawthorne for using the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of mining stock.

The amendment to the penal law for the protection of trade marks, which was urged by manufacturers, was signed by the Governor. It makes guilty of a misdemeanor any person who knowingly makes false representation as to the person by whom an article was made.

Other bills approved included: Requiring hospitals or similar public institutions to report tuberculosis cases within twenty-four hours; exempting from the additional franchise tax on transportation and transmission corporations, ferry companies operating between the Boroughs of New York under lease granted by the city. Permitting the playing of music on Sunday at funeral processions of an association of employes of national, State, or municipal governments.

ART GALLERY FOR LYME.

Colony There Intends to Erect Building at Cost of $40,000.

LYME, Conn., April 14.—Preliminary plans were announced to-day for the erection of a $40,000 art gallery here by several artists and art patrons whose homes or Summer residences are in Lyme. The building will be in the centre of the artists' colony, near the home of Miss Florence Griswold, where Woodrow Wilson and his family formerly spent their Summers.

For the last thirteen years exhibitions have been held here, and the idea of the erection of the gallery is to make the art exhibit a permanent one.

HISTORY OF DANCE AT FETE FOR BLIND

Mayor Mitchel and Governor's Wife in the Grand March of Society Led by Gen. Roe.

There was a large and brilliant assembly last night at the seventh annual ball given for the benefit of the New York Association for the Blind at the Hotel Astor. The principal feature was a fête terpsichorienne, arranged by Miss Carolyn Wells, giving the true history of the dance, including the four periods of the dance in America, beginning with the dances of the aborigines and ending with the tango and maxixe.

The grand march began at 10:30 o'clock, with Major Gen. Charles F. Roe as Grand Marshal leading, and Miss Winifred Holt, Secretary of the association, marching with Mayor Mitchel. Gov. Glynn was unable to be present, but Mrs. Glynn was there. Others in the grand march were Mr. and Mrs. Seth Low, Dr. John H. Finley, Mr. and Mrs. William Church Osborn, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fulton Cutting, Mr. and Mrs. George Cabot Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Warburg, Major and Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Henry Phipps, Mrs. Algernon S. Sullivan, Mrs. Charles F. Roe, Dr. Katharine B. Davis, Commissioner of Correction; Gen. Evans, and Dr. and Mrs. Bloodgood.

After the grand march came the dancing fête, following which letters from ex-President William H. Taft and Joseph H. Choate were read from the official box, which was draped with the American and German, and the Governor's and Mayor's flags. Dr. Finley then presented Miss Holt with a gold medal on behalf of the National Institute of Social Sciences, in recognition of her work for the blind.

The first period of evolution dances showed the Hopi Indian Snake Dances with papier maché snakes. Several explorers, naturalists, and artists took part in this dance, which was arranged by Dwight Franklyn. The participation of a Hopi Indian maiden in this dance corresponds with a white girl's coming-out party. Miss Augustine Lloyd was the Hopi débutante. Mrs. J. Dwight Franklyn, Howard McCormick, Arundel Nicholls, Charles F. Chapman, Enos Comstock, Thomas Larremore, George Mills, Mabie, Ellsworth Kolb, John Perry, Mabie, Ellsworth Kolb, John Perry, Hobart Nichols, W. W. Irwin, C. W. Beebe, Walter Pawling, Alfred Gentzsch, Howard Smith, and E. De Witt were those who appeared in the dance.

The Colonial period of dances came next, organized by Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., Mrs. Donn Barber, and Miss Juliana Cutting. In this appeared Mrs. J. H. Auerbach, Mrs. John Dix, Mrs. Stuart Duncan, Mrs. James E. Miller, Mrs. C. A. Van Rensselaer, the Misses Constance Buel, and Ina Kissel, John Dix, Stuart Duncan, J. E. Miller, Robert McKee, Gerald Onativia, Charles M. Post, Louis Treadwell, and W. MacNeill Bodewald.

The Crinoline lancers were organized by Mrs. Ashton de Peyster and Mrs. Lyle Mahan, and given under the direction of Miss Edith M. Benjamin. Those who took part in this were Mrs. de Peyster, Mrs. Haliburton Fales, Jr., Mrs. Mahan, Mrs. C. W. Vaughan, the Misses Gladys F. Endicott, Louise F. Frith, Abby Morrison, and Caroline A. Weir, and C. S. Butler, David B. Crockett, C. P. Dietsch, F. H. Kinnicutt, Nicholas F. Lenssen, L. E. Mahan, E. B. Osborne, and Henry Morgan Post. General dancing followed the programme.

Several dinners were given preceding the ball. Miss Holt had as her guests at dinner Mayor and Mrs. Mitchel, Mrs. Glynn, Mr. and Mrs. Seth Low, Mr. and Mrs. George Cabot Ward, and Mr. and Mrs. William Church Osborn.

The affair was given under the patronage of President and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, the French, German, Austro-Hungarian, British and Spanish Ambassadors, ex-President and Mrs. Taft, Justice and Mrs. Hughes, Gov. and Mrs. Glynn, Mayor and Mrs. Mitchel, and the British Consul General and Lady Bennett. Many prominent society people were among the boxholders.

MISS CLAY HARDIN A BRIDE.

Married to Warner D. Orvis in St. Agnes's Chapel—The Attendants.

Warner Dayton Orvis, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Orvis, and Miss Clay Hardin, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Hardin, were married at 4:30 yesterday afternoon in St. Agnes' Chapel, in West Ninety-second Street, and a reception for about fifty relatives and intimate friends followed at the San Remo. The church was decorated with pale pink rambler roses and Ascension lilies, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. W. Bellinger, vicar of the church.

Miss Hardin, who walked up the nave with her father, wore a trailing white satin gown draped with tulle and lace, with a court train falling from the shoulders and showing sprays of orange blossoms at the edges. Her long tulle veil fell from a lace cap caught with orange blossoms.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Nora Hayes, who was in a rose colored taffeta frock with a draped overdress of ecru chiffon embroidered in blue chrysanthemums and a white leghorn hat trimmed with pink roses.

Mr. Orvis's best man was his brother. Homer Orvis, and the ushers were George Pratt Cutter, Leonard Shider, E. Livingston Davies, Samuel Hollis, and two brothers of the bridegroom, Schuyler Orvis and Arthur Orvis.

On their return from the White Sulphur Springs of West Virginia, where they have gone to spend several weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Orvis will live at 456 Riverside Drive.

George Arents, Jr., and Mrs. Lena Richardson Thayer were married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight S. Richardson, 19 East Seventy-first Street, by the Rev. Arthur B. Churchman. The wedding took place in the drawing room, which was decorated with pink and white flowers, and the bridal party entered through a ribboned aisle from the red room at the rear of the drawing room.

The bride, who walked with her father, wore a champagne-colored charmeuse gown, draped with brown tulle, and wore a string of pearls, the gift of Mr. Arents, and a diamond placque, the gift of her father. She had one attendant, her nine-year-old daughter, Dorothy Richardson Thayer, who wore a white frock, and carried a basket filled with pink and white flowers.

Mr. Arents was attended by William S. Gould as best man. There were no ushers and none except relatives and a few intimate friends of the bride were asked.

Mr. and Mrs. Arents will sail soon for Europe to be absent until October.

HASTY PUDDING CLUB SHOW.

Harvard Athletes to Appear in "Legend of Loravia" in This City.

The Hasty Pudding Club of Harvard will give its annual comic opera on the evenings of April 20, 21, and 22 at Carnegie Lyceum. The club is the oldest college dramatic association in America, being founded in the eighteenth century. Winthrop Ames wrote some of its plays, and Theodore Roosevelt was one of its members.

This year's operetta is "The Legend of Loravia," a mythical kingdom in Southeastern Europe. It tells, of two twin princes; one, Prince Louis, is half-witted and dissipated; the other, Prince Ferdinand, is a dashing cavalry officer. The heroine is an American heiress. J. K. Hodges, part author of the book and lyrics, plays both parts. The first act is laid in Paris, the second in a tavern outside the capital city of Loravia.

The heroine is acted by Vinton Freedly, substitute quarter back of the foot ball team. J. R. O. Perkins is the young American, Bobby Bailey, who aids Prince Ferdinand, the worthy Prince. Other athletes in the cast are M. J. Logan, quarter back; W. H. Trumbull, centre; F. J. Bradley, Jr., half back of the foot ball team, and W. G. Claflin, captain of next year's hockey team.

The play has been presented in Boston and Cambridge and after its three performances here it will be seen in Philadelphia and Baltimore.

ARTIST MARRIES ARTIST.

W. F. Paris of New York Weds Miss Peggy Jones in Philadelphia.

The marriage of Miss Peggy Wynee Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Levering Jones, to W. Francklyn Paris of this city, took place yesterday at noon in St. Peter's Church, Philadelphia. It was a quiet wedding, only the immediate families and a few intimate friends being present. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. David M. Steele, rector of St. Luke's, Philadelphia, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Jeffreys, rector of St. Peter's, and the Very Rev. William M. Grosvenor, Dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, this city.

Miss Charlotte Mercer Jones attended her sister, and young John de la Poer H. Beresford, the bridegroom's godson, son of the Hon. William Beresford, a nephew of Lord Decies, acted as page. Waldemar Seckendorff, son of the late Count Seckendorff, was best man.

The bride's family is well known in Philadelphia. Her father is a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania and corporation counsel. Mr. Paris is a prominent artist and architectural decorator of New York, and belongs to the Architects and Sculptors Society, the American Federation of Art, the Grolier and Sleepy Hollow Country Clubs. His bride is an artist and has traveled extensively abroad.

GARDEN EFFECT AT WEDDING

Le Roy K. Howe and Miss E. D. Bruce Wedded in Rutgers Church.

The wedding of Le Roy Kent Howe of New York and Miss Elizabeth Donald Bruce, the daughter of Mrs. James Donald Bruce, took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Rutgers Presbyterian Church, Broadway and Seventy-third Street, the Rev. Robert MacKenzie officiating. The church was decorated to give a garden effect. Tall posts were fastened midway between the centre and side pews and across the ends of the church outlining a square. The posts were wound with leaves and topped by large pots of marguerites. The pulpit was massed at the sides and back with tree palms and huge pots of white hydrangeas.

The bride wore a draped white satin gown. Her tulle veil was held in place by a lappet cap of point lace. The little flower girl, Margot Scammell, was in a white frock with a pink sash, a hat banded with blue, and carried a basket of pink roses.

Miss Wattson Weds Lieut. M. S. Hay

Miss Florence Trodder Wattson, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, and Lieut. Muller S. Hay, U. S. N., were married at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Irwin Howell, 44 Geranium Street, Flushing, L. I., yesterday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Archibald M. Currie, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Flushing. The bride was attended by her nieces, the Misses Kathleen and Agnes Howell. Lieut. Henry Crozier, U. S. N., was best man. The bride is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College. Lieut. Hay, who is in the revenue service, is First Lieutenant on the cutter Woodbury at Portland, Me.

Bronson-Julien Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Blanchette Julien, daughter of Mrs. Paul Gerli, and Edwin Howard Bronson of this city took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the St. Regis. The Rev. Father Voucher of the Church of St. Vincent de Paul officiated. Lucien Jouvaud gave his niece in marriage. Mrs. Eugene A. Sichel was matron of honor, and G. Earle Warren was best man. Willis Warren and Allen Noaks were the ushers, and there were two little pages, Carlo Paterno and Carlo Gerli. A reception and dance followed. Mr. and Mrs. Bronson will go to Europe on their honeymoon, and will reside at the St. Regis on their return.

Gives Drama League Luncheon.

Mrs. H. Fairfield Osborn gave yesterday the sixth in the series of drama league luncheons at her residence, 850 Madison Avenue. Prof. C. S. Baldwin of Columbia University was the guest of honor, and other guests were Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. Stephen Olin, Mrs. Goodhue Livingston, Mrs. Ernesto Fabbri, Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Mrs. E. S. Harkness, Mrs. Henry A. Murray, Mrs. Walter James, Mrs. Paul Morton, Mrs. Charles Hoffman, Mrs. Lauterbach, Mrs. James Burden, Miss Virginia Gildersleeve, Miss Annie Burr Jennings, and the Misses Parsons.

Miss Grace M. Prehn to Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mason Prehn of New York City announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Grace Marcella Prehn, to Eugene Dutilh Smith, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Edmund Dutilh Smith of Newport and Philadelphia. Mr. Smith is a member of the Union Club, Squadron A, and the Racquet Club of Philadelphia.

J. S. Bache Entertains Employes.

One hundred and fifty employes of the New York branch of Jules S. Bache, the banker, were guests last night at a dinner given by Mr. Bache at the Knickerbocker. Every man in the branch, from the manager to the youngest office boy, was present, and all joined in a farewell demonstration for Mr. Bache, who sails to-day for Europe. For twenty-two years Mr. Bache has given a dinner annually for the employes. After last night's dinner the men were joined by women guests for an entertainment given by a quartet and a moving picture exhibition. W. C. Cornwell, editor of The Financial Review, published by Mr. Bache's firm, proposed a toast to Mr. Bache and Mr. Bache responded.

To-day's Weddings.

The marriage of Miss Carmen Martinez and Dr. Thomas Flournoy will take place this afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Miguel R. Martinez, 25 West Tenth Street.

Miss Grace Livingston Hegger, daughter of Frank Hegger, and Sinclair Lewis will be married to-day at the bride's home, 345 West Seventieth Street.

The marriage of Miss Viola Hunter, daughter of Dr. L. J. Hunter of 840 Lexington Avenue, and Ray Newhall Spooner will be held to-day.

The wedding of Miss Leida Harrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew V. C. Harrington, and Geoffrey S. Ernshaw of Devon, Penn., will be solemnized to-day at the St. Regis.

'THE RED CANARY' IS NO RARA AVIS

IT INTRODUCES MR. BARNES

And Such Fun as the Piece Has Is All in the Antics of This Recruit from Vaudeville.

THE RED CANARY, a musical comedy. Music by Harold Orlob, lyrics by Will B. Johnstone, book by William Le Baron and Alexander Johnstone. At the Lyric Theatre.

If the men who concocted the entertainment now playing at the Lyric Theatre set about their task determined that "The Red Canary" should not differ in any shining particular from the average musical comedy shown in this city within the last few years they may be said to have succeeded. The result is vapidity. It is the variety of diversion persistently designed for the tired business man, but if it found that mythical individual tired one would think it would leave him inexpressibly wearied. For "The Red Canary" is a very dull bird, indeed.

This dullness is not relieved by any story of interest, by any particular wit or by many songs sufficiently tuneful to have a humming, lingering hold upon the theatregoer after he has found his way to the street. But in choosing Paris as their setting and in taking a leaf out of other musical comedy books, those who fashioned this entertainment have not neglected to sprinkle the two acts with a little coarseness and at more than one point in the progress of "The Red Canary" what is proffered as humor, is uncommonly objectionable. It may be noted in passing that at these points last night's audience did not seem to be vastly amused.

The slender story of the piece is based upon the proposition that as a man is lighted, so is he. Your emotions depend upon the color rays that have just fallen upon you. The white rays beget an exalted frame of mind, the green rays make for jealousy, and the characters in this story are, of course, engaged in a scrambling search for the blue ray of love. That was precisely the tint of the canary before that unhappy bird was facetiously dyed red and turned loose in the light air of Paris.

All this, so far as any attention is paid to it at all, is rather tedious, but it so happens that at some stage in the preparation of "The Red Canary" for presentation in New York the services of T. Roy Barnes were engaged for the purpose of enlivening the entertainment. The choice of Mr. Barnes was wise, for he, at least, is amusing.

This young player, like Mme. Petrova, has just stepped off the vaudeville stage and, although in his "cut-up" antics he clearly trails the glory of the "two-a-day," he is decidedly an acquisition for the halls of musical comedy. His humor has a freshness. There is something engaging about his abrupt speech and his broad smile.

Mr. Barnes is one of those entertainers who, like Mr. Collier, would provide just their own variety of fun, no matter what was written for them or who wrote it. It is impossible to leave "The Red Canary" without a conviction that he touched up the lines of the part of Hunter Upjohn to suit himself and to win the familiar laughs he finds it so easy to provoke when he is in vaudeville.

Mr. Barnes, then, is the best of "The Red Canary," but several other members of the cast do their best. Miss Hughes, most recently seen here in "Maids of Athens," has good looks and a good voice; David Reese sings with a pleasing tenor, and Adele Rowland is a sprightly addition to the company.

Baird-Butterworth Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart Baird of 137 West Eighty-fifth Street have announced the engagement of their third daughter, Miss Isabel Imlay Baird, to George Forrest Butterworth, Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Forrest Butterworth of 57 East Fifty-fourth Street. Mr. Butterworth was graduated last June from Columbia University and is now a student at the Columbia Law School.

Herzl Zion Club to Give Play in Old Hebrew Language.

A performance of "Joseph and His Brethren" in the Hebrew language of Biblical days, is to be given to-night at the Lenox Theatre, Lenox Avenue and 111th Street.

The actors are to be boys and girls of no more than 18 years of age, members of the Dr. Herzl Zion Club, formed in tribute to the late Jew who gave the best years of his life to the reclamation of Palestine by the Jews. It is the annual custom of this club of the lower east side to give an amateur dramatic performance in the language of Moses and the prophets. The reason for these performances is to revive the ancient Hebrew tongue as well as to preserve among the Americanized Jew an understanding and a preference for the old mother tongue.

"Joseph and His Brethren" was written by the young Hebrew poet and playwright, Isaac Kantzenelson.

MISS SARAH MANICE WEDS.

Married to Charles Henry Mellon in Chapel of St. Thomas's Church.

The wedding of Charles Henry Mellon, the son of Mrs. Charles Henry Mellon of Morristown, and Miss Sarah Remsen Manice, the daughter of Mrs. William Manice and the late Mr. Manice, took place at 12 o'clock yesterday in the Chapel of St. Thomas's Church, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's, assisted by the Rev. Dr. William G. Thayer of St. Mark's School. Palms divided the chapel from the church, and the chancel was decorated with palms, white roses, and hydrangeas.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Eleanor Mellon, a sister of the bridegroom. She wore a blue satin frock with a bustle pannier, and a bodice of white lace. Her white lace hat had a yellow rose and touches of blue satin and her bouquet was made of yellow roses.

Mr. Mellon's best man was Schuyler Parsons, Jr., and the two ushers were John B. Pitney and Watson C. Emmet.

None except relatives and a very few intimate friends was asked to the ceremony. Among those at the church were Mr. and Mrs. Devereux Milburn, Mrs. E. Hayward Ferry, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Le Roy Edgar, Mrs. William De Forest Manice, Mrs. William Manice, Mrs. Charles H. Mellon, the Misses Jeannie Emmet, Josephine Nicoll, Winifred Chisolm, Eleanor Mortimer, Eleanor Lawrence; also Dr. Reuel Kimball, Shepherd Krech, Edward Shippen, Morgan J. O'Brien, Jr., Robert Bradley, De Forest Grant, Arthur Gardner, and A. D. B. Pratt.

It will be produced with the cast of the Gilbert & Sullivan organization which is now playing on tour, including De Wolf Hopper, Arthur Aldridge, Herbert Waterous, Arthur Cunningham, John Thomas, Alice Brady, Mabel Wilbur, Sarah Edwards, and Gladys Caldwell.

Julian Eltinge announces that his engagement at the Knickerbocker Theatre, where he is appearing in "The Crinoline Girl," by Otto Hauerbach, is to be extended, and he expects to appear at that theatre until the middle of June.

GOVERNMENT DROPS TOBACCO PARLEYS

NO AGREEMENT ADOPTED

May Indicate a New Policy of Department of Justice—Independents Are Pleased.

Some, and presumably all, of the tobacco companies which have recently been seeking to come to an understanding with the Department of Justice as to its requirements under the Sherman law, received notice yesterday from District Attorney Marshall's office that negotiations were off, and that the Government would participate in no further conferences.

Whether this meant that the Government would proceed to institute suit, or whether it would wait to see what steps might be taken voluntarily by the companies to meet its views, could not be learned. Such steps will be taken in any event, and it is expected that the American Tobacco Company will announce to-day that hereafter it will sell to all jobbers on the same terms as to the Metropolitan Tobacco Company.

It is known that this matter was under consideration yesterday by the officials of the company. Similar announcement was made last Sunday by the P. Lorillard Company. The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company took the same action more than a year ago, before the investigation of the Metropolitan Tobacco situation by Mr. Marshall's assistant, Claude A. Thompson, which recently came to a head, was begun.

Whatever move the Government may have in contemplation, the notification given yesterday clearly does mean that no agreement, in the form of a decree or otherwise, will be made by the Department of Justice, such as it has been making under the present Administration with a number of combinations that were under fire. This is eminently satisfactory, so far as it goes, to the independent tobacco interests. Charles Dushkind, counsel for the independent jobbers, who have complained bitterly of the alleged monopoly of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, said yesterday that he was strongly opposed to any agreement on the part of the Government.

"What I have contended for all along and what I would prefer now," he said, "is a prosecution of the Metropolitan and the manufacturing companies that have maintained its monopoly. If the Government, however, is desirous of an amicable settlement of the situation, then I maintain that it should be accomplished without any agreement or any agreed decree.

"The Government has informed the companies that they are violating the Sherman law. It does not need to tell them how to conform to it. They know how fair trading conditions may be restored, and it is their business to restore them. Should the Government, by agreement, lay down specific rules as to what they must do and what they must not do, they would conform to the letter of these rules, but as likely as not, judging by results in other cases, this would not re-establish fair conditions. That sort of thing is what has made a farce of other dissolutions.

Would Let Results Count.

"I would like to see the Government—always providing it is unwilling to proceed with an immediate prosecution—give the companies a reasonable opportunity to restore fair conditions without any obligation on its part to recognize certain acts as doing so regardless of the presence or absence of good faith and regardless of actual results. The Government, in my opinion, is under no obligations to do anything further, and certainly it would be unfortunate if its hands were tied by any agreement.

"The present case is a very simple one. It involves no question of breaking up a stock control or of making a division of brands, as in the dissolution of the Tobacco Trust, but is only a question of trade practices. The companies know what practices are unfair, and they know what practices would be fair. If they do what they consider necessary to make conditions fair and they have that result, the Government might do nothing further. If they did not have that result, the Government would be free at all times to begin proceedings against them."

The application of this doctrine, it was pointed out yesterday, might have very far-reaching results if it was adopted by the Department of Justice and extended to the disintegration of other combinations. As one attorney expressed it, it would put business in general one step further away from a clear determination of what was required of it by the Sherman law, inasmuch as the Department of Justice, during the present Administration, has shown itself willing to point out in specific instances what it considered necessary to conform to the statute.

The position outlined by Mr. Dushkind, on the other hand, would leave a new Administration free to insist on changes not required by its predecessor. This might be a fine thing for the Government, it was said, but it would leave business more "up in the air" than at present.

Added importance was given to this doctrine, if its adoption in the tobacco case is foreshadowed by yesterday's notification, by the fact that it followed upon consultations in the last few days between Messrs. Marshall, Thompson, Herbert C. Smyth, special assistant to the Attorney General in these matters, and Mr. McReynolds himself, who was in this city.

On the other hand, it was pointed out that the doctrine might be applied to the tobacco situation wihout involving a more general application, because of the fact that in most dissolutions specific rules must be made by the Department of Justice or by the courts as to the disintegration of the business and the distribution of stocks and bonds. While this was true, however, it was said, the Government might still refrain from committing itself as to the trade practices that would or would not be permitted, leaving upon the defendants the obligation to act in a lawful manner and reserving its right to decide whether they were doing so. In other words, the new doctrine might be superimposed upon the former agreement plan.

Conferences Cut Short.

The calling off of negotiations with the tobacco companies yesterday followed fast upon the last conference, which was held only the day before and was expected to be followed by others. The conferences began some time ago, when Mr. Thompson's investigations, which include the whole tobacco field, reached a point where the Department of Justice was satisfied that the Sherman act was being violated in respect to the Metropolitan Tobacco Company.

The Metropolitan is a jobbing concern, which was recognized by the old Tobacco Trust as the only jobber in New York and surrounding territory, including parts of New Jersey and Connecticut. It was not a party to the dissolution suit, and after the trust had been split up the resultant companies, including the American, P. Lorillard, and Liggett & Myers, continued to deal with it exclusively in its territory, although the last named declared an "open market" within a short time.

Independent jobbers have been unable to buy goods made by any components of the old trust at other than retail prices, and have therefore had to sell such goods to retailers at cost. Independent manufacturers have also complained that the Metropolitan, because of its relations with the big companies, discriminated against their products, so that to a large extent they were barred out of this city.

With all of these companies selling at wholesale prices to other jobbers, a great change in conditions is expected by the independents, but they still maintain that the Metropolitan itself will continue to be a monopoly in violation of the Sherman law because of its intrenched position, and that other jobbers will be at a disadvantage in competing with it. In fact, they have demanded all along that the Metropolitan be wiped out of existence.

There was talk yesterday that the Metropolitan might voluntarily quit business, if an open market was to prevail, because of the fear that under such conditions a cut-rate war among jobbers would start with resultant loss to all jobbers, itself included.

SULZER HERO OF WEAK PLAY

Neither theatrical nor political history at the present moment records why James S. Barcus, a former Senator in a Western State, gave up "Senating" and took to playwriting. There is the chance that Mr. Barcus's constituents managed to get hold of the manuscript of his play "The Governor's Boss." If they did, the rest is easy. "The Governor's Boss" was produced at the Garrick Theatre Monday night by Mr. Barcus himself and a friend, outside the fold of regular theatrical managers, who is said to have money.

"The Governor's Boss" is a dramatization of the impeachment of Gov. Sulzer, and John E. Kellerd, who holds the record of having played Hamlet for 100 nights in New York, is the Gov. Sulzer of the new play. He has made few changes in his Hamlet make up and Hamlet method of playing for his new rôle, but by the addition of a frock coat and a wide-brimmed hat has managed to introduce a very fair picture of Mr. Sulzer. Incidentally Mr. Kellerd established a new record in "The Governor's Boss" by having his name printed on the theatre programme in the largest type ever used for that purpose. George Fawcett, who plays Hiram Tally, the boss, comes next in importance on the programme, with type several sizes smaller than that allotted Mr. Kellerd, but still several sizes larger than that given the rest of the company.

Mr. Fawcett, up to last night, had not made himself entirely familiar with the lines he was scheduled to speak. He will probably have to hurry if he intends to become letter perfect in his part before "The Governor's Boss" goes into retirement, for it is as poor and uninteresting a play as might possibly be imagined. The one bright spot in the entertainment, so called, is the performance of Richard Gordon as the Governor's Secretary. Mr. Kellerd does as well as possible in his Hamlet-Sulzer way with the impossible lines and situations of Gov. Lancelot Shackleton, and Mr. Fawcett may, if Author Barcus and his managerial friend will but keep the play going long enough, show up to advantage. As for the rest of the company, the least said the better.

"The Governor's Boss" sticks pretty closely to the events leading up to the impeachment of Gov. Sulzer. In this stage version of Mr. Sulzer's political troubles, however, history is shunted at the impeachment trial and the Boss goes down to destruction, while the Governor, his daughter, his secretary, and Virtue in general triumph.

Miss Sarah N. Van Santvoord.

Miss Sarah N. Van Santvoord, 76 years old, died yesterday at the Park Avenue Hotel, where she had made her Winter home for the last seven years. Miss Van Santvoord was born in this city and was the daughter of Abraham and Catherine L. Van Santvoord. She was the niece of Alfred Van Santvoord, a capitalist, and one of the founders of the Hudson Day Line of steamers, who died in 1901. Seymour Van Santvoord, President of the Security Trust Co., is her cousin. Miss Van Santvoord, until her health failed several years ago, was active in philanthropic work.

SIR WILLIAM WHYTE DEAD.

Ex-Vice President of Canadian Pacific Began Career as Brakeman.

Sir William Whyte, former Vice President of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, died in Los Angeles, Cal., yesterday. Mr. Whyte was knighted by King George at his coronation in 1911, and was widely known both in Canada and the United States. He was born at Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, on Sept. 15, 1843. He was educated in the school there, and as a young man entered the service of the West of Fife Railway, in Scotland. He went to Canada in 1863 and for the next twenty years he was employed by the Grand Trunk Railway as brakeman, freight clerk, conductor, and finally rose to the position of Division Superintendent. In 1884, he was made General Superintendent of the Credit Valley Railroad and the Ontario & Quebec Railway.

Sir William Whyte became General Superintendent of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Pacific Railroad in 1884, and later became General Superintendent of the Eastern and Western Divisions as well. He was appointed Second Vice President of the Canadian Pacific in 1904 and was in charge of all lines west of Lake Superior, and in June, 1910, he was elected Vice President, with headquarters at Winnipeg, Manitoba. He retired in August, 1911.

Sir William Whyte was also Vice President of the Winnipeg Electric Railway Company and the Standard Trust Company of Winnipeg, and a Director in the Imperial Bank of Canada, Imperial Guarantee and Accident Insurance Company, and the Confederation Life Association. He was a member of the Manitoba and St. Charles Country Clubs of Winnipeg, St. James's of Montreal, and Union Club of Victoria, B. C.

TRIBUTE TO TITANIC DEAD.

East Side Children Honor Memory of Mr. and Mrs. Isidor Straus.

On the eve of the second anniversary of the sinking of the Titanic, in which Mr. and Mrs. Isidor Straus perished, 1,000 children, mostly public school boys and girls, gathered last night in Hamilton Fish Park under the auspices of the East Side Protective Association to honor the memory of the two friends of the east side children.

Several speeches were made and the evening closed with the sounding of "taps" by the bugles of the police boys of the association.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ........3¾@4% for the best names.
Monday ........3¾@4% " " "
The quotation is for six months' paper.

Popularity of Taffetas.

As an instance of the well grounded confidence in the continued popularity of taffetas one seller reports an order for 600 pieces for delivery on Dec. 1. The manufacturer who gave the order is considered to be well posted and not one who usually takes a chance in calculating the demand so far ahead without good reason. The talk on brocades has rather died out as that fabric is thought to be too heavy for use in the manufacturing of the prsent fragile tango gowns.

Plenty of Mill Treasurers Here.

According to a prominent gray goods broker there were more mill Treasurers in this city yesterday than at any other single time in his connection with the trade. Fall River, Providence, and New Bedford were especially well represented. It is said that only two things will bring a crowd of Treasurers to this market at one time, very good business or very bad. Since business is by no means good at the moment in these lines, it should not be difficult to figure out why so many Treasurers are here.

A Week's Exports.

General exports, exclusive of specie, from the Port of New York last week, were valued at $18,594,934, compared with $20,608,973 in the week previous, and $18,358,564 the corresponding week one year ago. The total value of the present year's exports to date is $303,452,572, against $288,646,195 in the corresponding period of 1913. Exports of domestics and cotton duck from New York last week were valued at $506,105, against $476,622 in the previous week. The greatest amount shipped to a single country, $153,374 worth of cotton goods, went to China. The week before, the Philippines led with $171,903 worth.

It's All in the Name.

A number of instances were cited yesterday by a piece goods factor to show how the sellers have been benefited by the variety of names under which common fabrics are masquerading. In one case, he said, his house had been stuck with a large quantity of kerseys. He took them around to a clothier who exclaimed on seeing them, "why I didn't know you were making granites." It wasn't his duty to put the clothier right, this man pointed out, since it was the merchandise that was desired. The result was that the mill got rid of the goods at a fair profit instead of the expected loss.

Anthracite Coal Trade Active.

"April is developing sufficient business to keep the anthracite collieries fully employed," The Coal Trade Journal will say to-day, "though the operators are not so far behind on their orders as is sometimes the case at this season. There is no particular snap to the demand, but enough dealers want coal this month to insure an outlet for all that can be procured. From present indications there will be less business than usual carried over into May. The decision of the Central Pennsylvania operators to close down while a new wage scale is being negotiated was very well received by members of the local bituminous trade. It was felt that the need of such action was imperative in view of market conditions."

Dress Reorders Coming Well.

A good duplicate business in Spring dresses is reported by the local manufacturing trade, with that from the South in this line especially good at the moment. Duplicate orders from other parts of the country are being retarded somewhat by the continuance of comparatively cold weather, although in the aggregate orders now being received mount into goodly volume. A much better demand for wool and silk dresses is reported at the moment than was the case a year ago this time. A nice business is being done in Summer wash dresses by the manufacturers who make this class of goods, the favored fabrics being crêpes and both printed and solid voiles. White seems to be in best demand in this class of goods, though colored dresses, especially such shades as pink, wistaria, and heliotrope, are being well taken by the retailers.

Embroidery Bidding Brisk.

About 125 buyers, representing department stores, jobbers of laces and embroideries, manufacturers of children's, misses', and women's dresses, and makers of waists, were present yesterday at the opening of the peremptory auction sale of embroideries of John Frischknecht & Co. of this city. About $75,000 worth of flouncings, allovers, neckwear, and assorted goods were offered, and the first 1,100 lots catalogued were disposed of. Bidding was active and the prices obtained were generally satisfactory to the sellers. D. Hartman was the auctioneer. Among the department stores represented at the sale were the Maison Blanche Company of New Orleans; Abraham & Straus of Brooklyn; R. H. Macy & Co. of this city; E. W. Edwards & Son of Syracuse; the Miller & Peck Company of Waterbury, Conn., and the Goerke Company of Newark, N. J. The sale will be continued to-day at 10:30 A. M.

Gray Goods Market Weaker.

COTTON CONSUMED IN MARCH

Decisions on Protests Made by Importers of Various Goods.

The Hatters' Fur Exchange of New York failed yesterday before the Board of United States General Appraisers to secure an allowance in duties for damage to hatters' fur ruined by water during the voyage across the Atlantic, because, as Judge McClelland says in his decision, there was no proof that the water damage was done before the arrival of the merchandise in New York, or evidence to show to what extent the goods were damaged.

F. Euler & Co., New York, objected to the Collector's classification of decorated glass aquariums and accompanying wool felt mats, which were returned for duty under the woolen schedule of the old law, at 44 cents a pound and 60 per cent. ad valorem, as felts not woven. The articles were claimed to be properly dutiable as entireties at 60 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 98, as decorated glass. The assessment by the Collector is affirmed on the ground that the mats are not necessary parts of the aquarium. The Stone & Downer Company, Boston, was overruled in a contention relating to so-called felt jackets, used in connection with paper making machines. They were classified as "felts not woven" and were assessed for duty at 44 cents per pound and 60 per cent. ad valorem. The firm claimed the goods to be dutiable as manufactures of wool not specially provided for.

Hensel, Bruckman & Lorbacher and C. Bischoff & Co., Inc., New York, were sustained in their contention for free entry for tuberculin or other serums which are not vaccine virus.

Imitation pearls on heavy wire, imported by Albert Lorsch & Co., New York, were returned by Collector Malone as parts of jewelry at 60 per cent. ad valorem, under Paragraph 448 of the old law. The pearls were claimed by the firm to be properly dutiable as imitation precious stones at 20 per cent. Protest sustained.

B. Altman & Co. failed in claims for lower duty on silver framed eye-glasses with silver handles and rings to attach to the person, and brooches, hatpins and head band ornaments made of brass, gilded and set with imitation precious stones. The articles were classified by Collector Malone as articles of personal adornment under the old tariff, duty being taken at 85 per cent. ad valorem. Judge Sullivan holds that the importers did not make the correct claim, and for this reason the Collector's classifications will stand.

It was decided that jet articles imported by Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, were properly dutiable under the old law at 60 per cent. as jewelry. Strawbridge & Clothier, Philadelphia, were successful in a claim for a 45 per cent. duty on plain gun metal mesh bags, and metal and enameled mesh bags, as manufacturers of metal not specially provided for in the old law. The action of the Collector in exacting 85 per cent. ad valorem as personal adornment articles was reversed.

DUTIES ON CHEMICALS.

Test Cases Being Framed to Try Out the New Tariff.

Ever since the enactment of the present tariff last Fall, reports have been circulated that importers contemplated attacks on Schedule A, relating to chemicals, oils and paints, in order to obtain lower rates of duty on some of these products. This mode of procedure is said to be feasible owing to the fact that many changes in phraseology are made in the new law, not incorporated in the Act of 1909.

The forerunner of this series of attacks takes the form of a protest filed with Board 1, of the United States General Appraisers, in which objection is made by the Farbwerke-Hoechst Co., of New York to Collector Malone's classification of Hansa yellow, which has an extensive use in this country, in the production of printers' ink, the coloring of typewriter ribbons, and certain papers, such as blotting papers, and in paints of various kinds. During the life-time of the old law, the product in question, was invariably assessed at 30 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 15, as a coal tar dye or color not specially provided for.

So far as could be learned yesterday, importers raised no objection to this classification of the commodity. The Hansa yellow figuring in the present case was imported under the new law, and the Collector, following the usual practice, assessed the product at 30 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 20, which provides for coal tar products. Henry J. Webster, as attorney for the importing firm, appealed to the board from this classification, and insisted that the Hansa yellow product is more expressly provided for under Paragraph 63, of the new act, at 20 per cent. ad valorem, as "all other color lakes." The old law provided a duty of 30 per cent. on "lakes," whereas the new act adds the word "color," making the provision read, "color lakes."

The importers base their claim for lower duty on the ground that the term "lakes" is gradually broadening in its scope and embraces a larger variety of colors than formerly, and for this reason the classification should be changed accordingly. Other concerns interested in the claim are the Consolidated Color and Chemical Company, Berlin Aniline Works, the Farbenfabriken of Elberfeld Company, and Badische & Company.

THE COLLECTOR ERRED.

A Case Where It Was Not Necessary for Importers to Protest.

An order from the Board of United States General Appraisers for the reliquidation of entries of goods in bonded warehouses issued during the lifetime of the tariff under which the merchandise was imported, is mandatory upon Collectors of Customs, regardless of the fact that before the reliquidation began a new tariff was in effect. In such cases, it is further held by Judge Waite, in a decision made yesterday for Board 3, that importers are not required, to file new protests with the Collector under such new law.

D. H. Arnold & Co. and others, New York, imported woolen fabrics while the Tariff act of 1897 was in force. After entry, the Collector liquidated, and in this action he added to the dutiable value 2½ per cent. ad valorem for commissions, to make what he regarded as correct foreign market value. Protests followed, and, on appeal, were sustained.

The Collector then claimed that as a new law had been passed, superseding the law under which the original liquidation was made, he was bound to reliquidate on all those cases which were in bonded warehouses at the time the new law was passed, and that against such reliquidation the importers were bound to protest within the time prescribed by the statute, regardless of the action of the board in ordering a reliquidation while the act of 1897 was effective. The importers failed to file any protests under the new act with the result that the Collector ignored the board's order, and reliquidated, including the commission items in the dutiable value.

Judge Waite holds that it was unnecessary for the importers to protest against the reliquidation made after the law of 1909 went into effect as claimed by the Government. It is held that the Collector had no authority to ignore the judgment of the board and court. It is pointed out that if any error was discovered in the proceedings before the board in the first instance, such evidence should have been brought to the attention of the court and a modification of the judgment asked. The Collector is directed to reliquidate the entries, omitting the items of commissions from the dutiable value.

As to "Tricks in Every Trade."

The article entitled "Tricks in Every Trade" in your issue of Sunday, March 29, has been quite considerably misconstrued as referring to us as the "nationally known fountain pen manufacturer."

We wish to set both you and your readers straight regarding the manufacture of ink known to both the trade and the public, and labeled "Waterman's Ideal Ink." Said ink is positively of our own manufacture, has been for many years, and owing to its superior quality, will be for many years to come. We are one of the large ink manufacturers of the country to-day, and our factory is open to inspection wherever it is of mutual interest and advantage.

BUSINESS NOTES.

An average of about 60 cents on the dollar was maintained at a sale of cretonnes, linens, and tickings conducted yesterday by the Leopold Gans Company, 46 Wooster Street. A large number of local buyers attended.

Three associations in the needle trades have authorized the committee in charge of the formation of a mutual insurance association, which will take care of the risks under the workmen's compensation law, to go ahead with the plans for the company's organization.

TRADE IN FRUIT AND NUTS.

Imports and Exports Double in Past Decade.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Foreign trade of the United States in fruit and nuts practically doubled in value in the past decade, the total imports having been $335,000,000 and exports $220,000,000. Imports rose from $24,500,000 to $48,750,000, and exports from $19,750,000 to $33,750,000 in the period from 1903 to 1913.

Figures made public by the Department of Commerce and Labor to-day show that imports of fruits and nuts for the first two months of 1914 aggregated over $6,000,000 in value, or 20 per cent. more than those for the like period last year, while exports amounted to $4,000,000 in value, or about 30 per cent. less than a year ago. The sharp decrease in exports is accounted for by the shortage in the Pacific Coast fruit crops the past year.

The domestic food supply was supplemented last year by $32,000,000 worth of fruits and $16,000,000 worth of nuts from foreign countries and, in addition, over $4,000,000 worth of fruits and nuts from Hawaii and $3,500,000 worth from Porto Rico.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

City.

HERMAN BAEHR & CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Herman Baehr, trading as Herman Baehr & Co., manufacturing furriers, 22 West Twenty-seventh Street, by Rosenthal & Hermance, attorneys for these creditors: David Haar, $500; E. S. Wheeler, $272, and D. E. Horwitz, $180. The assets are estimated at $25,000.

LAGCO, INC., manufacturer of bimetal products, percolators, and art metal specialties, 225 West Thirty-ninth Street, made an assignment yesterday to Samuel Adamson. A petition was also filed against the corporation by Myers & Goldsmith for these creditors: Charles H. Potter, $101; Isidor Gluck, $108, and Samuel Pasternack, $565. The liabilities are $19,000 and assets $5,000.

WALTER F. SLADE and HARRY B. NEESEN, who were partners in the Sprague Worsted Mills, 257 Fourth Avenue, have filed a petition, individually and as partners, in that firm. The firm liabilities are $13,419 and assets $801 cash. Among the firm creditors were the Atlantic Mills, Providence, $2,027; Newman Cotton Mills, $2,196, and William Crabtree & Sons, $2,328. Mr. Slade has individual liabilities of $14,665 and assets of $62. Among his creditors are Hecht, Liebman & Co., $7,000, and J. Kochland & Co., $7,000. Mr. Neesen has individual liabilities of $1,550 and assets of $115.

ABRAHAM OBERMAN.—A petition has been filed against Abraham Oberman, manufacturer of dresses, 35 West Nineteenth Street, by these creditors: P. Pressman & Co., $255; Shapiro, Rockman & Co., $103, and Arrow Silk Mills, $300. The liabilities are $5,000 and assets $1,000.

DR. WILLIAM R. PRIME of 3,750 Broadway has filed a petition, with liabilities $9,849 to ninety-five creditors and assets $6,178. Among the creditors are St. Paul's Church, $353; Mary H. Prime, $6,539, and a trained nurse, $130.

DAVID WASSER, clerk, of 214 Madison Street, has filed a petition, with liabilities $5,323 and assets consisting of an undivided half interest in a house at 2,148 and 2,150 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, mortgaged for $3,900, value unknown. He filed the petition to get rid of a judgment filed against him on Feb. 26, 1914, by Minnie Preker for breach of promise of marriage.

SAMUEL EPNER, dealer in diamonds and jewelry, 105 Canal Street, has filed schedules, which show liabilities $46,280 and assets $5,208.

HERBERT I. HALL COMPANY, commission fruit and produce, 122 Warren Street, has filed schedules, which show liabilities $34,195 and assets unknown. All the assets were turned over to trustees for creditors on Sept. 15, 1913, and $4,000 has been realized. The company owes $23,067 in Europe—London, Liverpool, Glasgow, and Hamburg.

JOSEPH DI BENEDETTO.—Judge Hough has dismissed the petition filed against Joseph di Benedetto, contractor, of 423 East 115th Street, on Nov. 26, 1913, on consent of all his creditors, seventy-one in number. He had a city contract for sewers in Queens.

LEVINE & OLTARSH, manufacturers of cloaks and suits, 31 West Nineteenth Street, have made a settlement with creditors at 50 cents on the dollar, payable 25 cents cash and 25 cents in notes, and Judge Hough has dismissed the petition filed against them on Nov. 10.

WEST RUPERT LUMBER COMPANY.—Judge Hough has dismissed the petition filed on Jan. 21 against the West Rupert Lumber Company of 61 Park Row and West Rupert, Vt., on consent of creditors.

DAVENPORT LEATHERWARE COMPANY.—Judge Hough has appointed Clifford G. Ludvigh receiver for the Davenport Leatherware Company of 5 and 7 White Street, bond of $3,000, with authority to carry on business five days. The liabilities are $25,000 and the assets $7,500.

Out of Town.

NAMES THOMAS AND MORSE

Their Associates and Corporations Caused Heavy Loss, He Says, in Replying to $1,500,000 Suit.

F. Augustus Heinze filed yesterday through his attorney, Jacob L. Schwebel, a bill of particulars concerning his declaration that he had been induced to purchase 8,000 shares of the Mercantile National Bank stock at $350, when its real value was only $181 a share. Four actions were begun against Mr. Heinze by Edwin Gould, Richard Young, and William Nelson Cromwell for $1,500,000, which they said he owed on the stock. The transaction occurred prior to 1907, when Mr. Heinze came here after a successful season of copper mining in Montana.

Mr. Heinze was familiar with mining, but his attorney said yesterday that he knew little about finance. The Mercantile Bank had taken over the Broadway National Bank and the Seventh National Bank, and it was a flourishing institution. Mr. Heinze paid $400,000 in cash for the stock and gave his note for the remainder, leaving the stock in the hands of the bank officials as collateral. Mr. Heinze refused to pay the difference, and when the work of liquidating the bank began his stock was credited to him at $125 a share, together with his cash payment, and the suit was begun for the difference, which amounts with interest to about $1,500,000.

Mr. Heinze delayed giving the particulars because he said it would be necessary for him to see the books of the bank before they could be furnished. Recently the books were examined and the bill of particulars was then filed.

In the bill Mr. Heinze says that Charles W. Morse and Miles M. O'Brien were engaged by Edwin Gould and others as their agents to induce Mr. Heinze to buy the bank stock "at a false and fraudulent valuation, in pursuance of a fraudulent scheme, for the purpose of defrauding, cheating and deceiving the defendant." The bill also says that the alleged surplus of $4,000,000 which the bank was said to have was made up in part of doubtful and uncollectible debts and property of depreciated value. He says that between Jan. 1, 1907, and Feb. 15, 1909, the alleged surplus was reduced on the books of the bank to $2,000,000.

Mr. Heinze then gives the "items of doubtful property" other than loans. Among the names appear those of E. R. Thomas and associates and Charles W. Morse and his corporations. Among the "items of doubtful property" there is mentioned a total of $1,936,398.87, consisting of accounts, sundries, discounts, and so forth, of the three banks, the Mercantile, the Broadway, and the Seventh National. The names of associates of E. R. Thomas and of the corporations in which Mr. Morse was interested are given in part as follows:

John F. Carroll, O. F. Thomas, American Ice Cream Company, Charles T. Burney, Consolidated Arizona Smelting Company, George W. Wilder, Joseph D. Carroll, Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Horse Company, George A. Fernald & Co., the Eastern Steamship Company, Primrose & Brown, and Robert McClay & Co.

Then the bill gives items which it says resulted in heavy loss to the bank. The total of these various sums is $2,164,677.13, and the net loss from them is given as $1,500,000. A few of these items charge John F. Carroll with $196,412.83; Charles T. Barney, $254,600; the American Ice Company, $247,500; E. R. Thomas, $99,000; the Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Horse Company, $109,054.13, and George A. Fernald & Co., $310,000. The bill says:

> Most of these items when written off the books of the Mercantile National Bank seem to have been contracted subsequent to Jan. 4, 1907, and appear to have been paid; whereas, as a matter of fact, they were not paid, but were discharged by the new obligations contracted by persons and corporations heretofore mentioned.

The paper that Mr. Heinze says was bad and uncollectable, that came from the Seventh National Bank, included accounts ranging in amount from $700,000 to $74,086. The bill says that these accounts, while they helped the consolidation of the bank with the Mercantile Bank, worked to the disadvantage of the latter institution.

The bill also says that these "items have been written off the books of the Mercantile National Bank at various times and the particular dates and nature of the obligations can be obtained from the books of the bank." Listed as "bad paper" are items ranging in amounts from $261,035.52 to $86,263.28. The bill says that full particulars concerning these items can also be obtained from the books of the bank.

To Issue $5,000,000 Bonds.

Permission was granted yesterday by the Public Service Commission to the New York Connecting Railroad Company to issue $5,000,000 of bonds. These will be used to raise funds for the extension and completion of its line, its work on its bridge across Long Island Sound having made rapid progress lately.

April 11, 1914.

The holders of more than seventy-five per cent. in amount of all the outstanding New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company's Three and One-half Per cent. Gold Bonds, Lake Shore Collateral, having consented to the consolidation of The New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company and the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway Company, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the offer to consenting holders of the privilege of exchanging, following consolidation, their 3½ per cent. bonds for 4 per cent. mortgage bonds, as set forth in the letter from the Company to the Lake Shore collateral bondholders, dated May 14, 1913, is withdrawn as to holders of such bonds who have not prior to April 11, 1914, given their consent to consolidation.

By order of the Board of Directors.

New York, April 7, 1914.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE KINGS COUNTY REFRIGERATING COMPANY.

Notice is hereby given that a special meeting of the stockholders of the Kings County Refrigerating Company will be held on the 22nd day of April, 1914, at 2:00 P. M., at the office of the Vice President, Mr. W. S. Barstow, 50 Pine Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, New York City, for the purpose of voting upon a proposition to increase its capital stock from two hundred thousand ($200,000) dollars, consisting of two thousand (2,000) shares of a par value of one hundred ($100) dollars each, to three hundred thousand ($300,000) dollars, consisting of three thousand (3,000) shares of a par value of one hundred ($100) dollars each, and to classify such proposed increase of one hundred thousand ($100,000) dollars as preferred stock.

Each stockholder is entitled to subscribe to his or her proportion of shares of such preferred stock. Such preferred stock is to have voting power the same as the common stock now outstanding, and is to entitle the holder to receive cumulative preferential dividends in each year at the rate of ten per cent. (10%) per annum, payable out of the net earnings of the company before any dividend shall be declared or paid on the common stock. In the distribution of the assets of the corporation, the preferred stock is entitled to be paid in full the par value thereof, together with all unpaid dividends accrued thereon, before the common stock receives any payment. The remaining assets are to be paid and distributed pro rata upon the common stock.

This stock is to be redeemable at 110 of par at the discretion of the company in such manner as shall be determined by the Board of Directors.

W. S. BARSTOW, Vice President.
JNO. J. PHELAN, Secretary.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Apart from the news of the concentration of the Atlantic fleet off Tampico, which served, of course, to bring the Mexican situation very prominently to the fore in financial discussion yesterday, the matters with which the Stock Exchange and the financial district at large dealt with during the day were matters which have long been under discussion. The decline in prices carried the general level of quotations to within a fraction of the low point of early January preceding the brisk advance which culminated on Feb. 4. Yesterday was the first half-million share day since that date. The selling seemed to come largely from professional sources. The buying was not sufficiently determined to prevent considerable inroads being made upon quotations. The close was somewhat above the lowest of the session, but net losses of a point or more occurred in most of the active stocks.

The market was as weak, if not weaker, before the announcement regarding the naval concentration in Mexican waters as it was after that news reached the financial district. The further fall in prices, therefore, was fairly to be attributed to the other influences at work rather than to the Mexican news. That situation was recognized however as one which might easily develop into a larger immediate factor. The morning selling seemed to be prompted chiefly by the continuation of adverse trade news, particularly regarding the steel trade and by the interpretation put in some quarters upon the latest announcement from the Interstate Commerce Commission regarding the railroads' application for increased freight rates. In some important banking quarters less confidence is coming to be felt that the decision of the commission will be in favor of the 5 per cent. increase for which the railroads have asked. It is still confidently expected that the Commission will recognize the need of improved net earnings, but more thought is being given in the financial district to the possibility of the comission suggesting that such increase as the railroads may need in net revenue be obtained by other means than the proposed increase in freight rates. This of course harks back to the recommendations which the commission made in the tap line case regarding the discontinuance of terminal allowances and of so-called free services to shippers. The frequent rumors regarding the character of this important situation cannot of course be accepted as reliable indications of what the commission's ruling will be, but they serve to emphasize one of the unfortunate effects of the long delay between the raising of this rate question and its settlement.

Meanwhile railroad earnings are being watched very carefully. The accounts now coming to hand regarding the condition of general business do not suggest anything like a full volume of railroad earnings. At the same time it is thought that some of the Eastern railroads, thanks partly to the economies put into effect will make a better showing for March than for February. It is also expected that some Western lines will make good reports for that month, it being reported that the Union Pacific statement for March will show an increase in net.

Another old matter which came in for fresh discussion yesterday is the proposed corporation legislation at Washington which some had hoped would be allowed to go over for more mature consideration at another session of Congress. What the Washington dispatches had to say regarding the President's insistence upon this subject being dealt with before adjournment of the present session served to give the talked-of anti-trust legislation a new lease of life as an adverse market influence.

Interest was very keen yesterday in the probable outcome of to-day's New York City bond sale. The belief continued to prevail that the issue would be largely oversubscribed. Plans are progressing for the other important items of financing which are under way, those for the New York Central underwriting having been practically completed yesterday. The bond market as a whole showed a good tone and the demand is broad. This appears to be true not only of New York but of other markets in this country where new issues have been made. Yesterday's announcement that the next Union Pacific dividend would be declared at the rate of 8 per cent. was in keeping with the plans laid when the distribution of Baltimore & Ohio stock to the Union Pacific shareholders was decided upon. It is understood that an effort will be made to obtain a speedy ajudication from the Court of Appeals on the questions raised in the injunction suit against the Union Pacific in this matter, which was recently decided in favor of the railroad by the court of first instance, from which the case is now being carried to the Appellate Division.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Wait for Storm Results.

Shareholders of the Western Union Telegraph Company will not be able to get a line on the company's operating costs in the big snowstorm of March 1 when they receive their quarter's dividend checks to-day. The company has been in the habit of sending with the checks a statement of earnings and expenses for the quarter, of which the figures for the last month were partially estimated. With this quarter's distribution there will go out, however, a statement covering only January and February. An alteration of accounting methods was necessitated by a change in the classification of accounts prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the Directors decided that reports to be made public should show the latest available results of actual operations alone. In the two months the company earned a gross income of $6,754,712, a decline of $141,490 from the same period of 1913. Running expenses were reduced $146,940, a saving that brought an increase of $5,450 in net profits with a total of $1,247,336.

After listening for a week to cheerless conjectures in the Wall Street district about the possible effect of fresh trust legislation and to tales of the timidity of capital, a visiting Western business man unburdened himself yesterday in these words: "You people down here are like the man who went straight home from his office every night for twenty years and always found the hall lamp lighted for his coming. Then came a night when the light was out. He stepped in and found everything dark and silent. As he fumbled around for the hat rack there was a noise. He couldn't tell from the sound whether it was a mouse or a burglar, but he was scared half to death just the same. It proved to be a mouse."

Foreign Markets Quiet After Recess

The once familiar query at about 9:45 o'clock in the morning, "How's the London market?" is rarely heard in commission houses. There was a time and not so very long ago, when no trader either large or small calibre felt that his day had begun in the right way if he did and asked this question as soon as he stepped into his brokerage office. Yesterday the foreign market started up after a four-day recess, and many persons had let a great many yards of tape run through their fingers before they thought to inquire about trading in American shares abroad. The cables brought the information that everything was quiet. London took part in the early pressure against Steel on the local Exchange, but afterward offset this work partially by purchases of Canadian Pacific and Copper. It was estimated at the arbitrage rail that a balance of sales of about 15,000 shares stood on the books at the end of the session.

Big Day for Bonds.

The New York Central has stolen a march on the Controller of New York City by getting its bonds off a day ahead of the city offering, but dealers were saying yesterday that the investing market was sufficiently broad to take care of both issues without congestion. It is not often that $105,000,000 in bonds are sold within a few hours, as will happen to-day. The Morgan syndicate, to place $25,000,000 of the $40,000,000 New York Central bonds bought by the bankers, was being organized yesterday, and the letters allotting each firm its shares will be received this morning. It is understood that applications were in excess of the amount for sale, so that subscriptions will be reduced. Gossip in the Street had it that an offering price of between 95 and 96 had been fixed on the issue, and that the members of the syndicate would have 2 points under the public figure.

Agreed to Disagree.

The New York Central has approximately $225,000,000 of stock outstanding; the Lake Shore, $50,000,000, of which all but $5,000,000 is held by the Trustee for the New York Central. When the matter of consolidating the two properties is put to a stock vote it will naturally be carried by a larger majority than is needed under the law. The Central management is working out a basis of exchange or ratio on which the two issues will enter into the consolidation of the new company, but it is understood that the principal holders of Lake Shore have expressed their unwillingness to accept the terms tentatively offered them, and that both the management and the minority are agreed that the value of the Lake Shore must be fixed by an appraisal under the courts.

When the Central makes known its terms to be offered to holders of Lake Shore the latter are expected to oppose approval of the consolidation plan, and to ask for an appraisal of their stock under the laws of Ohio, which provide that a minority stockholder, dissatisfied with the price offered him in a consolidation, can get an independent appraisal. At last reports the minority and majority interests were far apart, the latter inclined to think $500 a share a high valuation, while the minority asserted that on the basis of exhaustive valuation figures the stock is worth $1,285 a share.

The Public in John D.'s Confidence?

The financial district has been a little skeptical of the circumstantial information which has been given it regarding John D. Rockefeller's investments lately, and while not dismissing the accounts as idle gossip, has hardly accepted them at their face value. It was recently made known that Mr. Rockefeller looked kindly on New York City bonds, which was possibly the basis for a report yesterday that a bid for $25,000,000 of to-day's issue would be made by brokers in his behalf. It was also said yesterday, and quite generally believed in bond circles, that of the $15,000,000 of New York Central 4½s privately placed by Morgan & Co. no less than $5,000,000 will go into Mr. Rockefeller's strong box. A man who buys in such quantities can get close to the bottom price.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

London Market Reacts After a Cheerful Opening—Prices Weak in Paris.

LONDON, April 14.—Money was in good demand and discount rates were steady to-day.

After a strong competition Russia obtained the bulk of the $3,250,000 new gold offered in the open market at ¼d advance. The stock market reopened cheerfully, but quiet pending political developments. Home rails advanced on expectations of good holiday traffic reports, and Canadian Pacific and oil shares were strong, but the market reacted in the afternoon when Paris offered its favorites rather freely.

American securities opened steady and a fraction higher. The list advanced on good buying during the forenoon and Canadian Pacific gained 2 points. Later Wall Street and the Continent turned sellers and prices declined and closed weak.

PARIS, April 14.—Prices were weak on the Bourse to-day.

LOVETT SETTLES RUMORS.

Union Pacific Dividend Will Be 8 Per Cent., Plus B. & O. Accretions.

Uncertainty due to the delay in the payment of the Union Pacific's extra dividend, necessitated by court action to restrain the award was cleared up yesterday by Judge R. S. Lovett, Chairman of the board, when he made it plain that the regular dividend would be reduced to 8 per cent. as originally planned. He explained, however, that the stockholders would suffer no loss, since the dividends on Baltimore & Ohio stock which are being paid into the Union Pacific's treasury pending a decision on the company's right to distribute the shares are being held for the Union Pacific owners and will be turned over to them if the objection of the preferred holders are overruled by the courts. Judge Lovett said:

"There seems to persist some misunderstanding respecting the dividend policy of this company. When the extra dividend was declared last January, it was distinctly stated that, as the stockholders would receive a return of 2.01 per cent per annum from the Baltimore & Ohio stock and cash distributed, the regular dividend would be reduced to 8 per cent. per annum. While the actual payment of the extra dividend has been postponed, owing to litigation, the condition remains the same, that when the extra dividend is paid, it will be to stockholders of record March 1, and will carry with it all dividends paid on Baltimore & Ohio stock after April 1 and interest earned from that date on the cash part of the dividend. As the stockholders will thus eventually receive these accretions, it is manifestly proper that the next regular dividend on the common stock of this company should be at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum.

"The next semi-annual dividend of the Baltimore & Ohio will be payable Sept. 1, and will cover the period from March 1. It is hoped that before that date pending litigation will be disposed of.

"Of course, if the payment of the extra dividend should be permanently enjoined, I should expect the Union Pacific to pay its stockholders the difference between the 8 per cent. and 10 per cent. rate, since in that case it would retain the cash and Baltimore & Ohio stock, which, through its extra dividend, it has undertaken to distribute."

UNION BAG & PAPER PLANS.

Committee Named to Seek Economy and Efficiency.

To bring about economical and efficient business methods, President Riegel of the Union Bag and Paper Company has appointed a committee to inquire into the finances of the concern. The committee is composed of August Heckscher, Guy Morrison and Mr. Riegel. Last September a committee of shareholders investigated the company's affairs and recommended numerous changes, which are to be supplemented by the findings of the new committee.

President Riegel told stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday that a great deal of money would be required to properly develop the Canadian plants. He said that since the Canadian properties were acquired in 1905 less than 10 per cent. of the needed capital had been expended on them.

T. & T. EARNINGS HIGHER.

Gross earnings of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company in the three months ended with March 31 were $11,564,003, a gain of $347,762 over the first quarter of last year. Net income amounted to $10,233,431, an advance of $235,692. A balance of $1,292,211 was left after fixed charges and dividends were paid.

In January and February gross income of the Bell Telephone system aggregated $36,476,470, an increase of $2,051,113 over the same months of 1913. Net revenue of $9,807,133 was greater than the combined net of January and February in 1913 by $5,071.

To Give Up Failed Bank.

BAYONNE, N. J., April 14.—The stockholders of the First National Bank of Bayonne voted approval, last night, of the plan of the Union Trust Company of Jersey City to take over the defunct bank. Out of a total of 1,000 shares, 842 were represented.

P., C., C. & St. L. Directors Chosen.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., April 14.—Stockholders of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad here to-day in annual meeting elected the following Directors: William H. Barnes, Philadelphia; Samuel S. Dennis, Newark, N. J.; G. L. Peck, Pittsburgh, and Thomas De Witt Cuyler, Philadelphia. The Directors will meet in Philadelphia for organization. An item of the annual report shows that $1,800,994 was expended in replacing property destroyed by the floods of March, 1913.

Corporations Must Register.

Deputy State Controller Buckley issued a statement yesterday calling attention to the fact that Gov. Glynn had signed a bill providing a penalty of from $100 to $500 for the failure of a corporation maintaining an office in New York State to file with the State Controller a registration of its principal office and place of business, with the time and place of its incorporation. The new law was drawn to supply the failure of the State Stock Transfer Tax law of last year to specifically cover all foreign corporations doing business here.

First to Take Federal Bank Shares.

The National City Bank, one of the last institutions to give notice of its intention of joining the new Federal Reserve System, is the first bank in New York to subscribe to its allotment of shares, which is 30,000. The initial payment is $500,000 and the total payment $3,000,000.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

J. Stuart Auchincloss has withdrawn from N. W. Halsey & Co. F. Monroe Dyer, who has been associated with the firm for more than 10 years, has succeeded him as manager of the sales department.

Directors of the New York Title Insurance Company have passed the quarterly dividend usually paid on April 15. This action, it was said, was taken because of stagnation in the real estate market and the resulting loss in title insurance business. The dividend has not been earned in the past three months, and the board was not willing to pay it out of surplus. The last dividend was 1¼ per cent.

The annual meeting of stockholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company was held yesterday, about 300,000 ballots being cast by policyholders and 76,000 by stockholders. There was no opposition to the administration ticket.

CITY BOND PREDICTIONS.

Bankers Still Expect the Issue to be Largely Oversubscribed.

On the eve of the sale of $65,000,000 new 4¼ per cent. bonds by the city, bankers and bond men in the financial district said yesterday that there was no reason for changing predictions previously made that the issue would be largely oversubscribed. There was talk of two or three syndicates whose bid would be for "all or none," but the reputed members of these groups were entirely silent about the matter. It was stated by bankers, who said that their firms would try for round lots of the bonds, that an unusually large number of small groups of bond houses would probably be represented in the bidding.

In some conservative quarters of the Street a price of 101½ was mentioned as a figure the city might expect to receive for its corporate stock in view of the steady demand for municipal bonds. It was pointed out that a recent issue by the City of Cleveland had been distributed easily on a basis yielding the buyer 4.15 per cent. on his money, and the prediction was made that New York could do as well as, if not better, than this.

On the Curb contracts for $300,000 of the new bonds changed hands at 101 15-16 and 101⅞. These prices showed a fractional recession from the top quotation since the bonds were traded in on a "when issued" basis, but the strength of the securities was still great enough to make Curb brokers believe that the winning bids would have to be close to these figures.

RAILROADS OPEN BUREAU.

Will Collect Information on Wages and Working Conditions.

John G. Walber, Secretary of the new Bureau of Information of the Eastern railroads, which is to take the place of the Managers' Conference Committee, took formal charge of the bureau at its headquarters, on the third floor of the New Haven Railroad Building, 70 East Forty-fifth Street, yesterday. The bureau will occupy the offices used by this committee when it was organized, two years ago, to deal with the demands of the locomotive engineers.

The new bureau will take up the routine work formerly done by the Managers' Conference Committee in collecting statistics of wages and working conditions, and the clerical force of the committee will be retained. The Managers' Conference Committee will be continued until the matters between the trainmen and conductors are settled. This may take a week.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Dealings on the Consolidated Stock Exchange were the largest since Jan. 16 last. The market was a very broad one also in respect to variety of securities dealt in, sixty-nine different issues being on the list, the best showing since Sept. 30, 1912. The dealings in United States Steel made it one of the features. Its sales alone amounted to 27,140 shares. There was further evidence of liquidation in it, with its price touching a new low level. Its action exerted an adverse influence upon the entire market. On the decline commission houses handled a large business. Overnight price changes recorded on the 9:30 o'clock opening call generally reflected gains, but the better feeling was shortlived.

THE CITY'S FINANCIAL OPERATIONS.

| Cash Basis— | Corp. Stock Notes. | Rev. Bonds and Bills. | Special Rev. Bonds. |
| Net increase or decrease | 1,297,933.27 | *598,920.48 | *311,000.00 |
| Outstanding April 10, 1914 | $71,033,646.49 | $80,992,583.60 | $4,619,625.00 |
| Cash balance April 10, 1914 | 6,532,657.15 | | |

*Decrease.

The proceeds of to-day's $65,000,000 sale of city bonds will be more than sufficient to pay off all of the corporate stock notes as they stood at the close of business last Saturday, less the unexpended balance of cash received from the sale of such notes. The issue of additional notes this week or the expenditure of part of the cash would operate to increase the net obligation shown above as $64,500,989.34, but in any event only a small amount of notes will be left outstanding when the transaction is concluded.

Interest on Deposits

This Company receives deposits which may be made either subject to check or in the form of demand or time certificates. It solicits individual, household and business accounts and allows interest thereon.

Depositors in the Fifth Avenue Branch may cash checks and make deposits at the Main Office, if they so desire, and a similar arrangement may be made by depositors of the Main Office at the Branch.

National Car Wheel Company, 6% First Mortgage 20-Year Gold Bonds.

Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee under the First Mortgage of National Car Wheel Company, dated September 22, 1903, hereby invites proposals for the sale to it of sufficient six per centum First Mortgage Twenty-year Gold Bonds above mentioned, at not exceeding 110% of the principal amount of said bonds, to exhaust as nearly as may be the sum of $105,000, now held by it under the sinking fund provisions of such mortgage. Proposals must be delivered to the Trustee at its office, 16 Wall Street, New York City, by 3 P. M. May 11th, 1914, and each proposal should state the date (not later than September 1, 1914,) when the bonds included therein will be presented for purchase, should such proposal be accepted. Should no date be so stated, the Trustee will assume bonds are offered for delivery by 3 P. M. on May 15th, 1914, and, if accepted, will be deliverable to the Trustee on such date, when interest thereon will cease.

In the event of the receipt of two or more proposals for such sale, at the same rate, such rate being low enough to warrant acceptance by the Trustee, such proposals will be accepted in pro rata proportions, provided that no purchase will be made at a rate exceeding 110% of the principal amount of said bonds, and that the Trustee reserves the right to reject any or all proposals in whole or in part if it can at the time of opening said proposals purchase the requisite amount of said bonds, or any part thereof, at a lower price than the lowest price offered by said proposals.

Leaves $80,000 to Hospital.

The Presbyterian Hospital will receive a bequest of about $80,000 under the will of Mrs. Nellie M. Noe, who died at her home, 380 Riverside Drive, on March 9. The will was filed for probate yesterday and disposes of an estate estimated at $250,000. Numerous bequests, ranging from $500 to $25,000, were made and the residuary estate was then divided equally between Robert Caterson of Woodlawn, one of Mrs. Noe's friends, and the Presbyterian Hospital. Mrs. Noe was the widow of Samuel B. Noe, a New York commission merchant.

FORECLOSURE SALES.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT Court for the Southern District of New York.—GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK and EDWARD M. F. MILLER, as Trustees, complainants, against ALASKA-EBNER GOLD MINES COMPANY, and others, Defendants.—In Equity.—No. 10.157.

In pursuance of the Decree of Foreclosure and Sale duly made and entered in the above entitled action, bearing date the 23rd day of March, 1914,

I, PAYSON MERRILL, Special Master in said Decree named, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesrooms, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 22nd day of April, 1914, at 12:30 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, the property directed by said Decree to be sold and therein described as follows:

One million, seven hundred thousand, three hundred and fifty (1,700,350) shares of stock of Bristol Consolidated Mines and Smelting Company, of the par value of one dollar ($1.00) each, two hundred and fifty thousand (250,000) shares of said stock being subject to lien in favor of E. R. Chapman, Chapman Bondholders' Committee, or H. W. Martin.

One hundred and ninety-nine thousand, nine hundred and ninety-six (199,996) shares of stock of the Day-Bristol Consolidated Mining Company, subject to lien in favor of E. R. Chapman, Chapman Bondholders' Committee, or H. W. Martin.

One hundred thousand (100,000) shares of stock of Ebner Gold Mining Company, of the par value of five dollars ($5.00) per share, sixty-eight thousand and eighty (68,080) shares of said stock being subject to lien in favor of E. R. Chapman, Chapman Bondholders' Committee, or H. W. Martin.

One thousand (1,000) shares of stock of the Humboldt Mining Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey, having a par value of one hundred dollars ($100) a share.

Office furniture and fixtures of the defendant Alaska-Ebner Gold Mines Company located at 80 Broadway, City of New York, N. Y., of the approximate value of eight hundred fifty-eight and 58/100 dollars ($858.58).

75 light dynamo,

Open claims on the books of the defendant Alaska-Ebner Gold Mines Company against the Bristol Consolidated Mines and Smelting Company, for money advanced, amounting to $47,442.41.

Claim on account of loan to F. L. Underwood, made under resolution of the Board of Directors of the Alaska-Ebner Gold Mines Company at a meeting held July 5, 1910, for $15,000.00.

Claim against E. L. Lobdell & Company, Chicago, Illinois, due January 26, 1910, for $6,101.69, on account of sale of bonds of the defendant Alaska-Ebner Gold Mines Company, bearing interest at 6%.

Claim against E. L. Lobdell, of Chicago, Illinois, for $16,000 par value of bonds of the defendant Alaska-Ebner Gold Mines Company, now in the hands of said Lobdell.

All right, title and interest, if any, of the Alaska-Ebner Gold Mines Company to redeem certain of the property situate in the County of Madera, State of California, in the United States of America, including the mining property known as the Ne Plus Ultra Group of Mines hereinbefore more specifically described, and all right, title and interest in and to the said property.

All right, title and interest in and to the said Alaska-Ebner Gold Mines Company, and in and to all other property, real and personal, of every kind and nature.

All of said property will be sold subject to certain liens specified in the said Decree of Foreclosure and Sale entered in the office of the Clerk of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York in the above entitled action on the 23rd day of March, 1914.

Intending purchasers are referred for any further information desired as to details with reference to the property to be sold, to the Receivers herein: Messrs. Frank Sullivan Smith, Robert W. Bonynge, and William R. Barbour, who may be addressed at the office of their Solicitors, viz: Either Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, 49 Wall Street, New York City, or Frederic W. Frost, Esq., 60 Wall Street, New York City.

No bid will be received from any person making the same unless such person shall first have deposited with the Special Master, one day in advance of said sale, as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of acceptance, the sum of $10,000 in cash, or by certified check upon any Bank or Trust Company acceptable to the Special Master.

No bid of less than $225,000 will be accepted by the said Special Master. At the time any bid is accepted 10% of the purchase price must be paid in cash, or by certified check satisfactory to the Special Master, as against which amount there will be credited the sum of $10,000 deposited by such bidder as a pledge to make good his bid in case of acceptance, and the balance thereof must be paid within 30 days after the acceptance of the bid.

Further details concerning the sale may be obtained by consulting the terms of sale at the offices of the Solicitors for the complainants, Stetson, Jennings & Russell, 15 Broad Street, New York City, which said terms of sale will be ready for inspection 2 days in advance of the sale.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—A development of the Southern Texas disturbance of three days ago has reached Georgia and Eastern Tennessee, resulting in general and heavy rains in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, and the Carolinas, and storm warnings have been ordered on the Atlantic Coast from Wilmington to Nantucket.

Over the northeast pressure is high, but over the remainder of the country the distribution is irregular, with another disturbance moving into the North Pacific States and British Columbia. There was no precipitation other than that mentioned, except some light rains in the North Pacific States and the Far Northwest.

It is colder over the Southern rain area and decidedly warmer from the Lake region eastward. In the West high temperatures continue and Yuma, Ariz., reported the first temperature above 100 degrees for the present season.

There will be rain Wednesday in the Atlantic States and the Upper Ohio Valley, probably continuing Thursday in New England.

It will be somewhat cooler Wednesday night in the Middle Atlantic States and on Thursday in New England. It will be warmer by Thursday in the Ohio Valley and the East Gulf States, but over the remainder of the country temperature changes will not be decided.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be shifting, becoming northeast and increasing, probably to a moderate gale over the south portion by Wednesday night.

FORECASTS TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York and Southern New England—Rain Wednesday; colder at night in interior. Thursday, rain; increasing east to northeast winds, probably becoming moderate gale Wednesday afternoon or evening.

Northern New England—Increasing cloudiness Wednesday, followed by rain. Thursday, rain or snow; shifting winds, becoming north and increasing by Wednesday night.

| 3 A. M. | 53 | 35 | 4 P. M. | 58 | 46 |

| 12 M. | 57 | 48 | 11 P. M. | 53 | 41 |

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yestrday was 42; for the corresponding date last year it was 54; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 48.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 39; at 8 P. M. it was 41; maximum temperature, 50 degrees, at 2 P. M.; minimum, 33 degrees, at 6 A. M. Humidity, 71 per cent., at 8 A. M. and 64 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.35 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.25 inches.

EDUCATION NOTES.

The appointment of James V. Smith as a clerk in the Bureau of Supplies, Department of Education, has been revoked.

The Board of Education has approved the report of its Committee on Supplies, amending the resolution adopted Jan. 14, with reference to the emergency appointment of Flora Herr as a stenographer and typewriter by striking out those titles and inserting the word "clerk."

The report of the Committee on Supplies with regard to the award of contract for furnishing and delivering work for use in the New York Parental School for the year ending Dec. 31, 1914, has been approved by the Board of Education.

Moving pictures will be given this afternoon and evening in Public School 155, Eastern Parkway and Herkimer Street, Brooklyn. The school now has its own moving picture booth.

The model flat in Public School 7, Hester and Chrystie Streets, will be open for inspection next week. In this flat girl pupils from Schools 9 and 62 will be taught how to conduct a home.

MOTHERS' DAY MAY 10.

Ministers to be Asked to Aid the Annual Celebration.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 15.—Mother's Day will be celebrated on May 10, as announced by the Mother's Day International Association to-day. The Federal Government is lending its assistance to the movement, and on that day the clergy of the whole country will be asked to preach sermons regarding the general welfare of the home and so help to make Mother's Day of practical value.

The celebration of this day is in no way connected with woman suffrage, although the association is friendly to the suffrage movement wherever it may benefit the home.

New Elms and Oaks for Harvard.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 14.—The reforestation of the Harvard yard, made necessary by depredations of the leopard moth among the ancient elms, will be made with large-sized elms and red oaks, according to plans announced to-day. The planting is under the supervision of Prof. Fisher of the Forestry School of the university. Thus far thirty-one new red oaks have been planted.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission received a communication from its Chief Clerk calling attention to the transfer of Bridget McCarthy from matron in the Department of Correction to attendant in the office of the President of Manhattan, which was approved by the commission on Feb. 18, but not made effective by the Department until April 1. The Chief Clerk asked for instructions in view of the fact that certifications of transfer are construed to hold good only for a period of fifteen days. The commission has ordered that new certificates be issued.

The commission has approved the following reports:

Recommending that the name of Charles Freifeld be continued on the disqualified list, in view of the fact that the Commissioner of Street Cleaning said that he has no objection to the removal of the disqualification, provided Freifeld does not reenter the service of his department.

Recommending that the name of Giro Guido be continued on the disqualified list in view of the statement of the Commissioner of Street Cleaning to the effect that he does not think he would make a desirable employe.

From the Secretary of the Department of Public Charities, relative to J. F. Larbey, who was appointed as Assistant Supervisor, in an emergency, beginning Feb. 1. Authority to continue his services is requested until the commission renders a decision as to whether or not the position may be classified in the non-competitive class, for which application has been made.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination at the New York Custom House for junior civil engineer, for men only, on May 6, to fill vacancies as they may occur in the Interstate Commerce Commission under the act providing for the valuation of property of common carriers.

The salaries will range from $1,200 to $1,500 a year, with necessary expenses when absent from headquarters in the discharge of official duties.

Appointments will be principally for duty in the field, but some appointments will be made for duty in Washington, D. C.

Competitors will be examined in mathematics, including algebra, geometry, and trigonometry; theory and practice of railway surveying, education, training, and experience. Applicants must have reached their twenty-first but not their thirty-sixth birthday on the date of the examination.

Further information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

O. G. Jennings Trades Seventy-second Street Residence for Fifth Avenue Plot—Greenwich Village Deal—Sale on South Street—Buyers in the Bronx—Commercial Leases.

Residential deals in the Lenox Hill section of Fifth Avenue formed an important feature of the realty market yesterday. Oliver G. Jennings, it was announced, has sold his large four-story house at 7 East Seventy-second Street, covering a plot 28 by 102.2, the buyer being the Four West Fifty-seventh Street Company, controlled by W. Emlen Roosevelt. With this announcement it was also learned that Mr. Jennings is the buyer of the vacant plot at 882 Fifth Avenue, 30 by 175, between Sixty-ninth and Seventieth Streets, reported sold a short time ago. At that time the Fifth Avenue plot was taken by the Roosevelt interests from August Heckscher in part payment for the purchase of 4 West Fifty-seventh Street, and two abutting parcels in Fifty-sixth Street by Mr. Heckscher, who thereby increased his holdings on the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street.

The Jennings home in Seventy-second Street has been taken by the Roosevelt company in exchange for the Fifth Avenue parcel, and it is Mr. Jennings's intention to erect a fine home there at an early date. His seventy-second Street home adjoins the vacant plot belonging to James Stillman on the Fifth Avenue corner, and on the east is the large home of Henry T. Sloane. William B. May & Co. were the brokers.

In the immediate locality, it was rumored that the four-story residence at 81 East Seventy-second Street, on the northeast corner of Madison Avenue, 30 by 102.2, had been sold by Laura V. Rhinelander. It is opposite the Rhinelander Waldo residence on the southeast corner, which has never been occupied.

Buyer for West 71st St. Dwelling.

Mrs. M. J. Sexton has sold to a client of Pease & Elliman 22 West Seventy-first Street, a four-story high-stoop private dwelling, on a lot 18.3 by 100.5. The buyer will occupy.

Investor Buys Greenwich Village Dwelling.

Another old dwelling in the upper Greenwich Village section changed ownership yesterday for the first time in a number of years when William A. White & Sons sold for Mary B. Hopson 122 West Thirteenth Street.

The structure, which occupies a lot 20.10 by 103.3, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, was purchased by Dominico Cella, who owns the adjoining property 124, also a three-story and basement dwelling.

Old South Street Loft Sold.

The old five-story warehouse at 228 and 229 South Street, running through to 449 and 451 Water Street was sold yesterday by Augusta Werrich to Reardon Brothers. The structure occupies a plot 40 by 160 feet and has not changed title for years. D. & W. Mullins negotiated the transaction.

Bennett Avenue Building Loan.

A building loan of $149,000 has been obtained by the Oscawana Building Company on the two five-story apartment houses to be erected on the east side of Bennett Avenue, 208 feet north of 181st Street. It will be the first big building operation on the avenue, which runs north from 181st Street 200 feet west of Broadway. The loan was obtained through the J. Romaine Company and Robert A. White. The new houses will each have a frontage of 85 feet.

Bronx Borough.

William S. Weiss has purchased for improvement a plot of five lots on the northeast corner of White Plains Avenue and 242d Street. Hall J. How & Co. represented the seller, William Sorley.

The four-story apartment house, occupying a lot 25 by 100 on the northeast corner of St. Lawrence and Gleason Avenues has been sold by Jacob Cohen to an investing client of George McCaffrey. This apartment was one of the first built in this particular location.

Alexander Selkin and David Mintz were the brokers in the sale of the sixteen apartment houses on the northwest corner of 170th and Charlotte Streets and on Wilkins Avenue, purchased by John J. Tully. The consideration was close to $750,000, and the deal was all cash over the first mortgage.

The M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company has leased the two five-story apartment houses at 1,553 to 1,555 Minford Place for the Stability Realty Company.

Alexander Selkin and David Mintz have sold for Ida Brantman the lot on the north side of Dorsey Street, 105 feet east of Zerega Avenue, 25 by 75.

$114,000 in Bronx Mortgages.

Whitley P. Westervelt negotiated three mortgages of $38,000 each for five years on the property of the Jackson Construction Company, located at 997, 1,001, and 1,005 Kelly Street, three five-story apartment houses, each on a plot 50 by 100.

Brooklyn.

Fred. M. Smith has sold 337, 339, and 341 Hamilton Avenue for Eugene R. Shotwell to Charles Gillon and Michel Samuels. The property consists of a four-story brick triangular building, with stores, at the intersection of Hamilton Avenue, Court and Centre Streets, being 54 feet on Hamilton Avenue and 70 feet on Centre Street.

There is now a mortgage of $11,500 on the property which will be reduced by the purchasers. It is planned to make extensive improvements.

Maurice G. Straus has sold for the Howard Improvement Company four dwellings on the south side of Avenue S, 40 feet east of East Thirteenth Street, near the Brighton line. The consideration was $50,000.

New Rochelle Sale.

Alexander Selkin and David Mintz have sold for John Muller 294 Lockwood Avenue, New Rochelle, a three-story house and garage, on plot 50 by 82.

Staten Island Purchase.

New Jersey.

They also have resold a large strip of property on the north side of Cooper Avenue to a New York investor. This is the second time this property has been sold in the past three months.

Commercial Leases.

Walter J. Salomon has leased the store in the Seymour Building, northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, to Stewart E. Bruce, for confectionery.

The Allwin Realty Company, Inc., has leased for a term of years the loft building on the southeast corner of Twentieth Street and Third Avenue for H. C. Glaser to Abraham Unger, who will occupy the premises as a manufacturing establishment.

Cross & Brown Company has leased for the Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company to Partridge, Clark & Kerrigan, Inc., the entire building 237 West Fifty-sixth Street.

The store in the Astor property at 22 to 26 West Thirty-fourth Street, which has been vacant since the Forsythe corporation closed down last year, is to be occupied by the newly formed Bradshaw & Co., which have arranged to lease the premises for the remainder of the Forsythe lease, made in May, 1911, for fifteen years, at $65,000 per annum.

Hotel Property Leased.

J. B. English has leased for Edward Glennon to the Constantinople Hotel Company the four-story building 153 West Forty-eighth Street for a term of years. The place has been known as the Café Bergui. The lessees have purchased through the same broker the entire contents, including the fixtures and furniture. After extensive alterations the premises will be occupied as a high-class Turkish and American restaurant.

The John H. Fife Company leased for the owners through their attorney, Robert Louis Hoguet, the Monmouth Beach Hotel, cottages, and baths, Monmouth Beach, N. J., to A. E. La Zaro and Charles H. Torry. Mr. La Zaro was formerly proprietor of the Fort William Henry Hotel, Lake George, N. Y.; the United States Hotel, Hartford, Conn., and the New Point Hotel, Amityville, N. Y.

Third Avenue Theatre.

Plans have been filed for the construction of a two-story moving-picture theatre with stores on the site of the Hotel Sterling, west side of Third Avenue, 50 feet north of Thirteenth Street. The Stuyvesant estate is the owner. The Variety Photo Play Company is the lessee. Louis A. Sheinart, the architect, has placed the cost at $12,000.

Realty Notes.

Plans were filed yesterday for making extensive alterations, including a studio on the roof, to the five-story building at 473 Fifth Avenue, between Fortieth and Forty-first Streets, owned by Mrs. Jennie K. Stafford. The changes are being made for the new tenants, Babson Brothers of Chicago, who have leased the property. The cost will be $25,000. Shape & Bready are the architects.

Title to the old Bijou Theatre property, which was sold at auction on Jan. 8 last for $465,000, was acquired yesterday by Mortimer L. Schiff. The realty is known as 1,237 and 1,239 Broadway, extending through to 502 and 506 Sixth Avenue.

Suit has been started to foreclose a mortgage on the Hotel Continental, at the southeast corner of Broadway and Forty-first Street, formerly known as the Albany, and before that as the Vendome. The action was started by Florence L. Mabee, the former owner, against the Forty-first Street Realty Company. The Mabee family sold the hotel in March, 1912, to Irving Griswold of Albany, who formed a $300,000 corporation which holds title to the property.

Leopold Weil negotiated the sale of 1 East Forty-second Street to the Oceanic Investing Company, recently reported.

In The Times Building, seven stories above the corner of Broadway and Forty-second Street, is a quiet, three-room suite at $2,700 a year, with many attractions for the man who believes that a good office helps make good business. Its wide outlook east and south, its convenient arrangement and equipment, and its situation in one of the best known, best managed of business buildings make it a substantial asset for its occupant. Why not see it to-day, with the rental agent, who is always at callers' service in Room 406?

NEW JERSEY—FOR SALE OR TO LET.

Sale of Real Estate
State of New York

The Supreme Court of the State of New York has authorized the Banking Department to offer, at private sale, the real estate of the Industrial Savings and Loan Company, (in liquidation).

THE OBJECT OF THE SALE is to rapidly convert the Real Estate into cash, or readily salable mortgages, in order to obtain funds for over 5,200 depositors, and also to hasten the final closing of the business of the Company.

THE BARGAIN PRICES AVERAGE ABOUT 50% of the prices asked by former owners, and should attract investors, homeseekers and builders and result in a rapid disposal of the properties.

The properties consist of suburban homes and building lots located in New Jersey along the Palisades, about opposite Grant's Tomb, at GRANTWOOD, PALISADE, MORSEMERE, LEONIA, HUDSON HEIGHTS and EDGEWATER, all reached by trolleys within a five-cent fare zone.

Offices in charge of reliable sales representatives are maintained at GRANTWOOD, corner of Lawton Avenue and Trolley, and at MORSEMERE, corner of Broad and Columbia Avenues.

These offices and all of the properties may be reached from the Cortlandt, 42nd and 130th Street Ferries.

FRANK E. VOGEL,
HENRY SIEGEL & COMPANY,
Wholesale, Defendants.

A motion having been made herein on behalf of Elisha S. Taborn to direct the receiver to return to him a sum of money paid over by him to Henry Siegel & Company, bankers, in return for a draft of the said Henry Siegel & Company, bankers, which draft was not paid, and said motion having duly come on to be heard, and the receiver having filed his answer to the said petition, and it appearing by concession of the parties in open court that there are other persons occupying the same position as the said claimant, Elisha S. Taborn, and that there is doubt as to the amount of money in the receiver's hands applicable to the payment of such claims, if such claims were allowed;

Now, after hearing Augustus H. Skillin, Esq., of counsel for the said applicant, and Joseph M. Proskauer, Esq., of counsel for Henry Melville, as receiver of Henry Siegel & Company, bankers, it is Ordered, That the said application be and it hereby is referred to the Hon. George C. Holt as Master and that a hearing be held before him at his office in the Woolworth Bldg., 233 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on Thursday, April 23rd, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard; and it is further

Ordered, That all persons who claim that they paid moneys to Henry Siegel & Company, bankers, in return for checks or drafts of the said Henry Siegel & Company, bankers, which checks or drafts were not paid, and who claim by reason thereof the right to receive back their said payments from the receiver, be and they hereby are ordered to present their said claims to the said Special Master at said hearing, and that all persons who do not so present their claims shall be forever barred and foreclosed from asserting said claims against said receiver; and it is further Ordered, That the said Special Master shall take evidence and report as to which, if any, of such claims are valid and as to what moneys in the hands of the receiver, if any, are properly available for the payment of such claims, and the distributive share of such moneys, if any, to which any claimant may be entitled.

Notice of this hearing shall be given by publishing a copy of this order in The New York Times and The Boston Herald on the 15th, 17th, and 20th days of April, 1914.

AVIATOR ARRESTED FOR LANDING IN PARK

2,000 WATCH HIS DESCENT

Hempstead-to-Central-Park Flight May Cause Aero Club Officials to Revoke His License.

J. Guy Gilpatric, chief pilot of the Sloane Aviation School at Hempstead, flew from the aviation field there to this city yesterday afternoon. He landed on the big meadow in Central Park and was at once served with a summons requiring his presence in Court to-day for breaking that section of the Park Department rules which forbids trespass upon the grass of the parks. His landing was spectacular and some 2,000 persons, disregarding the ordinance, swarmed over the green to watch the aviator come to earth. Along the drive at least a hundred automobilists stopped and for a long way the road was packed with motor cars.

In his flight over Manhattan, Gilpatric, the officials of the Aero Club of America believe, broke the rule of the Club and the International Federation, forbidding flying over cities. This phase of the case will be taken up by the Board of Goveronrs of the Aero Club to-day. It was said that Gilpatric might lose his pilot's license for a time.

Gilpatric left the hangars at Hempstead at 3:40 P. M. He flew the great Sloane-Deperdussin monoplane in which he finished fourth in the New York Times Aerial Derby around Manhattan on Oct. 13. His machine took to the air without a hitch and as he circled around the field preparatory to mounting into the upper air and heading a course toward Manhattan, the whirr of his 80 horse power Gnome engine could be distinctly heard by the crowd gathered about the hangars.

There was a keen wind overhead and the aviator said that it was cold in the upper air. He mounted upward in a great spiral until he had attained an altitude of nearly 3,000 feet, when he straightened out on his course and headed for Manhattan straight as a bee flies. His first guide post was the Brooklyn Bridge, and when he sighted that he turned toward the north. When he crossed the river he was far north of his first objective point and was making straight for the Times Building. He had then mounted to an altitude of 3,500 feet. Twice he made a circle far above the Times Building before he headed northward.

Long before the aeroplane had reached earth the crowd gathered, running from all directions. One of those who watched the aviator make his descent was Mounted Policeman McGuire of the Arsenal Station. He decided that Gilpatric had broken the "Keep Off the Grass" regulation, and questioned the pilot. He then served on him a summons requiring him to appear this morning in the Yorkville Court to answer the charge of "lowering his machine to the park lawn" in transgression of the law.

"What would you have me do?" inquired Gilpatric, who took his summons in good part. "Did you want the machine to fall and then arrest what remained of me, or did you want me to take a chance and land in a tree?"

The crowd was in sympathy with the aviator and repeatedly asked the policeman where he would rather have had the monoplane fall.

Gilpatric said that if he was trespassing he would go on, but he was not allowed to make an ascension from the green. What to do with the aeroplane was a question which took some thought. It was decided by the policeman that it could be housed in the sheep stable. It weighed 750 pounds, but willing volunteers assisted in wheeling it into temporary shelter. It was too long to go into the inclosure so one wing was loosened to fit the space. It will remain there until the case is adjudicated.

The court decision, an aviator said, would be interesting to all air pilots, for it would establish a precedent as to the right of an aviator to land upon park property when his life was in danger. Gipatric said that he felt his safety demanded that he came to a landing, and for that reason he could not see that he violated an ordinance which was framed long before aerial navigation became popular and did not contemplate the protection of park lawns from damage by aviators obliged to land to protect their lives.

Gilpatric said he would chance his neck against a summons any time, which might not be good law but was certainly living up to the rule, "safety first."

BRUERE HAS U. & D. REPORT.

Campaign Charge Was That City's Award Was $1,000,000 Too High.

Henry Bruere, City Chamberlain, has been investigating the charge made in the Mayoralty campaign that the city suffered a loss of upward of a million dollars by reason of the relocation of the tracks of the Ulster & Delaware Railroad as a result of the construction of the Ashokan Reservoir. Arthur S. Barnes has been getting the facts, and a complete report is soon to be made public. When Chamberlain Bruere was asked about it yesterday, he said:

"Yes, I have the report on the Ulster & Delaware award. It has been handed to the two surviving members of the Board of Estimate's special committee, Controller Prendergast and Charles Strauss, President of the Board of Water Supply. There is no allegation of fraud or impropriety—it is only a question of fact."

The report is of a preliminary nature and the Chamberlain would not make it public yesterday. As a result of his investigation, it is said, Mr. Barnes came to the conclusion that in a total award of $2,800,000 the city paid between $800,000 and $1,500,000 too much.

BRIDEGROOM UNDER BAIL.

Dentist Arrested in Widow's Suit for Breach of Promise.

Dr. William Watts, a dentist, of 938 Broad Street, Newark, is under $3,000 bail pending the trial of a suit for breach of promise brought by Mrs. Elfrida Harries, a widow of a few months, of 5 Centre Street, South Orange. The defendant is the son of George A. Watts, President of the Watts-Campbell Company, machinists, of 298 Ogden Street, Newark. Last Saturday he married Miss Clara Isabelle Tellier of 381 Sumner Avenue. The Rev John McDowell performed the ceremony at the bride's home. The dentist and his bride are now on their honeymoon.

Dr. Watts was arrested last Thursday night following the filing of an affidavit by Mrs. Harries with Samuel F. Bigelow acting as a Supreme Court Commissioner. The affidavit was sworn to on the same day that the dentist took out the marriage license. His father furnished bail.

Mrs. Harries's affidavit sets forth that she met Dr. Watts in August, 1908, and that they were on friendly terms until April 5 of this year.

RUNAWAY DRAGS POLICEMAN

Tried to Stop Mrs. May Letter's Horse in Prospect Park.

Mrs. May Letter of 271 Carroll Street, Brooklyn, was driving a horse attached to a runabout on the west drive of Prospect Park yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the animal became frightened at a passing automobile. The horse shied, jerking the reins from the hands of Mrs. Letter, and, finding itself free, dashed down the drive.

Policeman Walter Sergeant made a dive for the horse's neck and missed it, but his arms caught through the reins. Dangling from the reins the policeman was dragged nearly 300 feet before Policeman Joseph Coleman ran in front of the horse and stopped it. Sergeant fell to the ground unconscious, and Mrs. Letter was taken from the runabout uninjured, but much frightened.

A call to Coney Island Hospital brought Ambulance Surgeon Van Deylon, who found that Sergeant's hip was injured. He was taken to the hospital and later to his home.

Jane Est Found Guilty.

Jane Est, who disturbed the Easter services Sunday morning in Dr. Parkhurst's church, was found guilty of disorderly conduct when arraigned last night in the Women's Night Court. Magistrate Campbell remanded her for sentence to-night.

Miss Est said she has some Quaker beliefs, and when "the spirit" moved her "to go to Dr. Parkhurst's church and say she did not regard him as a Christian preaching that religion," she went.

Senate Asks About Reserve Cities.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Without discussion, the Senate adopted Senator Hitchcock's resolution to-day calling upon the Federal Reserve Bank Organization Committee for its conclusions in selecting the twelve Federal reserve bank cities.

Chinese Minister Received.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The new Minister from China, Mr. Shah, presented his credentials to-day to President Wilson. Prince Alexander zu Muenster-Derneburg, a member of the Prussian House of Lords, also paid his respects to the President.

You know what 'value' is—and it would be unwise for us to ask you to come up to this second floor shop if we couldn't prove our values. We say to you that thousands of men—men who like correct dress—men who used to pay $25 for their clothes—are coming up here now—because they know they actually save $10 on every suit and overcoat.

Every garment is a guaranteed $25 value. We don't add on $10 to pay for high rent or other unnecessary expenses. That's the $10 you save when buying a $25 suit or overcoat here for . . $15

The Young Man In Business

THE youth of our American business men is proverbial.

Young men of today are holding great big jobs—because they are full of the fire and vigor of youth.

Now then, we have a special message for young business men and business men who feel young—about our Hart, Schaffner & Marx Clothes.

They are clothes that enhance your youth—clothes styled and tailored for business men, clothes that you can put on and wear without any annoying waste of time; clothes that shrewd men of affairs all over New York are wearing, because of the values they offer.

For it is naturally enough a source of great satisfaction to know that your $18, $20, $25, $30, or your $40 or $50 has brought you its fullest return—and that is what it does in our Hart, Schaffner & Marx Clothes.

Well-Cut Clothes

A cool Spring simply brings us nearer to the warm days and the immediate demand for new apparel.

Suits $18 to $40. Overcoats $20 to $40.
